Marshal Explains

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Aug. 12.—Marshal Petain fatefully summoned France to collaborate willingly with Germany tonight, gravely calling upon the nation to share with her conqueror in recasting the way of the world and threatening to smash the legions of French foes of the new order.

The 85-year-old chief of state announced his momentous decision in a radio address in which he frankly admitted to his uneasy countrymen that his own program for the regeneration of France had not succeeded and that French democracy was dead—in fact never had lived in the American pattern.

He aligned France squarely beside Germany in her fight against Russia, a fight which tonight found the German legions piercing deeper into the Ukraine in what Petain called "dramatic tasks in developments to the east (he strongly accented the phrase) in defense of civilization and which can change the map of the world."

"Long-Term Labor"

What course the collaboration will take was not stated. The German controlled press of Paris has been clamoring for weeks, however, for joint German-French defense of Dakar and other French African possessions and a general military as well as economic and political cooperation with the Nazis.

Collaboration, Petain observed, "is a long-term labor and has not yet been able to bear all its fruit."

To implement his decision, the World War hero of Verdun, designated Vice Premier Admiral Jean Francois Darlan to take full control of the French military structure in a general government reshuffle.

Darlan, who long has favored working with Germany, now be-

Arriving in Force

Manila, Aug. 12.—The Japanese high command is planning to place 180,000 troops in French Indo-China, the majority of them in West Cambodia adjoining the border of Thailand, it was learned authoritatively tonight.

Foreign observers agree that the Japanese will enter Thailand when they are organized and prepared to meet British troops now stationed in Burma and British Malaya along the west and northwestern Thai border.

The number of troops the Japanese are reported planning to move in Indo-China is far greater than has previously been mentioned. It was announced officially by the French Indo-China government July 30 that under last month's agreement with Tokyo the Japanese would move only 40,000 troops into southern Indo-China.

In northern Indo-China the Japanese last September were given permission to garrison 6000 troops, but the number later was swollen to 38,000.

Red Armies West Of Dnieper Face Annihilation, Germans Claim

By C. brooks Peters.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—The Russian armies west of the Dnieper in the Ukraine already face eventual annihilation, informed quarters declared tonight.

[The latest Soviet communique, according to the Associated Press, said comparative calm had descended on the Eastern Front, indicating that Russian resistance had put a check to the German offensive along the 1,800-mile battle line.]

Additional German units are reported already to have pushed as far south as the Black Sea. Odessa, it is believed, is surrounded. German weapons, military quarters said, already dominate the entire sector west of the Dnieper. They control traffic on that river to a large extent, particularly from the air, these quarters added.

They declared that the Russians still hold only a small portion of the bend in the Dnieper in the lower region.

These quarters termed the recent developments in this sector as extraordinarily successful and that "gigantic strides" were made.

Transports Declared Sunk

D. N. B., official news agency, said that in the north German infantry units stormed and captured a number of artillery batteries. Elsewhere in this sector 73 Red tanks, including seven "abnormally heavy ones," are reported to have been destroyed.

Somewhere in the southern sector 70 additional Red tanks are said to have been destroyed and 15 Soviet planes shot down. Three small enemy transports, totaling 2,300 tons, and a tugboat of 1,000 tons are stated to have been sunk by the German air force in the harbor of Otschakov. Other Germany fliers are reported to have sunk one large and two small cannon boats on the lower Dnieper.

Luftwaffe fliers, patrolling the air in the territory around Kiev today, are credited by D. N. B. with having shot down 27 planes.

Fighting Bakers

The Germans have repeatedly accused the Russians of shooting, contrary to the international rules of war, German soldiers and fliers whom they have captured. D. N. B. declares that this conduct by the enemy appears to be less a sign of desperation on the part of the Soviets than a practice in wartime viewed by them as obvious.

D. N. B. reveals interesting data relative to the feeding of the Reich legions. A baking company marched and fought with its division for 690 miles in five weeks. In this time it was attacked by Russian planes and in ground fighting captured 150 Russians and destroyed four enemy tanks—while baking 500,000 loaves of bread.

1000 British Planes Blast Nazis by Day

Luftwaffe Retaliates During Night After Greatest R. A. F. Daylight Offensive

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London (Wednesday), Aug. 13.—Staging an impressive display of its steadily growing might the Royal Air Force carried out its biggest offensive yesterday against Germany since the war began.

Hundreds of planes, both bombers and fighters—including the American-built machines which the British fliers like so much—roared over numerous objectives in northern France and Germany, and subjected Cologne to the heaviest daylight attack yet delivered against that city.

[International News Service said nearly 1000 planes took part in the raids.]

Out of the numerous squadrons engaged in all the operations, the British said they lost 12 bombers and 8 fighters, with 3 German fighters destroyed.

Nazis Retaliate

[The Germans, in retaliation, sent waves of Luftwaffe attackers over England last night and early today, the Associated Press reported.

[The early arrivals came in small numbers over East Anglia, South Wales, the North and West Midlands and the northeast and northwest but later they began coming in waves over the Midlands. Casualties and damage were reported from one East Midlands town.]

The Cologne raiders were declared to have battered two big power stations in that city, an important railroad network and the riverside factories which already have been bounded nearly 100 times. The raiders "hedge-hopped" across Belgium and parts of Germany at less than 100 feet. Six squadrons of Blenheims bombed targets at point blank range. Both plants were hit and set afire.

New Fighters Used

The R. A. F. employed new strategy in the Cologne raid. Long-range fighters accompanied the bombers as far as Antwerp, whence the bombers proceeded unescorted to their destination. When the bombers returned, more long-range fighters met them at Antwerp and covered their homeward flight from there. Meanwhile, another strong fighter force patroled the Dutch coast in the support of these operations.

Later in the day, Cologne was attacked by flying fortresses which also hammered Emden and the air fields at Dekooy.

The long range fighters employed in these operations included the Whirlwinds, one of the latest types,

$1,347,053,550 Stricken Out Of Army Bill

Senate Committee Deletes Amount As Unnecessary To Army of 3 Million

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

In an unprecedented defense slash, the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday struck from the House-approved supplemental defense bill $1,347,053,550 for reserve orders of late model tanks, antitank guns, antiaircraft weapons and artillery supplies.

The cut was ordered without a record vote of the committee despite Army testimony that this "special ordnance" reserve will be needed in event of war and includes new types and late developments in warcraft.

Official reason for deletion, given by the committee in its report to the Senate, was:

"This amount represents requests made by the (War) department over and above the requirements to equip and maintain an Army of three million men."

Restoration Sought

As reported, the bill carried $3,503,957,663 for the War Department, $1,576,335,785 for the Navy, $698,650,000 for the Maritime Commission and $49,383,500 for miscellaneous civil activities.

A $90,807,000 increase voted the War Department included funds for more cantonments and new facilities for ordnance maintenance and additional facilities for barrage balloon training.

The huge slash was partly offset by $122,142,020 of increases in other items to bring a net decrease of $1,234,911,530 in the $8,069,238,478 House-approved measure. As reported by the committee, the bill now recommends only $5,828,326,948 in cash and one billion dollars in contract authority for the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and other agencies.

The bill goes tomorrow to the floor of the Senate, where Administration forces, backed by Army insistence that the rejected equipment is essential if America is forced into war, will ask restoration of the full amount.

Warns of Obsolescence

"It is put in by the War Department on the view that those items will clearly be necessary in greatly increased quantities if we move into armed conflict," Undersecretary of War Patterson told the committee last week.

"The trend is all that way, toward mechanized warfare on the ground as well as in the air. . . . It would be most unfortunate if we were caught short in them because of the length

1-Vote Margin Stands In Recapitulation After Eight Hours Of Stormy Debate

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The House last night voted 203 to 202 to extend by 18 months the maximum service of every man in the United States Army.

The hair-line decision came after eight hours of stormy debate, with many isolationists joining Administration supporters in overwhelming a series of compromise amendments, thus setting the stage for an "all or nothing" vote on the service extension bill.

The measure, declaring that "the national interest is imperiled," now goes to conference for adjustment of minor differences between the House and Senate versions.

Tally sheets kept by House members first showed the vote standing at 204 to 201 for passage of the bill. Amid cries for a recount, a roar of protest from backers of the bill and cheers from the Republican ranks, Representative Somers (Democrat), of New York, changed his vote from the affirmative to "no."

There was a gasp from the crowded galleries, dotted with men in khaki, as Speaker Rayburn announced a one-vote margin in favor of the bill.

Representative Short (Republican), of Missouri, immediately demanded a recapitulation of the roll call. In tense silence the House heard the recount. No members contended they had been incorrectly recorded and Speaker Rayburn an-

House Will Recess Monday Till Sept. 15

The House agreed last night to a plan of recess beginning next Monday and convening the last week's extending to September 15. Action on price control and other legislation will await the members' return.

The Senate, meanwhile, will have the House-approved tax bill to work on after its Finance Committee reports the measure.

Hoover 'Called' to Capital

Presidential Yacht's Silence Indicates It May Be Far Out

President Roosevelt's vacation yacht Potomac has apparently silenced its radio, an indication perhaps that the vessel may be well out in North Atlantic waters.

The Navy Department for the third consecutive day did not receive the usual press message yesterday from the Potomac.

When asked directly whether the trim yacht was using its radio, Navy press officers declined comment, but it was learned that the Navy, in addition to not receiving the customary press release, has not received any confidential messages from the Potomac.

No word has been received from the Presidential yacht since Saturday morning, when the party was reported to be enjoying the sea air, sunshine and opportunities for fishing.

Since blackout of information began, rumors of a meeting between the President and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain have remained unconfirmed and undenied.

Another mystery angle was added to the speculation about the cruise last night when former President Herbert Hover announced at Yellowstone Park that he had been "called by Washington" and was cutting short his vacation in the park to fly to the Capital. Officials sources here were unable to throw any light on the trip.

Mr. Roosevelt, who embarked on his cruise August 3, planned originally to return some time this week. The date of his return still is not known.

Prompt Action On Bill for 100 Police Pledged

Legislation Filed By Cochran; 19 Rape Cases Cited

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the Deficiency Appropriation Subcommittee, last night promised "prompt action" on a proposal to appropriate money for salaries of 100 additional uniformed metropolitan policemen.

The proposal came yesterday in the form of a bill introduced by Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, who declared Washington's 19 rape cases so far in 1941 to be the only argument necessary for "immediate" action on the legislation.

In the hubbub that followed passage of the draft extension bill last night, Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, ranking majority member of the District Committee and chairman of the recent police investigation, attempted to call up bills intended to help the Police Department by tightening existing law on vagrants and habitual criminals.

Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, objected to unanimous consent passage of the bills because "I can't hear." Representative Boren(Democrat), of Oklahoma, said he was under the impression that the bills provided for more Washington policemen and he was opposed to adding any more men to the force.

Rather than attempt to explain the measures against the tumult, Schulte withdrew them. He said the bills would be called up again today.

The Cochran bill would appropriate $152,000 from District revenue for the new police salaries. Cochran said inquiry had disclosed that the District would have sufficient revenue this fiscal year to meet the expense. He pointed out that ample authorization for the appropriation is contained in the act of 1930 fixing the salaries of Metropolitan and Park Police and District firemen.

War Building Dispute Now Up to Senate

Backers of Arlington Site Given Better Than Even Chance

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The 35-million-dollar War Department building controversy yesterday was put up to the Senate, where decision is likely to be reached during floor debate tomorrow.

With this one last hurdle remaining, the War Department was given better than an even chance of prevailing in the battle over whether the building is to be erected on a 67-acre site near Arlington Cemetery.

Only a few members dissented when the Senate's Appropriations Committee decided on a voice vote to back up the decision of a subcommittee to concur in the action of the House to erect 34 acres of building on the Arlington site.

The committee's action was taken in the face of President Roosevelt's characterization of the venture as "unwise," and yesterday's plea from Interior Secretary Ickes against despoiliation of Potomac Park and the Lee Memorial setting in Arlington.

The decison was reached over the protest of a small group of committeemen who contended that, by the move Congress might lose control over a vital agency of Government.

The committee at the same time aroused the indignation of the Buildings and Grounds Committee, whose members were angered that this and other building projects had not been submitted first to them for authorization.

The dissenters in the Appropriations Committee were understood to be Senators McCarran, of Nevada, chairman of the District Committee; Green, of Rhode Island; Maloney of Connecticut, chairman of the buildings committee, and Overton, of Louisiana (all Democrats).

"I just can't believe there aren't any sites in the District where this

D. C. Judge Fines Reckless Driver $250, the Maximum

The maximum fine for reckless driving was given by Judge George D. Neilson yesterday in Traffic Court when he fined Edward Young, 25, of 1204 Thirtieth Street Northwest, $250.

The judge found Young guilty of a charge which grew out of a police chase Monday around Washington Circle Northwest in which policement told the court Young drove his car "in excess of 60 miles an hour."

Judge Neilson, emphasizing that he was limited by law from imposing a heavier fine, told the defendant, "You should have your permit revoked indefinitely."

'Flew Between Chimneys'

R. A. F. Pilot Dives Into Quarry To Dodge 'Flak,' Gets Out Safely

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 12.—A weary pilot told tonight how he dived his Blenheim bomber below ground-level—into a stone quarry—to escape German antiaircraft fire in the hedge-hopping raid on power plants near Cologne today.

Coming out of the quarry he bent a propeller on a telegraph post, caught the tip of a wing in a tree, barely missed a church steeple and finally reached home to make a belly landing with a disabled undercarriage.

Even going over the Low Countries he flew his bomber so low he could see what people on the streets were doing, he said.

"I could tell exactly when I crossed into Germany from Holland," he related. "In Holland everybody in the fields and streets of the towns waved and seemed to be cheering but in Germany some ran like mad and some fell on their faces in ditches.

"We were making one of the last attacks of the day on the power plant at Knapsack, near Cologne. You couldn't miss the target. Flames from previous hits were roaring 50 feet high so we climbed to attack.

"Inside the buildings we could see the sudden red glow of explosions under the smoke. I flew straight between chimneys. I was watching my observer's elbow as he pulled back the release lever and then I heard him call, 'bombs gone.'

"I did a steep turn over a belt of trees, down into a sandstone quarry to get away from Flak (antiaircraft fire). I should think we went about 30 feet below the level of the ground.

"Then the rear gunner called 'fighter' and a piece of our wing fell away. I heard no more from him. He must have been wounded.

"A bullet came in behind my head and another smacked the armor plating at my back. I turned to the right to give the fighter a more difficult angle of fire and this seemed to work.

"He sprayed the air above us. While we twisted about, I hit the top of a telegraph post and chipped one propeller.

"There was a film of oil over my glasses. I didn't see a church spire and my observer told me of it just in time to let me miss it. I banked sharply and caught the tip of my wing in a tree. Once more we were lucky and we managed to catch up with the others.

"The worst of the attack was over then. Squadrons of British fighters came back to meet us.

"My rear gunner passed me a note he had written on his knee pad: 'Please get here quickly. Bleeding badly.' I flew on, straight for the base. The observer held the gunner to cushion the shock while we made a belly landing."

'Don't Pay More'

Henderson Sets Sugar Ceiling, Cuts Prices, Hits Speculators

To protect the public from "rampant speculation," Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday set ceiling prices on raw sugar at 3.50 cents per pound, three-tenths of a cent below prevailing levels.

The ceiling, effective tomorrow, is expected to fix the retail price of refined sugar at 5.5 cents a pound.

Yesterday's prices at three leading chain stores varied from 5.2 to 6 cents a pound.

Henderson said the speculation in sugar had been pushing prices far above levels justified by large supplies in hand.

"Consumers should not under any condition permit themselves to be cajoled into paying more for sugar in retail stores than at the present time," the price administrator declared.

"There is more than enough sugar for everyone. Speculators have been endeavoring all through the year to reap a profit at expense of consumers throughout the country by frightening them with scare reports of one kind or another, although the actual situation is one of unusual abundance, not scarcity."

The ceiling price, technically set on "96 degree raw sugar," is the price prevailing in mid-July, "prior to the recent excessive speculative advance," the Office of Price Administration declared.

'They Shall Not Trim'

General Fries and Policeman Dig in for 'Battle of the Hedge'

Retired Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries' fondness for shrubbery and Policeman J. W. Carroll's devotion to duty came into conflict yesterday over a 6-foot hedge at the Fries residence, 3305 Woodley Road Northwest.

The policeman says the hedge is on public property and that it is higher than the law allows. He directed that it be clipped.

The general says that the hedge is on private property.

"I'm not cutting until I do some questioning," Gen. Fries asserted. "After all, I'm not running a still behind the hedge."

Maj. Gen. Fries said that he has owned the property for 17 years and that the hedge has been there, unmolested, for 10 years.

"The bush is outside the building line, and is on public property," Carroll insisted.

Police regulations limit the height of hedges on public property to 36 inches to prevent criminals hiding behind them. Whether the hedge is on the general's property, or is outside the building line, will determine the future of the foliage.

The situation is now at a deadlock, but when Gen. Fries makes formal protest, the controversy will probably go to the office of Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech for a ruling.

Turkey Receives Russo-British Pledges of Aid

London, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The British and Russian Ambassadors have handed the Turkish foreign office identical declarations pledging all possible aid to Turkey if she is attacked and promising to respect the status quo of the strategic Dardanelles, the British foreign office announced tonight.

Sir Hugh M. Knatchbull-Hugessen, British Ambassador, and Sergei Vinogradov, Soviet envoy, delivered the notes to the Turkish government Monday.

Both great powers pledged continued adherence to the Montreaux convention signed in 1936 by which Turkey received the right to remilitarize the long, narrow straits leading from the Mediterranean to the Sea of Marmora, the Bosporus and the Black Sea.

68th Nazi Division Annihilated in Long Battle, Front Has Generally Calmed, Russians Claim

Red Air Force Helps Troops Attacking Mechanized Units

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Wednesday), Aug. 13.—The Sixty-eighth German Infantry Division has been annihilated after a long battle in which 7500 Nazis were killed or wounded, the Russians announced today.

The announcement of this engagement was made in a supplement to the regular early morning communique, which said comparative calm had fallen upon the Eastern Front generally, indicating the Red army had checked the third German offensive.

It was the first time since the war began that a communique failed to mention the areas in which fighting occurred.

The communique asserted that the Red airforce cooperated with land troops attacking German motorized and mechanized units and infantry. It also reported the destruction Monday of four German torpedo boats and two transports by the Baltic Fleet.

Russian fliers were credited with destruction of 41 planes as compared with a loss of 34 in air fighting Sunday. Final results of Monday night's German raid on Moscow showed the Germans lost two planes, the communique said.

Nazis Strike at Moscow

German planes attempted to raid Moscow again last night.

An announcement said heavy fire from antiaircraft batteries and action of Russian night fighters dispersed the German planes and prevented them from reaching Moscow.

Red air fleet bombers again struck at Berlin Monday night, dropping high explosives and incendiaries on military objectives and starting fires, a communique said, and other aircraft continued in action against German motor and infantry forces.

In the central sector west of Moscow, Soviet war reports indicated the Germans still were without gain, while to the north the Nazis were hammering to close the jaws of a giant vise on Leningrad.

Sparing Soviet communiques gave little information on the general situation, saying only that the Red army "continued fighting" in the areas of Kakisalmi, 75 miles north of Leningrad; Soltsi, 120 miles south of Leningrad; Smolensk, west of Moscow; Korosten, 80 miles northwest of Kiev in the Ukraine, and Uman, 120 miles south of Kiev.

General Reported Captured

One guerrilla detachment operating behind the German lines was said to have confounded the German command at one point by capturing one of its generals—unnamed—when his car broke down in a Soviet village.

In another action guerrillas were said to have captured a German locomotive on a siding, and then turned it about and headed it into a German troop train.

The runaway locomotive smashed 15 troop-carrying cars, the Russians said.

At Korosten, said a communique, an entire German tank column was crushed, 50 per cent of the Nazi machines being smashed when Soviet warplanes, tanks, artillery and infantry attacked together. Wreckage of the column was said to have strewn the roadside for 8 miles.

In yet another action at river "K," the Russians said, two German battalions were completely routed when Soviet infantrymen made a bayonet charge over one of the Germans' own pontoon bridges.

With the bridge smashed behind them, this account continued, the Russians were rescued from threatened encirclement by Russian cavalry and tanks which crossed on a pontoon bridge and put the Germans to flight.

R. A. F. in Biggest Daylight Offensive

the description of which is a closely guarded secret. It is believed that this was the first time the Whirlwinds which are said in some quarters to be superior to Britain's latest type of Spitfires, have taken part in active operations.

The power stations at Quadrath and Knapsack shook under what the air ministry described as a "great number of bombs," many direct hits being scored and the stations being set ablaze.

All day yesterday, beginning early in the morning, formation after formation of fighters, and bombers escorted by fighters, went back and forth across the Channel giving the Germans in occupied France one of the most harassing days since the R. A. F.'s aerial offensive on the Western Front began several weeks ago.

Followed Night Raids

A power station near Bethune, and aril communications near St. Omer, were among the objectives bombed.

Yesterday's operations followed Monday night raids by R. A. F. bombers on western Germany and the Rotterdam docks. American-built havoc fighters also participated in the night raids, attacking air fields in northern France and the Netherlands.

Despite bad weather during the night British bombers attacked targets at Krefeld, Rheydt and Munchen-Gladbach, all in the Ruhr district. It was the first time these three centers had been bombed by the British. The results of the bombing at the Rotterdam docks were not detailed.

Although the points visited by the Havocs were not identified, air officials said they started "a good fire' at one German airbase in northern France.

Sidelights of the War

Reds Cite Nazi 'Atrocities,' Vow 'Both Eyes for One Eye'

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 12.—Russia charged today the Germans were committing "unheard of atrocities and violations" on Russian soldiers and civilians and warned that Soviet forces would retaliate with "both eyes for one eye, a whole mouth for one tooth."

S. A. Lozovsky, foreign affairs vice-commissar and official Soviet spokesman, told a press conference: "Hitler and his gang have committed to many despicable and monstrous crimes against mankind that they will get their retribution according to their deserts, by the only law these brown sadists know—that is both eyes for one eye, a whole mouth for one tooth."

Lozovsky issued a 12-page pamphlet of incidents, and four-page list of hospitals and sanitary trains the Russians asserted were attacked in violation of the Geneva convention.

The pamphlet said the Germans had bombed open towns and cited the bombing of Uman on July 24 as one case.

Nazis Disown 'Blitz'

Berlin, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Evidently answering Russo-British boasts that Nazi "blitzkrieg" tactics have failed against the Red army, the official military spokesman asserted the term is a British invention and actually does not exist in German military terminology.

The British, he said, created the term meaning "lightning war" as a result of the swift German victories in the west.

"The only term that counts is this one—final victory," the spokesman said.

Gas Shells Fire Trees

Stockholm, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The newspaper Social Demokraten reported today that the Russians on the Finnish front are using shells loaded with gasoline which burst 200 feet from the ground and ignite forests.

A shower of these shells, it was stated is usually followed by a heavy artillery barrage in order to prevent the Finns from extinguishing the flames.

Sham Town Saves Oil

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Russian fliers have not succeeded in setting fire to the Ploesti oil center in Rumania because the German camouflage experts built a sham town not far from Ploesti and the Russians were misled by it, it was learned here yesterday.

The damage caused so far to the Rumanian oil fields appears to be small, it was said. One refinery has been burnt down, reports from Bucharest say. But the refining capacity in Rumania exceeds the present needs. The flow of Rumanian oil to Germany is slowed down by lack of transportation facilities rather than by the Russian bombings, latest information indicates.

U. S. Must Treble Defense Rate To Top Nazis, Henderson Says

Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration and Supply, said yesterday that the rate of defense production in the United States must be trebled in order to achieve overwhelming superiority over Germany's military strength. While between 10 and 12 per cent of the American productive activity is now devoted to the defense effort, this proportion must be increased to 35 per cent, he said.

Henderson made his statement before the House Banking and Currency Committee in his seventh day of testimony on the emergency price control bill. He said the defense effort now absorbs one-eighth of the hours of labor worked in the United States, while the Government is spending one billion dollars a month.

He estimated that these figures will be doubled by the end of another year, and the United States will then equal Germany's military production. To achieve overwhelming superiority it will be necessary to spend three billion dollars a month and devote three-eighths of the American productive effort to defense, according to Henderson. He added that in Germany and England five-eighths of the productive effort is now devoted to war purposes.

Henderson said he would oppose "unwarranted and unsupportable" demands for wage increases, such as would wipe out an industry's margin of profit. Rather than let that happen he would "make representations to whatever Federal agency is responsible" and ask that the wage rise be prevented if possible, he said.

He admitted that if all else failed under such circumstances the price ceiling would have to be raised, but he indicated that adequate control over the cost of living would prevent the situation ever arising.

Saying that last reports indicated labor now had a two point advantage in the 6 per cent-8 per cent rises, respectively, in living costs and wage increases, Henderson added that "the cost of living will catch up with it."

Swiss Capital Tells Of a Double Drive On Odessa and Kiev

BULLETIN

Berlin (Wednesday), Aug. 12. For the third consecutive night more than four million Berliners rushed to air-raid shelters last night as sirens announced the approach of enemy planes.

An official announcement said that "a limited number" of explosive bombs fell on residential sections of the city, killing and wounding an unspecified number of persons.

Though the communique failed to indicate the identity of the planes which attacked Berlin, it reported that British air raiders had bombed several places in western, central and northern Germany.

Ten of the British planes were said to have been shot down—bringing to 51 the total number the Germans claimed to have destroyed since dawn yesterday.

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 12.—Russian troops continued to inflict a heavy toll on German forces attempting a double drive from Lipovets in the Ukraine sector against both Odessa and Kiev—the former pushing down the Sinjucha and Bug Rivers and the latter circling northward, east and west of Bel Tserkov.

At neither end of this salient, however, did repeated and costly mechanized "Blitzes" net the Reichswehr any important gain, it was claimed, while on the flanks of the southern offensive Russian reinforcements rushed up during the last three days are stated to be continuing to make "important progress" in closing the width of the German break-through, which has not passed the Uman region.

On the northern end, where German mechanized and foot divisions have been hammering the Russian lines for five days, Soviet forces to the north of the Ross River, in a series of harrying raids, claimed to have successfully turned the German spearhead directed against Kiev from the south, and to be at present bending the German attack back on itself toward Skvira to the west of Bel Tserkov itself. In this morning's fighting in this area one German division is stated to have been routed after a surprise flanking movement on the Russians' part had severed its communications to the west. In hand to hand fighting over boggy terrain which followed, many prisoners were taken after the Germans had suffered heavy casualties.

In the fighting around Korosten, where the Germans are attempting to cross the Uzh River northeast of Isskorost to turn Kiev on the north, a Russian communique stated that a heavy German tank column had been forced to retreat in disorder after a combined Russian tank, infantry and aerial attack had destroyed more than 50 vehicles and damaged at least as many more.

Some prisoners taken in this area are reported as saying that they had received no reinforcements for the last two weeks, while their supply columns had lost contact with their spearheads at many points owing to the activities of the Russian air force, which has been delivering heavy blows at German bases well behind the advanced lines.

Northward from the Ushomir line to the Smolensk sporadic encounters between mechanized patrols are stated to have always developed in the Russians' favor.

It was reported by one Moscow commentator, however, that an entire regiment of mechanized infantry halted owing to lack of fuel was seized without a shot being fired "in the Gomel area."

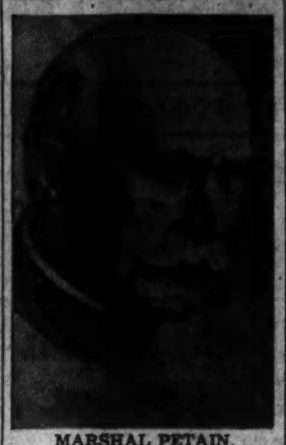
Pledges Hitler Full Collaboration



MARSHAL PETAIN, the French chief of state, yesterday committed himself to full collaboration with Germany

Appeal to U. S.

He emerged with greater powers than any person or combination of persons in France excepting Petain himself.

A decree placed Darlan in complete charge of general organization of national defense, distribution and use of the armed forces and general inspection of the armed forces.

As he thus told the story which every foreign correspondent in Vichy knew and had been trying to get out to the world for weeks past, Marshal Petain unexpectedly interrupted himself to appeal to the United States to understand, asserting that there was "no reason to fear a decline of French ideals."

Speaking in the strongest terms, with weighted words, he declared that the age-old quarrel with Germany must give way to a larger perspective which "by our activity can open up a reconciled continent."

Frankly, he stated, "that is the aim toward which we are heading."

Petain opened his address in this fashion:

"Frenchmen! I have grave things to tell you!

"For the last several weeks I have felt an ill wind rising in many regions of France. Disquiet is overtaking minds; doubt is gaining control of spirits.

"The authority of my government is made a subject of discussion; orders often being ill-executed.

Darlan Held Misunderstood

Then he swiftly made these points:

1. His government has not yet succeeded in carrying out the aims of the national revolution.

2. He has increased the influence of the anti-British Darlan, concentrating all military powers in the vice premier's hands despite the admission that the admiral has been misunderstood and not always given a fair chance by the French people.

3. It is necessary for France to collaborate with the Germans in making a new Europe.

4. The internal setup in France has been reorganized, virtually eliminating members of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies by suppressing their pay and suppressing all political activity.

5. All ministers and high functionaries of the state must swear personal allegiance to Petain.

With Italy, too, he mentioned in passing, "our desires are to escape from these provisional relations (the armistice), to create more stable ties without which the European order cannot be constructed."

"Our ... Democracy Is Dead"

Petain's appeal to the United States was couched in these terms:

"I should like to recall to the great American Republic the reasons why it has no reason to fear a decline of French ideals.

"Certainly our parliamentary democracy is dead.

"But it never had but little in common with the democracy of the United States.

"As for the instinct of liberty, that lives always with us—proud and strong.

"The American press has often misjudged us. Let it now make an effort to understand the quality of our soul and the destiny of a nation whose soul has during the course of history been periodically ravaged, its youth decminated, its well being troubled by the weakness of Europe, in whose reconstruction France intends today to participate."

Sharply critical of affairs inside France, of "indiscipline" and self-seeking, Marshal Petain obviously was striving to pull the French together behind his government's course.

Without referring by name to Food Minister Jean Achard, who was ousted, Petain said:

"I already have taken sanctions and struck at an entire system in the person of a single man: That of the national distribution centers which assured great commercial agents of exclusive and usurious control of all questions of food supply to the detriment of the producer and consumer."

The concentration of powers in Darlan's hands followed weekend conferences by Petain, Darlan, War Minister Gen. Charles Huntziger, and Gen. Maxime Weygand, proconsul for French Africa.

Joseph Barthelemy, minister of justice; Pierre Pucheu, minister of interior, elevated from secretary; Yves Bouthillier, national economy and finance; Pierre Caziot, agriculture; Dr. Serge Huard, secretary of state for family and health, replacing Jacques Chevalier, who resigned on account of his own health.

Japan to Put 180,000 Men In Indo-China

Indo-China has been completely occupied by the Japanese army.

The Bank of Indo-China, which is the backbone of the colony's financial and economic structure, has succumbed to Japanese pressure, as has Indo-China's vital commerce in strategically important commodities as rice, rubber and tin.

The French army in Indo-China has been liquidated as a military unit. Professional French soldiers, both officers and men, entered camps in the interior and their arms were confiscated and placed in arsenals, which Japanese soldiers guard.

Ostensibly, the Japanese army of occupation is paying for its barracks, for available equipment and for the cotton and rubber plantation land which has been requisitioned, but paying with funds placed at their disposal by the Indo-China government through the Bank of Indo-China.

It is known that the Japanese drawing account on this bank reaches many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Because of the lack of available Japanese transports and poor transportation facilities in Indo-China the Japanese are far behind in their occupation program. By August 15 they hope to have 40,000 troops in Indo-China, which is more than the total of French men, women and children now in the country. Several more weeks will be required to land the rest of the 180,000 troops.

Many in Indo-China who formerly followed Vichy's orders implicitly are now openly critical of Vichy for allying them with the yellow race which has taken over their homes and overrun their city.

The French in Indo-China have nowhere to go and must accept the situation. Hundreds of times each day I have been asked when the Americans are coming to stop the Japanese and oust the invaders from the colony.

Tokyo Paper Warns America and Britain

Tokyo, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Britain and the United States have been warned that further pressure on Japan would "bring nothing but the worst situation," the militarist newspaper Kokumin reported today in declaring Japanese determination to proceed peacefully but undeterred in the creation of a broader sphere in East Asia.

This warning, the paper observed, had been especially pointed to Washington, where it was hoped there would be a calm approach to Pacific questions despite what was termed London's "frantic efforts to cause friction between the United States and Japan."

These alleged efforts to disturb the Pacific peace were the desperate actions, said Kokumin, of a power which for two years had been on the verge of defeat by Germany.

Officially, Japan's attentions were turned with avowed anxiety toward United States shipments of war supplies to the Russian Pacific port of Vladivostok.

"Japan wishes that the United States would not send munitions," said Koh Ishii, spokesman for the cabinet information bureau.

"Japan desires peace in the Pacific and so Japan is watching such shipments with grave concern."

His statement was based upon the declared Japanese fear that materials arriving at Vladivostok might never reach the Red armies fighting the Germans in European Russia but might instead remain in the east for possible use against Japan itself.

Senators Discuss Martinique Seizure

George Asserts U. S. Should Anticipate Action by Germany

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Despite the fact that Marshal Petain, chief of the French state, embraced a fuller collaboration with Germany yesterday, a break in relations between the United States and France still depends on whether the Vichy government gives Germany actual military concessions in Africa, it was learned yesterday.

Two of the highest Congressional authorities on foreign affairs, however, declared that the United States must be prepared to seize by force all French possessions in the Western Hemisphere, against the possibility of German occupation.

George Mentions Martinique

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, who recently yielded that post to Connally, asked armed action by the Army, the Navy and Marine Corps, and George specifically named Martinique as one place that it might be necessary to sieze.

Officials in charge of this Government's policy toward France said that the United States is not concerned with steps Petain may take to reorganize France internally, such as delegating full military powers to Vice Premier Admiral Darlan.

In addition, diplomatic quarters were inclined to believe that the latest French agreement with the Nazis does not imply so great a degree of collaboration as surface signs would indicate.

Roosevelt's Return Awaited

Any drastic step would probably await the return to shore of President Roosevelt, who is now on a vacation cruise, it was said.

At the Capitol, however, Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, said:

"All of this means that we might speedily find it necessary to occupy such French territories as Martinique."

Secretary of State Hull at his press conference declined comment on the French situation, declaring he wanted an opportunity to study it further.

Questioned about reports that the United States would sever relations with Vichy if that government gives Germany military basis in Africa, Hull said he would have to await more definite developments before releaving his stand.

Hull was emphatic, however, in denying reports spread in Congress that Lord Beaverbrook, British supply minister, had declared that if the United States did not enter the war in 30 days Great Britain would have to sue for peace.

Hull branded this report as absurd on its face. The assertions were similarly denied in London yesterday by Brendan Bracken, minister of information.

Hull Sees Knox and Stimson

Hull had no comment to make on Japanese newspaper assertions that continued American and British economic pressure on Nippon would bring about the "worst situation" or on statements by Japanese spokesmen that American shipments of supplies to Russia via Vladivostok were a matter of "urgent concern" to the Japanese government.

Hull conferred briefly yesterday with Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of Navy Knox. He said they merely interchanged views on the general war situation.

Senator George, in an earlier statement, declared it was "definitely in the range of possibility" that the United States might "sever all commercial relations with Japan."

George said such relations might be terminated "if Japan takes any further definite steps in the Southern Pacific or if she should move against Russia in Siberia."

Connally charged Petain with committing an act "tragic in the extreme" with "deserting" the American cause in appointing Darlan to the key post.

Connally asserted:

"If Vichy undertakes to deliver possession to Hitler, or gives him permission to establish bases in any French territory in this hemisphere, we should immediately occupy such territory and hold it by armed force."

Indian Princess To Sing Here

MOBLEY LUSHANYA, princess of the Chickasaw Indian tribe, will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" tonight with the San Carlo Opera Company at the Watergate

'Opera Festival' Will Open Tonight At Watergate

The San Carlo Opera Company will present "La Traviata" at the Watergate tonight at 8:15, initiating an "opera festival" that will continue for a week.

At tonight's presentation Mobley Lushanya, princess of the Chickasaw Indian tribe, will appear in tribal costume to sing the "Star-Spangled Banner." Lucille Meusel, coloratura soprano, will sing the prima donna role.

C. C. Cappel, local manager for the opera, announced that parking space, behind the Navy Department building, east of the Lincoln Memorial, will be available.

Bumper Wheat Crop Swells Food Reserves

By the Associated Press

Agriculture Department officials said yesterday this year's bumper crop of wheat assured the Nation of enough supplies to last until the 1943 harvest even if next year's crop should be unusually short.

Likewise, prospects for fair crops of corn and oats and unusually large crops of barley and grain sorghums indicated that feed grains would total nearly 103 million tons, an increase of 4 per cent above last year's larger-than-average production.

Administration farm leaders have been striving to build up food reserves which President Roosevelt said may be needed "to meet emergencies which can as yet be only dimly foreseen."

In a letter to Secretary Wickard, dated July 25, but made public yesterday, the President declared that in this time of crisis "food is a weapon against Hitlerism just as much as munitions and food will continue to be a weapon in all efforts toward insuring a more orderly, prosperous world."

The letter acknowledged an Agriculture Department report on progress of programs designed to convert the large feed supplies into huge reserves of pork, dairy products, poultry products and other foods. The report said agriculture was meeting the situation much more satisfactorily than in the first World War by increasing production in an orderly way "so that our own needs and the needs of our friends can be met without causing scarcity or unduly high prices.

"As you pointed out," the President said, "we need not only abundant production for ourselves and for other nations resisting aggression, but we need reserves to meet emergencies which can as yet be only dimly foreseen. The monstrous forces that naziism has loosed upon the world are ravaging many lands. The first task is to beat down these forces and then to repair the damage they have done to the best of our ability. In this process of rebuilding and rehabilitation, food will be essential."

The wheat supply situation is shown to be unusually favorable, officials said, by the fact that this year's indicated crop of 950,000,000 bushels—the largest since 1919—will be added to a reserve supply of about 400 million bushels from previous years. This total is double the amount the United States normally uses in a year.

A potential reserve of 190,000 youths to help gather the harvest was created yesterday when the Civilian Conservation Corps authorized furloughing of CCC enrollees to assist farmer and orchard operators in this work.

Enrollees desiring to help with getting in the crops will be given temporary leave without pay, and return to their camps when the work is completed.

Will of A. C. Tolson, Jr., Filed in Rockville

The will of Alfred C. Tolson, jr., of Colesville, Md., district, was admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court at Rockville yesterday.

It leaves $500 for masses for deceased members of the Tolson family and a similar amount to each of two children of Walter F. Tolson, deceased, and the residue to the testator's brothers and sisters to be divided among them according to the number of their children. The instrument was executed April 16, 1941. It names Lena V. Brown and Nan T. Bonifant, sisters of the testator, executors.

Reporter Finds She Can Get Tattooed Stockings for $5

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Aug. 12.—Remember me? I'm the cup cake who has been singing "Don't Bring Me Posies When It's Hosies That I Need."

But the boys can start lugging the orchids up to the service entrance any time now. Because the stocking crisis in my life is over. Over, thanks to Charlie Wagner, the Rembrandt of the needle and tattoo artiste supreme of New York, who stepped forward today in the interests of national defense with a surefire solution of the present silk stocking shortage.

For $5 Charlie will tattoo on any gams a pair of hose warranted to last a lifetime and guaranteed to develop no runs, no slits, no errors.

"Positively!" Charlie said today in his studio in the rear of a barber shop at 14 Chatham Square.

"If parachutes they need from silk, I can take care of the stockings," added the maestro, who has been glorifying the human torso for the last 30 years. Charlie figures he is represented in every army and navy in the world.

"What about clocks to begin with?" I parried, a little afraid to go whole hog with a full set of hose on the first bounce.

"What for you want clocks?" snorted Charlie in disgust. "Clocks is something for houses, not legs! Dragons is nice for legs," he suggested. "They coil around neat and fit nice."

"But don't you think dragons a bit dressy for a working girl?" I asked. "After all, I have to wear these legs to the office."

"If dragons ain't yet your type, why don't you try boids or butterflies?" asked Charlie. "With boids or butterflies, I got a real knack. You should see what I done to the girl in Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey!"

"I have!" I said weakly, thinking that maybe cotton stockings wouldn't be so bad after all.

"Maybe you like something kinda patriotic on the legs like the United States Coat of Arms?" Charlie suggested.

The great seal of the United States seemed a little pretentious, too, for everyday use. Charlie seemed disappointed that all I wanted was a neat rose-beige stocking job with no design. That, he said, would take three hours and cost $5. And would I make my appointment for next week on account he is too rushed this week with patriotic emblems to give over to cheese-cake?

In the meantime, I shall get along very nicely with another ersatz sock. At a custom make-up salon in Park Avenue today Miss Lucille Wisnant gave my demi-Dietrichs a fine shellacking with a new liquid stocking that comes out of a bottle and lies flat on the stems.

As I gaze at myself from the knees down, I look like a blood brother to Lo, the poor Indian. An eagle scout badge and a feather headdress ought to come free with every bottle of these stockings.

This liquid stuff is a life saver to gals like myself who were born 30 years too late with the kind of white, sun-proof skin popular when mama was a gal, but which now makes its owner look like something that had crawled out from under a rock.

So hail to progress; Mama painted china; her daughter paints legs. It may be good, but is it art? And it leaves one great problem unsolved: What to do with the garters.

Sir Otto Neimeyer, British Banker, Arrives

New York, Aug. 12.—Sir Otto Neimeyer, British financier and director in the Bank of England, arrived today aboard the Pan American Airways Dixie Clipper, bound for Washington on a secret financial mission involving discussions with the Treasury Department.

Three observers for the United States Marine Corps returned from two months in London—Brig. Gen. Julian Smith and Majs. Christian F. Schlit and Jack P. Julian.

Britain Won't Need an A. E. F.—'at Least Not a Large One'—Duff Cooper Declares

Alfred Duff Cooper, coordinator of British war activities in the Far East, declared here last night that Great Britain will not need an American expeditionary force to win the war—"at least not a large one."

"We may be able to win the war by bombing and by revolts inside the Nazi-dominated countries," the red-faced former minister of information stated on arriving at the National Airport.

Cooper, who is on has way to Singapore, viewed the Far Eastern situation as "very serious" in view of Japanese demands on Thailand (Siam) for military bases similar to those wrested from Indo-China.

His final word on the all-important question of Britain's need for American manpower was:

"I hope the war will be over before that becomes necessary."

Cooper's statement was in line with a declaration early this year by Prime Minister Winston Churchill: "Give us the tools and we'll finish the job."

It conflicted, however, with statements in Cairo last month by Sir Claude Auchinleck and Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, present and former commander in chief of British forces in the Middle East, respectively.

Wavell told an interviewer July 4 that if the war lasted long enough—and he had no illusions that it would be a short one—American manpower would be needed. There is a limit to Britain's own manpower, said Wavell.

Auchinleck declared three days later that United States manpower was needed if the war was to be won properly—"on Germany's own soil."

"I see as much need for American manpower in this war," said Auchinleck, "as in the last. In 12, 14 or 24 months this need will certainly arise. How we are to get into the Germans' country is another matter, but ways and means will present themselves."

Cooper will confer here with Secretary of State Hull and other Administration leaders. He is scheduled to address the National Press Club tomorrow.

To Give Radio Address Sunday

Cooper, who is still a member of the British cabinet, said that he would make a radio address Sunday from New York City.

He has not yet decided on the topic for the speech, he said. When Cooper visited this country before the present blitzkrieg began his speeches aroused criticism because he openly advocated that the United States join Great Britain in military measures against Germany.

Lady Diana Duff Cooper, his wife, the former Diana Manners, did not accompany him to Washington. In the party were Martin Russel and Maj. Lindley Roberts, aides.

Cooper was met at the airport by British Embassy attaches. He arrived aboard a special plane placed at his disposal by American Airlines.

Draft Extension Passed by House

nounced the 203-202 vote as final.

Angry protests rose for the Republican side of the aisle when Rayburn then ruled out of order a motion to reconsider the bill, stating that such a motion had already been announced, and "laid on the table." At one point in his bitter exchange with the G. O. P. members the Speaker snapped, "The Chair does not permit his word to be questioned."

The legislation approved in yesterday's dramatic session would extend by 18 months the maximum service of selectees, National Guardsmen, reservists and enlisted men of the Regular Army. The bill asserts that "the national interest is imperiled" and removes the present limitation of 900,000 on the number of draftees who may be held in the Army at any one time.

Selectees, guardsmen and reserves thus could be held for a total of 30 months, instead of the 12 months now provided by law. Regular Army men who enlisted for one year could be kept for 30 months and soldiers who enlisted for three years could be retained for four and a half years.

Further extension of service can be ordered, under the bill, if "Congress declares that it is in the interests of national defense."

May Stresses Provision

Representative May (Democrat), of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee and sponsor of the bill, in a reference to charge that the present extension of service represents a "breach of faith," said he wanted to emphasize that the 18-month extension can be prolonged.

"I do not want to be misunderstood this time," he said.

At the same time, however, the bill provides that the authority to hold men in service an additional 18 months can be revoked at any time by a concurrent resolution, which is not subject to veto.

Aside from minor differences in terminology, the House bill is similar to the measure approved last Thursday by the Senate.

To avoid another precarious vote in the House, it was thought likely last night that Senate conferees will agree to accept the House version of the measure, report it to the Upper Chamber tomorrow and clear the way for the bill to become law by the end of the week.

$10 Bonus Approved

The House approved, by a vote of 131 to 84, an amendment offered by Representative Healey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, to increase by $10 a month the salary of every selectee and enlisted personnel of the Guard, the reservists and Regular Army for every month served in excess of one year.

Healey told the House his proposal was similar to the Mead amendment, accepted by the Senate last week, but had been clarified to insure that no retroactive pay increases could be claimed.

The roll call on final passage showed 21 Republicans joining 182 Democrats in support of the extension bill. Voting against the measure were 133 Republicans, 65 Democrats, 3 Progressives and 1 American Labor member (Marcantonio, of New York).

The breathtaking vote came a few minutes after the House had rejected by 215 to 190 a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to the Military Affairs Committee to report out a substitute measure authorizing the President to retain the National Guard and reserves for an additional 12 months, but providing no extension of service for draftees.

Earlier in the day many members assumed that passage of the bill by a comfortable margin had been assured. The House had turned down by a vote of 176 to 117 an amendment which would have released selectees after a year's service and permitted retention of Guardsmen and Reservists for an additional 12 months.

An amendment to require release of 50,000 selectees per month in 1942, which its sponsors said would mean an average service of about 15 months for selectees now in the Army, was defeated by a voice vote.

The House showed little interest in another amendment, offered by Representative Hinshaw (Republican), of California, to extend by six months the service of selectees. The proposal was beaten, 97 to 61.

It was when the committee amendment, substituting an 18-month extension for the indefinite extension originally requested by the War Department, was accepted by a voice vote that it became apparent that opponents of the bill were making no serious effort to modify the measure and would rally their maximum strength for the test on the bill itself.

Debate sharpened as the House neared the final roll call.

Representative Johnson (Democrat), of Texas, ranking majority member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, was one of several Administration speakers who warned that the mounting tension in the Far East and the French decision to "collaborate" with Germany proved beyond doubt an imminent danger to America.

"It is time to quit playing with the defense of America," Johnson cried.

In reference to a Republican member's assertion that Representatives voting for the draft extension bill would place their political future in jeojardy, the Texan said:

"We have sunk to a low level if we can be swayed by an appeal like that."

Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, said polls taken when the extension proposal first came to Congress revealed that it had no chance of passing the House, adding, "Everybody knows the pressure that has been applied here in the last few days."

He predicted that it would be "the same story" if Congress were asked to remove the present ban on service of selectees and National Guardsmen outside the Western Hemisphere.

Would Ease Examinations

"Or perhaps the President will decide that Dakar is in the Western Hemisphere," he continued. "Then the infamy will be complete."

Aside from the Healey "bonus" amendment, the only amendment offered from the floor and approved yesterday was one to ease present regulations on physical examinations for insurance for selectees. Among the defeated amendments were proposals to:

Give priority to college students in release of selectees after 12 months' service.

Provide for release after 12 months of selectees with jobs waiting for them.

Furnish free transportation to soldiers on furlough.

Give a $30-a-month bonus, to be paid out after their discharge, for every month in excess of one year served by selectees or enlisted personnel of the Guard, reserves or Regular Army.

Release after 12 months of service all selectees or Guardsmen who are married.

War Building Site Up to Senate

building could be located," said Senator Maloney, after the committee's decision had been made public. The Senator added that he didn't believe the committee had given the project adequate study.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, chairman of the subcommittee that considered the bill in conjunction with seven billion dollars in defense appropriations, declared that most members agreed that the War Department, now scattered in 17 buildings, needed to be put under one roof.

"Once agreed upon that proposition," Adams stated, "the next question to be decided was one of sites. Sites for a building of such an enormous size are, of course, limited. There are no satisfactory locations in the District for a single building of that size."

"There was no harshness during committee consideration of the building, no real controversy," Adams added. "I imagine, however, that when we get on the floor we are going to have some—well—discussion."

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, committee chairman, told reporters he voted for locating the building in Arlington County, both in the subcommittee and the full committee.

"Some of you fellows," Glass said, "have been writing about my influence with the committee, but I only talked in there about one-tenth of the time some of the other members talked."

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director, last night estimated at between four and five million dollars the amount it will be necessary to spend immediately in improving approaches to District bridges to enable traffic to move freely to and from the proposed building.

For the most part the improvements are a part of Whitehurst's highway development program, but if they are to be financed from District highway revenue they must be staggered over more than three years. Furthermore, Whitehurst said, if all of the necessary bridge improvements are to be made in this period or earlier, the District will be required to defer construction of the South Capitol Street bridge, now No. 2 on its highway priority list.

Overton, however, has promised to rescue the District from a possible financial dilemna. He said yesterday that unless arrangements are made to have the Federal Government pay for access roadways on the District, as well as the Virginia side of the Potomac River—the money to come from defense roads appropriations—he will introduce separate legislation.

Federal payment of road costs, he said, was proposed to the subcommittee and favorably received. Before determining action to be taken in behalf of the District, Senator Overton said he would request accurate estimates of the cost of building access roads on both sides of the river.

The text of President Roosevelt's letter to Senator Adams, suggesting that the committee approve only enough money for a building half the size originally proposed, was made public yesterday in conjunction with the record of subcommittee hearings.

"When this project was first brought to my attention, I agreed that it should be explored," the President said. "Since then I have had an opportunity to look into the matter personally and have some reservations which I would like to impart to your committee.

The President then added that he questioned the advisability of constructing the entire building until further study of traffic and transportation difficulties had been made. He asked the committee to reconsider the proposal that the new War Department building on Twenty-third Street Northwest be assigned to the Navy. He also urged that, after the emergency, Congress should provide funds for completion of the Federal Rectangle plan.

"To defer completion of this plan would constitute a severe setback to the development of this section," Mr. Roosevelt said.

It would be "unwise," he added, to provide for more than 20,000 workers on the Arlington site.

Ickes' protest took the line that location of the build as proposed would destroy the beauty of Potomac Park by converting it into a traffic way.

"In my capacity as head of the National Parks," Ickes declared, "we are already having a terrific time preserving the parks as parks and preventing them from becoming highways and parking plots for motorists."

Bill for 100 Police to Get Action

"I am going to keep right after them," Cochran promised. "I'll get a hearing on this proposition. You can count on that because I think this is essential."

"I realize," Cochran said earlier, "that as a member of Congress, I am responsible in part for legislation under which the District of Columbia must operate.

"With 19 rape cases recorded since January 1, 1941, no other argument should be necessary for immediate action by the Congress in passing my bill.

"The attention of the entire United States has been called to the condition in Washington by reason of the murders and rapes that have occurred here in recent months. I, of course, have read of the operation of gangsters in large cities in the past, but nowhere has there come to my attention a condition anywhere near approaching the record of attacks on women as in the District."

Cochran had praise for Inspector Edward J. Kelly, acting Metropolitan Police superintendent, as honest and fearless, and predicted that the man who will eventually succeed Maj. Ernest W. Brown would, "if left alone," develop a police department which will be a "credit to Congress and the District."

The legislator said he was informed that one uniformed policeman is responsible for a beat that extends from Calvert Street near Cochran's residence in the Shoreham Hotel "all the way to Chevy Chase Circle on Connecticut Avenue."

"I do not think there is a large city in the United States where such a condition exists and the only help that one policeman has is two officers in a scout car," Cochran declared.

Cochran contrasted sentences handed down by Washington courts in recent years with the severer penalties of "nearly 30 years ago."

"In those days a criminal stayed away from Washington," he declared, adding his belief that increased District crime is attributable, in part, to "rather lenient" judges.

Billion Stricken Out of Army Bill

of time necessary to make them."

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, subcommittee chairman, argued in the committee that by the War Department's own testimony the special ordnance equipment was over and above supplies for the 3,000,000-man Army.

Adams contended that much of the material would be "obsolete" in two years, and that the Army should "wait a bit and get the benefit of some of the lessons that can be learned from Europe rather than start in immediately on a program which is in a measure a surplus program."

Army spokesmen replied that advanced types and new developments would be incorporated into 4,600 medium tanks and 1,500 light tanks as well as in antitank, antiaircraft and artillery supplies built under the program. They said it took time to build this equipment and a start must be made now; that as soon as constructed they would be used and absorbed in the three million-man force.

Listing new types included in the $1,347,053,550 defeated item, Maj. Gen. C. C. Wesson, chief of ordnance, said it would permit manufacture of an improved antiaircraft gun of larger caliber than our present design, and self-propelled mounts, none of which the Army has today.

Wesson said these items accounted for seveal hundred million dollars alone, and in addition the Army is making a light tank and a medium tank of a definite standard.

Published hearings meanwhile revealed that an airborne infantry battalion would be organized under new units to be formed with additional funds shortly to be asked.

Maj. Gen. R. C. Moore told the committee the Army will recommend an increase of 150,000 men in the authorized enlisted strength, to be organized into two new armored divisions and various small filler units.

Announcing the committee cut, Senator Adams disclosed the committee acted also to prohibit Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, from obligating the Government for ordnance equipment in excess of the ordnance appropriation.

Printed hearings of the committee developed arguments for and against the cut by committee members and reiterated statements by the Army that the special ordnance fund was needed.

Lieut. Col. W. A. Wood, jr., repeated contentions by OPM Chief Knudsen that new funds for airplanes were needed to maintain the airplane industry at a level which would assure the largest possible output of planes.

"We have applied that same thing to these tanks and antitank weapons," said Wood. "It is desirable at this time that additional funds be provided for the procurement of equipment in order to provide an adequate volume of orders which will keep industry at maximum capacity in the production of certain categories and essential materiel."

Adams replied that war developments would outmode many of the present types.

"We ought to make some allowance and not commit our whole national capacity to provide these things, these instruments of war, unless we have a real need for them now."

He said the Army is trying "to do the impossible" in getting mass production by stabilizing patterns and at the same time trying to get new types.

Gen. Wesson replied, "We can't stop, we have to go on."

The Navy Department yesterday gave the management of the strike-bound Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. until 11 o'clock this morning to accept a Defense Mediation Board recommendation for settling its labor dispute, it was learned from reliable sources.

The alternative to acceptance, the company was told, is Federal seizure of the Kearny, N. J., shipyards, loaded with $493,000,000 of Naval and Maritime Commission contracts.

An executive order for Government occupation of the yards is now being drafted in the Department of Justice, it was learned. At the same time, other "necessary steps" are being taken, an informed official disclosed, preliminary to taking over the plant.

Reply Is Due Today

The ultimatum was said to have been served on the shipbuilding company's president, L. H. Korndorff, during two conferences yesterday with Navy Secretary Knox and OPM Labor Chief Sidney Hillman. The reply is scheduled at an 11 a. m. conference today.

At the conclusion of yesterday's second conference, Knox told reporters that no decision had been reached.

"The whole thing," he said, "is in the midst of discussion."

From other sources, however, it was learned that the Navy, the Maritime Commission, the OPM and the Defense Mediation Board were agreed on the drastic step unless the company accepts the settlement formula.

Apparently ignored in the conferences was a telegram sent to Knox and other officials earlier in the day by Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey, asking that the seizure step be withheld because it was "fraught with the greatest danger to labor, industry and all citizens of the United States."

"Some Other Answer"

"When labor and capital complacently encourage the Government to take over industrial plants, they are contributing to the creation of a system which will destroy the very freedom that we are arming ourselves to preserve. There must be some other answer," Edison said.

Edison was believed to have alluded to demands of the C. I. O. shipbuilders union involved that the Government take over the yards, and to Korndorff's recent offer on Monday to turn over the huge plant, employing 17,000 men, to the Navy for operation.

An authoritative source indicated, however, that following Korndorff's offer, the company had asked for more time. The source characterized the offer as "phoney."

The plant has been shut down since Thursday.

The only issue not settled, and the sole cause of the strike, is a union demand for a "maintenance of membership" clause, providing that all present and future union members be required to maintain membership in the union in good standing, as a condition of employment.

In public recommendations, the Mediation Board asked the company to accept this provision. The company refused and the strike followed.

Other Disputes

Elsewhere, the Associated Press reported these labor developments:

A back-to-work movement was said by company officials to be under way at the Curtiss-Wright Corporation's propeller division, Caldwell, N. J., where Government orders have been held up by an A. F. L. machinist strike.

The strike was called after the company declined to negotiate with the union at this stage over a demand for wage increases of 20 cents an hour over unannounced scales. The company took the position that it could not deal with any union until after the Labor Board had certified the winner of an election held last Thursday. In that vote the Propeller Craft, an independent union, defeated the A. F. of L. local.

Canton, Ohio.—The C. I. O. steel workers organizing committee announced settlement of a strike of 250 employes in two departments of the Timken Roller Bearing Co. The union said workers would return to their jobs under the same working conditions and wage scales as before the strike, while the defense mediation board attempted to adjust differences.

Pullman Strike

Bessemer, Ala.—The C. I. O. steel workers union called a strike at the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co., contending the company had ignored demands for a wage increase. A union official said demands included wage increases of 10 cents an hour, the check-off system for collecting union dues and collective bargaining rights. The present minimum, he added, was 48½ cents a hour. The plant employs about 1100.

Washington—Wage increases aggregating about five million dollars a year for 20,000 employes of Armour & Co. were announced by the Defense Mediation Board. The agreement also including a master contract covering 13 plants and establishment of grievance machinery. Issues of overtime pay and additional compensation for drafted employes will be subject to further negotiation, with no strikes, slowdowns or lockouts authorized during the negotiations. The plants are in Chicago, Kansas City, South St. Paul, East St. Louis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Birmingham, Sioux City, Los Angeles, Mason City, Iowa; St. Joseph, Mo.; Denver, Fargo, N. Dak., and Omaha.

Two of Britain's Greatest R. A. F. Aces Reported Missing

Bader, Noted Legless Flier, and Lock, Who Shot Down 30, Are Lost

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 12.—Two of Britain's great flying aces—Wing Commander Douglas R. Bader, a 30-year-old legless flier credited with downing 15 German planes, and acting Flight Lieut. E. S. Lock, a 30-time winner, were reported missing today.

Bader, ten years older than the average R. A. F. pilot, held the Distinguished Service Order and the Distinguished Flying Cross with bar and was in the select company of only one other so honored, the South African, A. G. Malan.

He was an audacious stunt pilot before the war and in 1931 he lost both legs in a flying accident while serving with the R. A. F. The authorities had serious misgivings about his artificial legs, but when the war began he argued his way back into service and had fought brilliantly.

In one night during the worst of the German assaults upon Britain his squadron brought down 14 Nazi planes and he got the Distinguished Flying Order on that occasion because it was found that in the Hurricanes that he commanded not a Nazi bullet had lodged.

A year ago his ship's engine failed in the takeoff and he crashed, bending his metal legs. They were straightened out and in half an hour he was in the air again.

Lock, a youngster of 21, was so short that his friends called him "Sawnoff Lockie," and in one week last September he gained nine victories. After undergoing 15 operations he was decorated at Buckingham Palace. He held the Distinguished Service Order and the Distinguished Flying Cross with bar.

7 Americans Die in British Plane Crash

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 12.—Seven Americans and 15 British and Canadian officers were killed Sunday in the crash of a large transocean airplane into a hillside just after leaving a British airport, it was announced today.

The big plane was believed to have been heading back to Canada with crews to ferry American-made bombers to Britain. Eight of the victims were Canadians, six British and one from Australia. On the death list were 11 captains, 10 radio operators and a flying engineer.

A dog carrying a piece of plane wreckage in his mouth led to the discovery of the plane. The dog's master, a farmer, started a search and found the wreckage scattered over the hillside.

The R. A. F. ferry command in Montreal gave the following list of American dead:

Capt. George T. Harris, Lawrence, Kans.; Capt. Watt M. King, Little Rock, Ark.; Capt. Hoyt R. Judy, Dallas, Tex.; Capt. D. J. Duggan, Winthrop, Mass.; Capt. James Wixen, Los Angeles; Capt. J. J. Roulstone, Long Beach, Calif.; Flight Engineer E. G. Reeves, Roslyn Heights, N. Y.

Judy was a veteran of 1,500 flying hours and two years on the Braniff Airlines' Dallas-Chicago run. A former Navy flier, he was 23 and married.

Reeves was 26, single, and a veteran of four and one-half years service as flight engineer of Transcontinental & Western Air. Roulstone was 27, single, a former employe of United Airlines. His nearest relative was given as Mrs. J. G. Kirk, of Long Beach.

Duggan, 37, was married and had two sons. He volunteered in Canada two years ago. King was a former cotton duster and had flown since he was 13. He was married and had expected to quit the ferry service when his contract expired, next month.

Harris was 34 and married. He was assigned this year to the ferry service. Wixen was 28, a former T. W. A. and American Airlines pilot. He joined the R. A. F. four months ago. Born in Russia, Wixen had lived as a boy in Newark, N. J.

War's Ripping, (Hic) English Butchers Say

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 12.—It's going to be a merrie, merrie winter for ye butchers of olde England, those thirstie despots of ye cutting blocke.

Ever since the rigors of rationing set in, the butchers (known here as meat purveyors) have been a group apart, men not catering but catered to for favors.

Discovering early in the war that the best way to get a choice joint was to present the butchers with a present, customers have poured favors on them to the extent that some butchers are cracking under the strain.

With Lord Woolton announcing that rationing is to continue, there are grave shakings of heads in many quarters, at Horsham in Sussex for one.

There is a butcher there who before the war was a model husband, coming home early in the evening and leading a quiet, almost repressed home life.

With rationing came the revolution.

Someone discovered he had a hidden taste for drink. The word spread. Seeking a choice roast for the weekend, a housewife presented the butcher with a bottle. Result, choice roast. It happened again and again.

The butcher didn't violate rationing, he just gave the best cuts to givers of the best presents. All was perfectly legal but hard on the butcher's constitution.

As housewives market early and husbands market late he got it coming and going; his shop often was the site of gay scenes with the cleaver-brandishing butcher in a merry mood, full of friendship, song and good will toward all.

"His wife can't understand the change," a customer explained. "There must be butchers' wives all over England in the same fix."

The housewife's husband, going the bottle-bearers one better, takes the butcher home in his car.

"After he gets tired of that," said the householder, "I suppose we'll have him for a weekend guest. He certainly goes at a fast pace."

Storm Ends Air Raid on Chungking

Copyright by New York Times

Chungking, Aug. 12.—A thunderstorm Monday afternoon ended the worst ordeal of air bombardment Chungking has ever endured, bringing to a close a succession of Japanese air raids on the capital that had gone on with only short intervals between them since Friday afternoon.

From Sunday morning until Monday afternoon Japanese planes bombed Chungking eight times and these raids came on top of six separate attacks between Friday afternoon and Saturday night. The raiding squadrons were small, ranging from 3 to 27 planes, but they spaced their arrivals in such a way as to keep the city under an almost perpetual alarm. The inhabitants were constantly in the dugouts.

Storm Topples Pershing Statue in Versailles

Versailles, German - occupied France, Aug. 11 (Delayed) (AP).—The statue of Gen. John J. Pershing in Lafayette Park tumbled from its pedastel during a violent summer storm today and was smashed into hundreds of pieces.

A statue of Lafayette, on the other side of the highway, remained standing. The statue of Pershing was merely a plaster cast, placed on the pedestal preliminary to the erection of a permanent bronze figure.

Influence Racket

Officials have long been concerned over reports that commission men employed to obtain defense contracts for manufacturers are garnering rich pickings in Washington. As early as last spring Undersecretary of War Patterson reminded the Truman Committee that Army contracts carry a clause giving the Government cancellation rights in case a contractor pays a commission (for obtaining the contract) to any person who is not a regularly maintained selling agent. Building contractors, he said, are required to give affidavits that no commission has been paid or arranged for. But Mr. Patterson admitted that adroit people can find many ways of cloaking commissions that ultimately come out of the taxpayer's pocket. More recently Donald M. Nelson, head of OPM's division of purchases, also warned manufacturers of the folly of employing go-betweens who allegedly have some sort of pull with Government procurement agencies. But the practice apparently continues.

There are really two distinct types of work done by commission men employed to land Government contracts. No reasonable justification can be found for hiring the sort of go-between who makes his living because of his presumed pull. If his claims are justified, then he must be in contact with corrupt or incompetent Government officials. If his claims are false, then he is obtaining money from his employer for services not rendered. On the other hand, there may be real need for well-informed men who know how to make contacts in a legitimate way for concerns seeking defense orders. Many businessmen, no doubt, find it time consuming and often futile to wander about Washington in search of contracts. The question is where to draw the line between the legitimate agent and the influence racketeer.

If commission men of the latter type are adding extra costs to the defense program, a Congressional investigation is in order. Perhaps, too, the Government's purchasing system needs to be reformed so as to make it easier for the businessman to make his own contacts with defense procurement agencies. Certainly we should not tolerate the payment of exorbitant commissions for landing defense contracts. Calls for sacrifices on the part of millions of Americans would soon turn sour if profiteering of that type were permitted in Washington.

New Capital Sources

Despite the tremendous expansion in business induced by the defense program, the Commercial and Financial Chronicle reports that corporate security flotations in July were the smallest for any month in over a year. For the first seven months of 1941 new corporate issues (exclusive of refunding issues) totaled only $408,000,000. Although that figure is above the level for the first seven months of 1939 and 1940, it is considerably less than half the volume of new issues in the corresponding period of 1937, and below the 1938 comparable total.

What is the explanation of this seeming paradox of expanding industrial activity and stagnant capital markets? As a matter of fact, a large volume of new capital is going into productive channels, but it is being supplied to a large extent by the Government. For instance, in the first seven months of this year Government credit agencies issued $1,253,000,000 of new capital issues (excluding refunding offerings). That is about three times the volume of private corporate issues, and the total includes none of the direct obligations of the Federal Treasury. The scope of the direct borrowing operations is indicated by the fact that the gross public debt increased from $45,025,000,000 at the end of 1940 to $49,513,000,000 by the end of July. With the Government absorbing a steadily increasing amount of investment funds and at the same time supplying a large part of the new capital needed for various emergency and defense purposes, it is not surprising to find the market for new issues of private corporations still at low ebb.

France Joins The Axis

Even in the heyday of his tenure as second in command in the government of unoccupied France, Pierre Laval never had the power that has now been vested in his successor, Admiral Jean Darlan. Indeed, the position which Darlan now occupies in the Vichy regime, with the consent of Marshal Petain, is comparable only to that occupied by Hitler in Germany in the period prior to the death of President von Hindenburg. Nominally Darlan will still be subordinate to Petain, even as Hitler was nominally subordinate to the aged field marshal. Actually the reorganization of the French cabinet makes Darlan dictator of Vichy in everything but name. Vice-premier, minister of the navy, minister of foreign affairs and defense minister, he will control all of France's armed forces. An earlier decree placed him over Gen. Weygand with regard to all questions of policy affecting France's African empire.

The purpose of this concentration of authority is obvious. Darlan is completely persona grata to Adolf Hitler as, indeed, he should be since he has out-Lavaled Laval in his subservience to the Nazis. He is not popular with the French people. Nor is his policy of all-out collaboration with the Third Reich. This Marshal Petain admitted in his radio address yesterday. It is a fact beyond question that the overwhelming majority of Frenchmen and Frenchwomen pray for the victory of Britain, since they recognize that only through a British victory can France ever become free again.

The French people and their desires are not, however, the most powerful influence in Vichy. It is not their wish but the relentless pressure of the Nazi on the Petain regime that has caused France to align herself with the enemies of civilization. The aged marshal gave as one of his reasons for this pitiful action the fact that Germany is fighting Russia. But Admiral Darlan to whom he has entrusted dictatorial power was clamoring for such collaboration months ago, when Germany and Russia were still on the same side, when a German attack on the Soviet Union was only a heavily discounted possibility.

But whatever the reasons that prompted the Vichy regime to take this tragic step, the implications for the United States are clear. We must fully recognize the extent to which Vichy is controlled by Berlin. And every move of the reorganized Vichy regime must be watched, with particular emphasis upon strengthening our defenses against a now probable German move into Dakar.

Slap-Dash Planning

Approval of the War Department's 35-million-dollar building project by the Senate Appropriations Committee represents a great victory for slap-dash planning. This immense project designed to house 40,000 Government workers in Arlington County involves a major question of policy. For the first time since the Government became established at Washington it is proposed to move an executive department to a neighboring State. Yet that project was not submitted for analysis by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission or the Fine Arts Commission. It slipped through the House as part of an eight-billion-dollar defense appropriation bill. And it is now scheduled to go to the floor of the Senate as part of the same bill without even being considered by that body's Public Buildings and Grounds Committee.

Since plans to erect so immense a structure between the Potomac River and Arlington Cemetery became known they have thrown the city's planners into something of a panic. In ordinary times their protests against the use of land set aside for extension of the national cemetery, and against the concentration of 40,000 employes in so small an area, would carry a great deal of weight. But at present many legislators seem willing to override any objection on the ground that drastic measures are necessary to meet the national emergency. That attitude should be thoughtfully analyzed.

Of course, the country is confronted by an international crisis. The needs of the War and Navy Departments to prepare them for any eventuality must be met. The point is, however, that those needs can be met without authorizing the construction of a permanent building that may become an eyesore and a source of acute traffic congestion for the indefinite future. Rather than risk such a blunder, it would be preferable to erect a temporary building on the old experimental farm site. That would create a temporary eyesore, to be sure, but it would also relieve the acute pressure for more office space, while giving city planners an opportunity to work out the problem of permanent housing for the War Department on a more satisfactory basis.

In any event, the issue is too big to be disposed of by attaching a rider to an appropriation bill. The first step should be to eliminate this item from the defense supply bill so that it may be considered on its own merits. Then the least that can be expected is that it will be referred to the Senate Buildings and Grounds Committee for proper study before final action is taken.

Oil Pipeline

Eleven large oil companies propose to finance a new 1820-mile pipeline system—the longest in the world—designed to pour a quarter of a million barrels of crude oil daily into the New York-Philadelphia area. This is an enormous undertaking; it will cost 70 million dollars at least, take nearly a year to build, and it will divert men and materials from designated "defense" projects. Were it advisable to gamble on the assumption that the war will be over in a year, there would be serious objections to construction of the pipelines at this time.

But there is no telling when Britain will be in a position to return to us tankers which are being diverted to her use, and no telling how serious our own oil shortages here in the East will be in the months ahead. The pipeline system, therefore, seems clearly justified as a defense measure. The President should lose no time in so designating it, since such action is necessary before construction can begin.

Nor should Petroleum Coordinator Ickes lose any more time in haranguing the public with threats of oil rationing. If supplies are being used too rapidly, as reported, and if voluntary restriction does not relieve the pressure sufficiently—and Mr. Ickes says it does not—then the sensible thing to do is to institute some form of rationing immediately. To wait is to magnify future difficulties. The American motorist is not purposely perverse. Once he realizes that a shortage of petroleum products is unavoidable he can be depended upon to accept rationing as a necessary evil.

Little Eva

It is more than 90 years since Harriet Beecher Stowe poured out her heart in a story which she sent to the National Era, a weekly antislavery paper published here in Washington. The editor printed it and it became one of the greatest publishing sensations of all time. When Mrs. Stowe wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" she had no idea that it would be dramatized or that future generations would love to recall how they laughed and cried with the characters she created. Indeed, the number of persons living today who have witnessed various stage versions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is legion. For them, particularly, the death at 93 of the original Eva, Mrs. Cordella Howard MacDonald, will evoke tender memories of a little girl who, dying in the presence of her grief-stricken family, saw "the crystal gates, wide—wide open."

Mrs. MacDonald first played the role at the old Museum in Troy, N. Y., in 1852. In later years she often attended revivals of the play but, it is said, she never approved of the introduction of bloodhounds—there were no bloodhounds, it seems, in the original production which was adapted from the novel by her cousin and in which her father, mother and uncle also appeared. Bloodhounds or not, the play has lived on and retained its powerful appeal, even in these times. In a 1933 revival, headed by Otis Skinner and Fay Bainter, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" had a three-week run in New York, instead of the one week announced. Doubtless it will continue to be revived from time to time, for its protest against human slavery lies forever close to the hearts of free men.

AND WHAT IS BEST

By God's design,
At His desire,
The sluggard swine
Sleep in the mire;
And serpents crawl,
And falcons fly,
And tares grow tall,
And seasons die.
With His intent
The huntsman stalks
The subtle scent
Where beauty walks.
Foreseen, foreknown,
As He has willed,
The arrow's flown;
The blood is spilled.
But at His word,
In moonlight pale,
Have lovers heard
The nightingale;
Have mothers hummed
Their babes to dream
As raindrops drummed
By sill and beam;
And what is best
He did intend.
All plowmen rest

Polls

Representative Stephen A. Day, of Illinois, is taking a national poll on the present crisis in world affairs. His reply postcard asks, should (a) "the United States enter the war?" or (b) "stay out of the war?"

The manner of asking the question exactly suits the game of the isolationists, pacifists, also the enemies of democracy and civilization. He might have put the question even better by asking if one (a) liked peace? or (b) preferred war!

U. S. Special Police Bill

The person who wrote a letter saying the United States Special Police who guard the lives and property in our Government buildings do not deserve a raise must not have noticed the great change in personnel that has taken place on the guard forces.

Many young guards have gone to work from the junior custodial register which requires a high scholastic standing; many have completed as much as three years of college work. These men will not stay unless their wages are raised, even though they would like to do so.

Why spend millions of dollars for equipment and care not a whit who is responsible for it? Would you trust a stranger with the combination of your safe? With every Government building adding new defense agencies handling confidential and highly important technical secrets, wouldn't it be better to retain a man whose integrity is beyond reproach and whose character is tried and found worthy rather than add any new Tom, Dick or Harry who may come along?

If a raise is impossible, why not permit those who can qualify (most of the Treasury guards can) to do routine police work such as marking cars or serving summons or subpenas a few hours a day on their time off at extra pay and release regular officers for such duty as patrolling the out-of-the-way park places which have been the scenes of so many sex crimes of late. These special police officers could retain their uniforms and badges as well as being armed wherever necessary.

Washington, Aug. 10.

I trust The Post will grant me space such as G. Hartman Reed received for his learned dissertation anent the Federal guards.

He goes to great length expounding theories that we guards receive too much salary as it is. I wonder if the gent has ever tried to support a family and make ends meet on $96.50 per month or longer for some pleasure which an inadequate salary denied.

JOSEPH E. PLUNKETT.
Washington, Aug. 7.

Mr. Reed launched quite a vigorous attack upon the former service men who were disabled in the World War. Many of them are serving as officers of the guard force. In the group in which I am employed we have no disabled officers. I do not know any who draw retirement pay, but if any do they are not any too well paid for the tremendous responsibility which rests on their shoulders.

We are the members of the Uniformed Force U. S. Secret Service, who are appointed by the United States Government as such, and not watchmen.

Regarding qualifications for this position, 95 per cent of the applicants fail to meet the rigid qualifications. The remaining 5 per cent have to pass an extensive course of training in first aid, jujitsu, fire fighting, detection and handling of suspicious packages, bombs and infernal machines, an intensive course in the use of firearms plus a rigid physical exam and a stiff character investigation.

It may interest you to know that we are under orders not to surrender but to "shoot it out" in case of an attempted holdup. Would you endanger your life under these circumstances for $1200 per annum?

PVT. RALPH E. FRAVEL.

Out of 25 new men called in the last two months, only five are still working as watchmen—watchmen of valuable and vital Government documents, maps, files. I am leaving this week because $25 a week is no salary for a man.

M. NEWHOUSE.
Washington, Aug. 7.

For the purpose of making the record straight I wish to reply to the letter of Sergt. Donald C. Lewis, of August 7, regarding the proposed salary increases of Government building guards from Grade Cu-3 ($1200-$1500) to $1500-$1900 per annum.

I was not motivated by a sense of personal prejudice as implied by Mr. Lewis in opposing the pending bill before a Senate committee. I oppose the pending bill because it is fundamentally wrong and unsound in principle. It proposes to bestow special benefits on a single group of Government servants without regard to other thousands of underpaid employes who are as entitled to a salary increase as any one group of Government employes. It proposes to give blanket wholesale raises in salaries to guards or Government watchmen which are incompatible with their educational qualifications and requirements.

Let me cite a concrete case. Some time ago a Government truck driver and an elevator operator in a Government building applied for transfers as guards. As a truck driver and elevator operator their salaries were around $1020 or $1080 per annum. As guards their salaries were raised to $1320. If the pending bill is enacted into law the same truck driver and elevator operators whose only civil service ratings are under this category or grade will be drawing $1500 per annum with a mandatory increase of $100 a year for every year until they reach the maximum of $1900 per annum.

Recently the United States Civil Service Commission announced a competitive examination for the following highly technical professions (and compare them with the proposed salaries of guards and their officers, whose average educations is that of grammar school, with the exception of a very few, perhaps, who have some high school education): Dental hygienist, $1620; medical technician, $1620; senior inspector, ship construction, $2600; junior medical officer, $2000 (and this job requires four years from a Class A medical school).

I say emphatically that a separate bill to increase guard salaries is unnecessary. I repeat, the passage of the Ramspeck-Mead bill will correct inequalities and unfairness in the present inadequate pay of guards.

At present, a guard may be promoted from the ranks to sergeant, lieutenant, captain or inspector without even taking a civil service examination, so long as he has some connection on Capitol Hill. Promotion should be on the basis of merit alone, and by competitive examination.

If these gentlemen want higher salaries, then I propose that they submit to a much more difficult civil service examination than they are now allowed to take.

Protective Seizure

Let America seize Dakar and Casablanca protectively now before it is too late, before Hitler takes them or has them handed over to him by the men of Vichy, "to protect."

Hitler is making every effort to get control of both these African bases. He is putting the screws on the Vichy government, and the Vichy government is not a free agent. However much Marshal Petain may wish to resist these new demands from Berlin, it is obviously only a question of time, a short time, before he will be forced to yield. The recent half-hearted assurances from Vichy that the African bases will not be surrendered are worthless. Look at Syria, and next Indo-China!

Hitler is also starting pressure on Portugal for concessions in the Azores and Cape Verdes.

With control of African or island submarine and air bases—or "permission to use them"—Hitler could do incalculable damage and make the Battle of the Atlantic far more serious than it already is. His position there would be a direct threat to us in America, as well as to Britain's safety. The threat would be followed by immediate action. Even a fool wouldn't doubt that.

Furthermore, our seizure of Dakar would be the best proof we could give South America of the sincerity of our "good neighbor" professions. It would also be a genuine service and kindness to France. And while we're about it, why not recognize the free French as the de facto government of France?

Boys In Fountains

Reference is made to a letter to the editor, published August 8, about swimming in the fountain in Franklin Park.

Washington is a big city with excellent recreational facilities but they are a long way off to a small boy living near Franklin Park. At least the distance seems greater to a boy than to a man. That this is true will be confirmed by anyone who visits the scenes of his childhood after a long absence.

I don't know the boys but I suppose they will grade about average, all of them being a nuisance at times. However, I would like to call attention to an incident which happened last summer. My wife was throwing pennies in the fountain and the boys would scramble for them. Inadvertently she pitched in a dime and exclaimed, "O, I didn't mean to do that." After we had walked away some distance one of the boys came running after us. He said, "Lady, here's your dime, you said you didn't mean to throw it; we found it." Boys like that are not unsightly. It would be a fine thing if every fountain in town was overflowing with them.

'Old-Hose' Drive

When I took textiles at college we studied the reworking of wool and silk. We learned that old wool and old silk may be cleaned, bleached, and then reworked.

As we fear that there will be a shortage of silk in the United States why could not old silk hose be collected and reworked. The aluminum drive proved very successful so why not conduct an "Old Hose" drive.

Many women have old hosiery in their dresser drawers, I myself have several pairs. Many people, especially those in the Middle West and the New England States, save discarded hose for the purpose of making braided rugs. I know they would be only too glad to give up these old hose for national defense.

The Post Impressionist

No Dinner

Pucharo was a favorite dish, especially when prepared by Faustina, the chola cook who came early mornings from Callao to La Punta, returning when the day's work had been done. Various vegetables and tender meat, boiled as only Faustina knew how, were enriched by a delicious gravy to be poured over fluffy potatoes and complete an evening meal without compare.

So many tidbits were in Faustina's pucharo that when, on a late afternoon in 1879, I was deprived of them by the President of Peru it was not possible to avoid experiencing resentment.

That was the first year of the war between Peru and Chile, waged to determine which country should control the nitrate beds that blazed white under a tropic sun along the coastal plain.

Naturally much interest centered in Callao Harbor where warships of various types rode at anchor, awaiting orders to steam into the open and engage the enemy. An attractive magnet they proved to be for members of the Callao Rowing Club—English and Americans—when they went for daily spins.

Having been made coxswain of an eight-oared shell I had a better view of what was in the harbor than did the men who labored on sliding seats. So it happened that I spied the State barge soon after it pulled away from the mole. Several uniformed officers sat in the stern sheets and in the center of the group was a man clad in civilian costume who sported a wide blue ribbon across his shirt front.

"There's President Prado," I said to the stroke oar. "Likely he's going to inspect the Huascar. The barge is headed that way."

"Make a circle," said Stroke, "and we'll tag them."

But the barge was not making for a warship. It was being steered toward the Pacific Steam Navigation Co.'s side-wheeler Islay, which lay beyond the fringe of shipping with the blue Peter at the fore, indicating sailing day, and steam mixed with smoke coming from the funnel was proof of an early departure.

Stroke, being told this, said to lay alongside; that it was early and we could see what was up. "Probably going on board to bid somebody goodby," he added.

The chief executive was unaccompanied when he went up the side ladder and immediately disappeared beyond the passengers who had crowded near the rail.

Barely a minute elapsed before a quartermaster stepped on the platform at the head of the ladder and called down to the sailors in the barge to cast off as the ladder was about to be hauled up.

They stared at him stupidly and several officers rose from their seats and commenced to gesture.

"Cast off! I say," bawled the quartermaster. "Cast off or your boat will be swamped. Don't you see that the anchor is coming up and that the paddle wheels are turning?"

"But our president is on your ship," cried an officer. "Are you going to carry him off?"

That instant Prado appeared at the wall. "My countrymen," he called down, "I am going abroad that Peru may be saved."

That was the last ever seen of him in South America. He did nothing to save his country, but judged by the amount of securities he took with him he made every effort to save himself.

Dinner was half over when I sat down to table at La Punta, my appetite reinforced by the tantalizing odors coming from a dish of pucharo.

"What has kept you so late?" was a natural question, to which I briefly replied, "President Prado has run away. He is on the Islay, bound for Panama."

"What nonsense!" exclaimed Father.

"I saw him go on board and heard him call out that he was going abroad to save his country."

"Leave the table," ordered Father, who had been an Army officer and was something of a martinet. "I was with the President in Lima at 2 o'clock, arranging for the salvage of a schooner that went on a reef at Arica."

"He was out in the bay later than that," I muttered, as I left for the veranda, where I sulked because the pucharo had been denied me.

But a half hour later Mother brought me some that had been warmed over and she said that Father had heard something that might cause him to listen to my story. He had gone to the plaza in La Punta which was being surrounded by a regiment ordered there from Callao.

"There is a revolution going on," he said when he returned, and seated beside me, he listened to my recital of events in the bay.

Next morning he took me with him to Lima, where we saw that many windows in stores had been wrecked and that wagons were still carting away dead bodies.

During the night Don Nicholas de Pierola had ridden through the streets at the head of a band of insurrectionists. They had stormed the government buildings, attacked those who still supported Prado, shot many of them, and the corpses of three others were dangling from a crosspiece fastened to the Cathedral wall.

It was a strange sight, on returning to Callao to note that the cannon in the two castles had been trained on Lima, instead of seaward, from where the enemy might be expected, and that Peruvian warships also had guns trained inland.

But that lasted only during the day. By night all armed forces had proclaimed allegiance to Nicholas de Pierola, who became president of Peru.

Defense Contracts

By Ernest K. Lindley

Saving Small Manufacturers

THE SMALL BUSINESS man is being awarded a higher official status in the defense administration. The Defense Contract Service is being transformed from a section of the Production Division of OPM to the rank of a bureau responsible directly to Knudsen and Hillman.

LINDLEY

The DCS, with its field offices, is the main agency for helping manufacturers to get defense contracts and subcontracts. In its new status as a bureau, the DCS will be represented on all the commodity sections of OPM, on the plant sites board, and on the board which considers applications for direct or indirect Government financing of new plant facilities.

The commodity sections are the workshops of OPM. The new arrangement is intended to enable the DCS to act as a defender of small business in these councils. On the plant sites board, the DCS may protest against putting new plants in areas where old plants exist capable of doing part or all of the work. In the same way it can check more carefully on applications for Government financing and tax concessions.

TOO MUCH should not be expected of this administrative shift. For almost a year longer-headed officials have seen the hard times ahead for small manufacturers using metals. They have urged incessantly that these concerns be harnessed for defense production, both to prevent them from being shut down by lack of metals for civilian use and to expedite the output of war implements.

Although some progress has been made, it has been only a fraction of what was necessary to avert serious trouble. Now the crisis is at hand. Shortage of metals is strangling some small manufacturers right and left. For several months the shortage will become more acute. Unless relieved, many concerns will be forced to disband their organizations and perhaps go out of business permanently.

THERE ARE three main ways to help small manufacturers using metals to survive the defense period:

1. Put them to work on defense production.

2. See that they get a fair share of the residue of metals left for civilian production.

3. Expand supplies of metals.

Not all metal-working equipment is needed, and only part can be efficiently converted, for defense production. But every expert who has looked into the matter is convinced that defense work can be spread much more widely than it has been. The Army turned first to the big concerns in whose management and technical ability it had confidence. In recent weeks it has begun to respond to demands that the work be spread, but hundreds of manufacturers who want defense contracts and have the equipment and trained men seem unable still to make the right connections, with either the Army or prime contractors.

HIGHER STATUS for the DCS augurs a more aggressive work-spreading campaign within the government. Small manufacturers can help by canvassing their resources on an industry-wide basis, or by forming local producing pools.

A financial inducement to large defense producers to farm out the making of parts may also be necessary. The cost to the Government would be only a fraction of that of permitting hundreds of small factories to close, throwing people out of work and perhaps onto the relief rolls.

A fair allocation of the metals left for civilian use is also essential. Leon Henderson, OPACS chief, demanded a 50 per cent cut in automobile output, chiefly because he though the automobile industry was gobbling up too much civilian metal.

SOME Government officials think it would be desirable to hold back from defense small quantities of metals especially important for civilian use. For example, while all nickel now in sight can be used for defense, 5 per cent, spread thin, would avert stoppage of several lines of civilian production.

Expansion of the output of metals is under way, but it was begun late and is not being pushed aggressively in all fields. Subsidies of one form or another for higher cost producers would step up the output of several metals.

No matter what is done, hundreds of small manufacturers and their employes face hard times. Only extremely energetic measures can prevent serious, and perhaps permanent, damage.

Emergency Price Control

By Mark Sullivan

Congress' Suspicion of Bill Apparent

THE proposed "Emergency Price Control Act" is being subjected to intense scrutiny. The man expected to be in charge of price control, if the bill is enacted, Mr. Leon Henderson, has been under examination for six days by the House Committee on Banking and Currency; and previously was for two days under examination by a Senate committee. Congress wants to make sure that the bill, if enacted at all, will be administered in strict accord with the purpose of Congress, and not in such a way as to expand the powers of the Executive unduly or permanently. Congress wants the administration of the bill to be limited to price control and not to further any broader New Deal expansion.

In the very first section of the bill is a provision which reflects the suspicion of Congress. It is a provision for bringing the measure surely to an end whenever the emergency comes to an end—and for ending it by action of Congress, if it should happen that the President is unwilling to end it. The provision reads:

"This Act . . . shall terminate . . . one year from the date of a declaration by the President, or the Congress by concurrent resolution . . ."

THE important words here are, "or the Congress by concurrent resolution." By, that Congress means to reserve to itself power to end the measure by its own action. A "concurrent resolution" by Congress does not require signature by the President, thereby differing from an ordinary "act" of Congress.

Whether Congress can repeal the price-control law, or any other law, by a simple concurrent resolution without signature by the President is a constitutional question about which there is some doubt. For Congress to try to keep for itself the power to end a law is novel. The only previous attempt at it, so far as this writer knows, is in the Lease-Lend Act. And both in the Lease-Lend Act and in the present one the reason for the unusual assertion of Congressional prerogative is an uneasy apprehension—an apprehension that powers granted to the President for the emergency of war may be retained and become permanent.

This apprehension, this suspicion, is not an ordinary case of jealousy by Congress about the executive branch of Government. It is not a mere apprehension that the powers of the Presidency may be expanded, to the detriment of the powers of Congress. It is no such feeling as a jealous Congress has had at times about previous Presidents, such as Grover Cleveland. This present apprehension is that the American structure of society, including the private ownership of industry, may be changed. This apprehension can be read between the lines of a passage in this Price-Control Act. There is to be a one-year period following the termination of the act for the reasonable purpose of winding up operations. And Congress directs:

"During such one-year period the authority granted by this act to the President shall be exercised in such manner as to facilitate readjustment to normal conditions."

IN the Price-Control Act is yet another provision reflecting the same apprehension of Congress about loss of its powers (and reflecting also apprehension by Congress about impairment of the rights of citizens). Congress feels that many existing administrative bodies such as this price control will be, habitually exceed the powers Congress intended to grant them. To prevent this, Congress, in this price-control measure, takes a step which in some respects is, I think, unprecedented. The bill sets up an "Emergency Court of Appeals" to which any citizen may appeal who is subjected to an order by the price-control administrator. This new court is to be appointed, not by the President but by the Chief Justice of the United States, from among judges now sitting on United States courts below the Supreme Court.

Is there justification for this vigilance by Congress to save its own powers, to save its very life as a legislative body? There are thoughtful persons who fear so. In an illuminating book about change in government throughout the world, "The Managerial Revolution," by James Burnham, is this passage, about the decline of parliamentary government in totalitarian countries:

"THE PROCESS is, naturally, not yet completed in the United States. Congress is not yet the same as Hitler's Reichstag or Stalin's Soviet Congress. But it has gone much further than Congress itself would be willing to realize. Congress still occasionally 'revolts,' still now and then 'disciplines' an administrative agency or even abolishes it; but these acts are like the petty tyrannies of an already close-to-powerless old man. Very little control over the state is actually, today, possessed by Congress. The last year has shown that even the question of making war, most crucial of all the attributes of sovereignty, is, in spite of the Constitution, in reality beyond the power of Congress."

Is this really going on? It may have been up to some two years ago. Recently, however, Congress has been alert to its danger, building a new order or, more correctly, in imposing one. The national revolution which I outlined in my message last October 11 has not yet taken its place among accomplished facts.

It has not yet forced its way through because between the people and I—who understand one another so well—there has risen a double screen of those favoring the old regime and those serving trusts.

THE TROOPS of the old regime are legion. I rank among them without exception all who place their personal interests ahead of the permanent interests of state—freemasonry, political parties deprived of clientele but thirsty for a comeback, officials attached to an order of which they were beneficiaries and masters—or those who have subordinated interests of the fatherland to foreign ones.

A long wait will be needed to overcome the resistance all these opponents of the new order, but we must start in now to smash their undertakings by decimating their leaders.

If France did not understand that it was condemned to change the regime by the force of things, then she would see open up before her the abyss in which Spain of 1936 just missed being swallowed and from which she is only saved by faith, youth and sacrifice.

As for the power of trusts, it is trying to reassert itself using for its own ends the institution of committees of economic organization. These committees were created, however, to rectify the errors of capitalism. They had, besides, the purpose of entrusting responsible men with necessary authority to negotiate with Germany and assure equitable distribution of raw materials indispensable to our factories.

THE CHOICE of members for these committees was difficult. It was not always possible to find impartiality and competence united within the same minds. These provisional bodies created under the sway of a pressing need have been too numerous, too centralized and too weighted. The big corporations assumed too much authority and often inadmissible control.

In the light of experience, I will correct the work undertaken and will resume against selfish, blind capitalism the same struggle the sovereigns of France waged and won against feudalism. I intend to have our country freed from the most contemptible of tutelages: that of money.

Irresponsible trade organizations governed by commercial considerations have too long been directing our food supply. I already have taken sanctions and struck at an entire system in the person of a single man: that of national distribution centers which have assured the great commercial agents of exclusive and usurious control of all questions of food supply to the detriment of producer and consumer.

We are still suffering, but I do not want our sufferings displayed in front of the scandal of fortunes built out of the general misery.

It would be all the more revolting inasmuch as this nation has in the past year accomplished an immense labor despite privations of all kinds and under the most difficult conditions.

I have in mind our peasants who, without laborers, without fertilizer, without sulphate, have succeeded in obtaining results better than those of the year before. I have in mind the miners who have worked without respite night and day to obtain coal for us. I have in mind all those workers who return from work only to find fireless homes and meagerly set tables.

IT IS THANKS to their efforts at every moment that the life of the country has been able to keep on despite defeat. It is with them and through them that we will be able tomorrow to build a France free, powerful and prosperous. Let them wait with me for better times—the trials of France will come to an end.

As for the lack of men, it is due above all to the absence of prisoners. As long as more than a million Frenchmen, comprising the young and vigorous elements of the nation and the best section of its elite, remain outside of the country's activities, it will be hard to build a new and lasting edifice. Their return will make it possible to fill the great gap from which we suffer. Their spirit, strengthened by camp life, matured by long reflection, will become the best cement of the national revolution.

And yet in spite of these difficulties the future of our country is being built with a precision which becomes more assured every day.

Families, communities, trades, provinces will be pillars of the constitution at which the best workers for our reconstruction are laboring tirelessly. Its preamble will open up clear perspectives for the "French future."

OUR MOST recent reforms are being made the object of methodical revision, the outline of which will appear clearer as soon as legislative texts have been simplified and codified.

But law making and building are not enough. Governing is needed. It is both the necessity and the will of the whole people.

France cannot really be governed except from Paris. I cannot yet return there and I shall not return there until certain facilities are offered me.

France cannot be governed except with the assent of public opinion—an assent more necessary than ever in the authoritarian regime.

This public opinion is today divided. France cannot be governed except if the initiative of the chief finds corresponding exactness and faithfulness in the bodies transmitting it. This exactness and faithfulness is still lacking.

France, however, cannot wait. A nation like ours, forged in the crucible of races and spirits, proud and courageous, as ready for sacrifice as for violence and ever bristling when its honor is at stake, needs certainties, room and discipline.

THE GOVERNMENT'S problem thus goes far beyond the framework of a simple ministerial change.

It demands, above all, the unqualified support of certain principles.

Authority no longer comes from below. It properly is that which I give or which I delegate.

I delegated this in the first place to Admiral Darlan, toward whom opinion neither has been shown as always favorable nor always fair, but who never stopped aiding me with his loyalty and his courage.

I have given him the ministry of national defense in order that he may exercise more direct control on all our land, sea and air forces.

To the government which surrounds me, I have left the necessary initiative. I intend, however, to outline for it in certain fields a straight line.

THIS is what I decided:

1. Activity of political parties and groups of political origin is suspended until further notice in the free zone. These parties no longer hold either public or private meetings. They must stop any distribution of tracts or notices. Those which fail to conform to these decisions will be dissolved.

2. Payment of members of Parliament is suppressed as of September 30.

3. The first disciplinary sanctions against state officials guilty of false declarations regarding membership in secret societies has been ordered. The names of officials have been published this morning in the official journal. Holders of high Masonic degrees—of which the first list has just been published—can no longer exercise any public function.

4. The legion remains the best instrument in the free zone of the national revolution. But it is able to carry out its civil task only in remaining in all ranks subordinate to the government.

5. I will double the means of police action, whose discipline and loyalty should guarantee public order.

6. A group of commissars of public power is created. These high officials will be charged with studying the spirit in which the laws, decrees, orders and instructions of the central power will be carried out. They will have the mission of ferreting out and destroying obstacles which abuse of the rules of administrative routine or activity of secret societies can oppose to the work of national revolution.

7. Powers of regional prefects—the first units of those who will be governors of provinces in the France of tomorrow—will be reinforced. Their power so far as the central administration is concerned is increased. Their authority over all heads of local services is direct and complete.

8. The labor charter designed to regulate, according to the principles of my St. Etienne speech, relations among workers, artisans, technicians and employers in an agreement reached with mutual understanding, just resulted in a solemn accord. It will be published shortly.

9. The provisional stature of economic organization will be revamped on a basis of reorganization of committees with larger representation of small industry and artisans, with revision of their financial administration and their relations with provincial arbitration organisms.

10. The powers and role and organization of the National Food Supply Bureau will be modified according to means which safeguarding of the interests consumers permit the authority of the state to make itself felt at the same time on a national and regional basis.

11. I have decided to use the powers given me by Constitutional Act No. 7 to judge those responsible for our disaster. The council of justice is created to that effect. It will submit its reports before October 15.

12. In the application of this same Constitutional Act, all ministers and high officials must swear an oath of fealty to me and engage themselves to carry out duties in their charge for the well-being of the state according to the rules of honor and propriety.

THIS FIRST series of the measures will reassure the French who think only of the well-being of the fatherland.

Prisoners who still are waiting in camps and who are preparing yourselves in silence for the work of national restoration, peasants of France who are gathering harvest in particularly difficult conditions, people of the reserved zone who place all your confidence in the oneness of France, workmen of our suburbs, deprived of meat, of wine and of tobacco, and yet so brave, you are the ones I think of. You are the ones to whom I address these French words.

I know by my calling what victory is; I see today what defeat is. I have picked up the heritage of a wounded France. That heritage is one which it is my duty to defend, maintaining your aspirations and your rights.

In 1917, I put an end to mutinies. In 1940 I put a period to our rout. Today it is from you yourselves that I want to save you.

When a man of my age dedicates his person to his country there can be no further sacrifice he could wish to evade. His only rule of conduct is that of public salvation. Remember this:

If a beaten country is divided against itself, it dies. If a beaten country can unite, it is reborn. Long live France!

Text Of Petain's Speech

'Overcome a Heavy Heritage of Distrust'

Vichy, Aug. 12.—The text of Marshal Petain's speech today.

Frenchmen:

I have grave things to tell you!

For the last several weeks, I have felt an ill wind rising in many regions of France. Disquiet is overtaking minds; doubt is gaining control of spirits. The authority of my government is made the subject of discussion; orders are often being ill-executed.

In an atmosphere of false rumors and intrigues the forces of reconstruction are growing discouraged. Others are trying to take their places without their nobleness or disinterestedness. My sponsorship is too often invoked, even against the government, to justify self-styled undertakings of salvation which, in fact, amount to nothing more than appeals for indiscipline.

A real uneasiness inflicts the French nation. The reasons for this uneasiness are easy to understand. Cruel hours are always followed by difficult times.

WHILE at the frontiers of the nation—which defeat has put out of action but whose empire leaves her vulnerable—the war goes on, ravaging new continents every day, everybody wonders with anguish about the future of our country.

Some feel themselves betrayed, others think they are abandoned. Some wonder where their duty lies, others first seek their own interest.

The London radio and certain French newspapers add to this confusion of minds. The sense of national interest in the end loses in justice and vigor. From this disorder of ideas spring disorders of affairs. Is this, indeed, the fate France has deserved after 13 months of calm, of work, of incontestable revival?

Frenchmen, I put this question to you. I ask you to measure its score and answer it in the confines of your consciences.

Our relations with Germany have been defined by an armistice convention, the character of which could only be provisional. Dragging out this situation makes that much harder to support it insofar as it controls relations between two great nations.

AS FOR collaboration—offered in the month of October, 1940, by the Chancellor of the Reich under conditions which made me appreciate their deference—it was a long-term labor and has not yet been able to bear all its fruit.

We must be able to overcome a heavy heritage of distrust handed down by centuries of dissensions and quarrels to turn ourselves toward broad perspectives which can open up a reconciled continent to our activity.

That is the goal toward which we are heading. But it is an immense labor which requires on our part as much will as it does patience. Other tasks absorb the German government, gigantic in developments to the east in defense of a civilization and which can change map of world.

As regards Italy, our relations likewise are controlled by an armistice convention. Here again our desires are to escape from these provisional relations to create more stable ties without which the European order cannot be construed.

I WOULD like to recall to the great American public the reasons why it has no reason to fear a decline of French ideals. Certainly our parliamentary policy is dead. But it never had more than a little in common with the democracy of the United States. As for the instinct of liberty—that lives always with us, proud and strong.

The American press has often misjudged us. Let it now make an effort to understand the quality of our souls; the destiny of a nation whose soil—during the course of history—periodically ravaged; its youth decimated; its well being troubled by the weakness of Europe, in whose reconstruction France intends today to participate.

Our domestic difficulties have been created above all out of troubled minds, out of lack of men and out a rarity of products.

Troubled minds do not have as their sole origin the vicissitudes of our foreign policy. They come especially from our slowness in

Advise About Unions

Some of my legion of well-wishers in the two big unions, namely the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., have warned me that I am becoming a bit of a nag on the subject of racketeering and anti-American or Communist activity in the mysterious, disorderly edifice known as the house of labor.

That being so, if it is so, I am glad to offer today some remedial, constructive suggestions which I have reason to believe will evoke cheers from the common man or working stiff.

First, inasmuch as a new income tax bill is being hammered into shape, I would include in the final draft a provision that all unions, local as well as national, be forbidden to contribute or lend as much as a dime of their funds to any campaign fund, whether for the candidacy of an individual or a ticket.

CHURCH, or religious, organizations are forbidden to do this now. They enjoy tax exemption only on the proviso that they lose it if a "substantial part" of their activities consists of carrying on propaganda or otherwise trying to influence legislation. In practice, this proviso is waived because no national government as yet has had the temerity to try to enforce it. Moreover, the income of religious organizations consists largely of gifts in small sums which are not taxable as income.

But union income is not made up of gifts. It is obtained largely by extortion in the guise of dues, fees and assessments and thus would be taxable if Congress cared to ease a few little words into the new bill. I would tax all union income at fair rates, but I would provide also that any contribution, loan or expenditure of union money for political purposes should be matched, dollar for dollar, with a special tax.

THUS, if WRONG JOHN LEWIS, in his autocratic way, were to toss $500,000 to the campaign fund of some political party, whether as a gift or loan, the National Treasury would move in and take another $500,000 for the Government. If Wrong John wants to give his own money or lend it, that is his business, but I have a distinct feeling that he would be less generous with his own than with the hard-earned funds of his subjects. I know positively that many of Wrong John's subjects don't want him to have the privilege of throwing their money around and would thank Congress to make it impossible for him to do so, inasmuch as they have no voice in the matter themselves.

Very few Americans know that until very recently, at least, the Internal Revenue didn't even bother to examine the books of unions. Possibly that custom of the bureau has been changed lately, but the last time I checked up, unions were exempt even from inspection. That meant, of course, that the professional unionized unioneer could steal as much as he pleased or steal it all. The Internal Revenue might examine the racketeer's own individual return, but inasmuch as the agents were not checking the union accounts, they had no way of knowing whether he was reporting the entire amount of his graft and thieving. I would change that by compelling all unions to submit to the same inspection that is imposed on honest citizens and business firms.

IT does seem careless, not to say cowardly or crooked, of a government to exempt unions, even from inspection, to say nothing of income taxes, when you consider that the existing act provides a right to inspect and tax if any part of the incomes inures to the benefit of an individual. The Internal Revenue, at the date of my last inquiry, just assumed in the face of scandalous evidence to the contrary, that no union racketeer would be so dishonest as to steal for himself, whether by resolution put through by ball-bat parliamentarians or by common larceny, any part of the union's funds. I would tighten up on the enforcement and put in some positive language compelling unions to pay, regardless of whether any part of the funds inured to the benefit of an individual.

THE TOTAL union income is up around a billion dollars a year and it is worth taxing, particularly in a year when the crooks have been shaking down the poor working stiffs openly and defiantly for the right to put in a few licks on Government war projects, and anyway, the principle is right. If churches are legally obligated to refrain from political activity, or pay, then unions should be similarly bound and the effect of inspection and taxation would be good for the union members and the whole community.

Of course, I would make unions incorporate, but I doubt that that would work the miracle that some people seem to expect. Only recently I told you of the clever little scheme whereby Tom Girdler, on a salary of $176,000 a year, got the stockholders of Republic Steel to buy him Social Security at the rate of $3000 a month for life, even if he had been fired.

Vichy Surrenders

Marshal Petain Sells The Pass

THE CURTAIN is about to go up on the final act in the grim drama of betrayal that was ushered in 14 months ago when the destinies of France were, by a malign fate, placed in the hands of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

NOVER

On Tuesday the Vichy government was "reorganized." Reorganization consisted largely in placing dictatorial powers in the hands of Admiral Jean Darlan, Pierre Laval's successor as vice premier and a man of very similar outlook. The purpose, exposed by Marshal Petain in a radio address, is to prepare France for a role in Hitler's "new order." We can be sure Darlan will let no grass grow under his feet in carrying out that purpose. His Quisling mentality and proclivities have long been demonstrated to the people of France and the world.

FROM NOW ON Vichy France must be regarded as belonging to the Axis, hence to the enemies of civilization. Messrs. Petain and Darlan are apparently prepared to do Hitler's bidding, regardless of where such a policy may lead. They will pursue that course with the consent of the French people, if such consent is to be had. They will pursue it in the face of any and all objections of their people. In more than one respect the speech of Marshal Petain is a declaration of war against the French as it is a betrayal of everything France has ever stood for in its long and glorious history.

"The troops of the old regime are legion," said Petain. In other words there are still countless Frenchmen who believe in liberty, equality and fraternity, who view the craven and lickspittle policy of Vichy toward Berlin with loathing, who pray for Britain's victory and are cheered by the news of the growing might of the United States and the increasing effort this country is making to help the enemies of Hitler.

It is eternally to the credit of the French people that this is the case. They have been betrayed but they are not fooled. They know what is going on. They know where their country's interests really lie. Their spirit of resistance, like the spirit of resistance in all the conquered countries of Europe, is growing. Hitler knows what this means. Surrounded by a sea of hate which may ultimately overwhelm and destroy him and his regime he finds it impossible, under existing circumstances to stem this tide. So he finds it necessary to rely on accomplices. The men of Vichy have now responded.

WITH MONUMENTAL effrontery the aged marshal sets himself up as alone competent to determine what is good for the French people and nation. He threatens those who oppose him with dire things. He promises to "decimate" the leaders of the old order in France. Yet in the midst of his Louis XIV posturings he has the gall to voice an appeal to the United States for "understanding." "The great American public," he says, "has no reason to fear a decline of French ideals. Certainly our parliamentary policy is dead. . . . As for the instinct of liberty—that lives always with us, proud and strong."

The instinct of liberty does, indeed, live in the hearts of the French people although Petain and his collaborators are doing everything to destroy it.

The American people will understand only too well what this latest move by Marshal Petain means. It means, in the first place, that he is about to violate repeated pledges to the United States that France would not go beyond the terms of the armistice.

Already "collaboration" with the Third Reich has gone a long way. France has been made part and parcel of the German war machine. French industry is geared to keep the Wehrmacht moving and has little if any relation to the needs of the French people themselves. French agriculture, which used to be more than adequate to supply the food needs of the French, is now largely devoted to filling the stomachs of the Germans. The French themselves go hungry. And a considerable measure of collaboration already exists in the ideological sphere. The Nuremberg laws have their counterpart in the decrees of Vichy.

What now remains?

THE ANSWER IS PLAIN. Collaboration is now to be extended to the military and naval sphere. The French fleet will be placed at Hitler's disposal. The French African empire will become the strategic outpost of the Third Reich. And the very same gang that made peace with Hitler because France, they insisted, had been bled white may now send Frenchmen into battle on the side of their conquerors in a struggle which Petain declares is "in defense of a civilization."

For some time relations between the United States and Vichy have been hanging by a thread. As long as there was any hope of keeping Vichy from going too far beyond the limits of the June, 1940, armistice a reason existed for maintaining relations with a regime which more and more gave evidence of being Hitler's puppet. That reason has now disappeared. The only France that the United States now has any purpose in recognizing is the France of De Gaulle, the France that Petain and his cohorts would destroy. At the same time definite assurances of aid must be given to those elements in the French Empire which are prepared to resist Vichy's betrayal and work for France's real salvation which can only come when the incubus of Hitlerism is wiped off the earth. There is no time to lose.

First-Aid Institute Will Open Monday

A ten-day first-aid institute will open Monday at the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, Tenth and U Streets Northwest, sponsored by the Community Center and Playgrounds Department in cooperation with the American Red Cross, it was announced yesterday.

Clarence M. Pendleton will direct the institute, assisted by Dr. John F. Harris, Thomas Hughes, Theodore Chambers, Prof. John H. Burr, Maurice Jackson, Roscoe Gray and Robert Duncan.

The institute will continue through Friday, August 29, and will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. Persons who are interested may register with Mrs. M. B. Robinson, registrar, at the Force School, 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, or at the Garnet-Patterson School on August 18.

When Curdled Milk Has Dried, It Looks Like This

This Is Casein Fiber, Processed From Milk Curds

Come next Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen may be wearing anything on their heads from a by-product of milk curds to scraps of discarded rabbit fur coats to satisfy their desire for felt hats.

Imported rabbitskins, from which felt hats are made have almost vanished from the market because of the war and national defense.

Formerly hat manufacturers obtained most of their skins in Australia. Now they must depend upon only a few dribbles and upon substitute materials.

A hat magazine in an editorial this month says: "There will undoubtedly be steady and sharply advancing prices, which of necessity must be reflected in nigher prices for hats."

Local hat stores have taken warning. One leading F Street hat store has added an extra storeroom in its basement to take care of an increased stock it is putting in at current prices.

How do hat manufacturers plan to meet the shortage of rabbitskins?

The answer is substitutes. Research on processes to make a fiber from milk curds known as casein fiber has been going on in this country for years. This fiber, it is reported, can be used to replace some of the rabbit fur coats will be reclaimed also.

It may be necessary for fashion designers to beat their drums for caps for men and hats of wool for the ladies.

The rabbit industry in this country is reported to be negligible. Our cottontails are said to have inferior skins; besides, they are considered to be pests. In the past it did not pay Westerners and Midwest- erners to collect these skins, for they had to compete with the superior and cheaper Australian rabbitskins. However, with rising prices, a rabbit industry may develop here. This is according to the Fish and Wild Life Service, U. S. Department of the Interior.

In an F Street Hat Store, Herman Lattin Examines An Increased Stock of Felts Stored in the Basement

But until it does, Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen are going to have to be content either to pay higher prices for real felt hats or to wear those made from substitute materials, if they wish to keep the wind and the rain from their hair this winter, it is predicted.

Prayer, Study Smoothed Path Of Opera Star

At 14, She Decided To Follow in Steps Of Rosa Ponselle

By Martha Ellyn

PRAYER, study and fortitude—in the opinion of Miss Anna Kaskas, the Metropolitan Opera Company contralto—are the factors which have contributed to her success as a singer.

Any young girl who aspires to a career, musical or otherwise, might well take a leaf from Miss Kaskas notebook. At the age of 14, Miss Kaskas was so firmly gripped with the desire to become a singer that she recalls kneeling before the altar of a church in Hartford Connecticut and praying, "Please, dear Lord, let me go to Italy and study for the opera. Let me become a really great singer like Rosa Ponselle." Connecticut-born Rosa Ponselle was the inspiration of this prayer.

Miss Kaskas, who sings the roles of Amneris in "Aida" and Azucena in "Trovatore," at the Watergate during the San Carlo Company summer series, which opens tonight and continues through August 19, worked diligently and won scholarships at the Hartford Conservatory of Music, as a start on her truly great operatic career.

Wins Scholarship

While studying in the Hartford Conservatory, her unusual voice was heard by a music patron, who offered Miss Kaskas a $500 scholarship for study abroad. Members of the church choir raised additional money and Anna, at the age of 17, found herself going to Kovno in Lithuania, the homeland of her parents, to study opera singing. Luck followed Anna and the Lithuanian government provided a scholarship for further study in Italy. It was her mastering of the Italian language in two short months that helped this singer to become, subsequently, a sensation in the eight operas she appeared in at Metropolitan Opera Houses.

Following her return to America, she studied further in New York where the opportunity came to gain a Metropolitan Opera contract. She has also sung with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic and other major symphonic organizations.

Advice to Young

Although she has realized her ambition as a great singer, Miss Kaskas is mindful that she must be perfectly groomed and exquisitely gowned, too. So it is that when you meet her, you note immediately that she wears her clothes with dash and assurance, and has great charm of personality.

Miss Kaskas is one of the youngest of the Metropolitan's first-rank singers, since she is now only in her early twenties. Her triumph has come to her because of perservance, energy, charm and vividness. And her advice to any young person with aspirations is to hitch his wagon to a star and constantly drive toward his goal.

Charming Village Furniture

The furniture that belongs to the village, the country or the small community is familiarly called provincial. Really it describes the domestic furniture of a country as opposed to that of the formal or regal home. The term originated in France to describe the charming everyday furniture of the people in contrast to the court styles of French furniture. Provincial now is used to describe various nationalities of everyday furniture.

Women Cautioned Against Storming Lingerie Counters

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

With interest in the silk situation shifting to the lingerie front, these questions come to the fore:

Are women rushing the lingerie counters as much as they are hosiery counters?

Will women soon be wearing cotton slips the year round?

Will there be a rationing of silk lingerie?

From investigations made, these facts are apparent: First of all, although women seem to be rushing lingerie counters as much as hosiery counters, their excitement is unwarranted. If women will buy calmly, as they have in past seasons, there is a plentiful supply of lingerie on hand to last indefinitely.

Heartening News

As a matter of fact, many women in their excitement are not buying wisely. One official, in contact with retailers and consumers concerning informative labeling, noticed that women bought the first bit of lingerie they spied. They were not paying any attention to the labels supplied by the retailers. This official even saw women rushing madly about buying rayon lingerie, as well as silk.

Lingerie buyers who have just returned from New York bring heartening news. There will still be some silk lingerie. Most buyers report that their orders are coming through, since lingerie manufacturers had their lines styled and made up before the ban was put on silk.

Rayon, so successful in the past, is now being looked to as the leading fabric for lingerie in the future. True part of the output of rayon is being diverted to defense usages, but the supply will still be plentiful. For fall, you will be seeing more and more slips in rayon crepes and rayon satin—not cotton—as predicted for hosiery. It is thought, however, that cotton slips will become important next year for spring and summer. Nylon slips are also in the picture, but are not yet available in quantities.

Tailored Trend

As for dependable predictions on the future of the lingerie situation, buyers agree that none can be made. They are confident, however, that the present supply is plentiful and that there will be no rationing. Even now manufacturers and designers are at work perfecting new fabrics and creating new designs.

With lace at a premium, there probably will be an increasing trend toward tailored details in slips and other lingerie. At present, however, there are still plenty of feminine touches on lingerie. Some garments have lavish application of lace, but all are fitted. The fit is most important under new fall torso-molded dresses that reveal the slightest bulge.

Shades of Blue Used Effectively In Decoration

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

"Our house is on a hill with fine views north and west," writes E. B. tantalisingly! "But I need help in straightening out some decorating problems. The furniture is mostly reproductions of late Colonial—in mahogany—and since it's not old I can't discard it. But I can do any necessary reupholstery, repainting and such like. I plan to have a new stair carpet and wondered if burgundy could be worked in all right here or would it be too strong for the pastels I want to use upstairs? I'd also appreciate suggestions for arranging the furniture.

"I want my home to be charming and colorfully informal. Here's what I have to use: a sofa in dark brown which I'm considering slip covering in the same material that I've used for draperies—a beige ground linen with flowers; a Cogs-squares in soft green, grayed rose; a platform rocker in dull blue figured in flower colors; a machine hooked rug with flower squares in soft green, greyed rose, dull yellow, delft blue and beige; a secretary, occasional tables and bookcases. In the dining room I have a braided rug with blue predominating and ladder-back chairs, table, buffet, china cabinet. For the hall I have nothing as yet. I'll eagerly await your recommendations."

Why don't you paint the walls of hall, living room and dining room all in a very light blue? Then slip-cover all the furniture that needs doing over in a light blue denim? Collect blue glass and blue pottery for accessories and have a light blue china tea set, and for the dining room use light blue linen doilie sets. This color will be lovely with the burgundy carpet you want for the stairs—this wouldn't interfere with pastel upstairs. Incidentally, this burgundy would be a good color to introduce in the living room for accent—use a bit of it for cushions and maybe for a lamp or two. Since the hall is narrow you might find that a large mirror would be enough. Or if you need more, add a narrow table.

Delicate Allure

For truly delicate allure during the summer months, spray cologne on the body after your every tubbing or shower. Your own body heat will cause the alcohol in the cologne to evaporate quickly, refreshing your skin and leaving your favorite cologne fragrance to linger on, daintily, alone.

Should Mother of Three Take Illegitimate Child To Board, When Living in Small Community Where Gossip Is Rampant? Would the Children Suffer?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have three children, none of whom is in school yet. Would we (my husband and I) be doing wrong if we took into our home, to board, the child of an unmarried mother? The child isn't old enough yet to attend school. The mother is not related to my husband or to me, although she lived in my husband's parents' home when she was small.

She is a young woman, working to support herself and the child, but must board the child because the nature of her job is such that she cannot care for the child herself. We live in a small town, where people talk about such things. Perhaps if we lived in a city, nobody would either know or make any comment. Please give us your immediate advice. WORRIED MOTHER.

DEAR W. M.: In asking whether you would be "doing wrong," in taking the child of an unmarried mother to board in your home, I assume you wish to know if such an arrangement would be harmful to your children, through involving them in a situation which would be the subject of neighborhood gossip,—centering upon the boarding child and her absentee mother. But it seems to me that to be primarily concerned with that particular question is to fail to see your larger responsibility,—to give as much consideration to the proposed boarding child's welfare as you are prepared to give to your own flesh and blood.

If there is likelihood that Sally (to give the "boarding child" a name) would find herself in the position of being socially rejected by children of the neighborhood (and eventually by your own children) as a result of adult neighbors' gossip, supposing she were brought into your home, then out of very protective concern for the child, you should advise the mother to look further in search of the right boarding home for Sally. I might say, also, that your nervous dubiety concerning whether you could board Sally without harmful effect to your children strongly suggests that you aren't the woman to take charge of a situation of the kind and carry it through successfully.

If you had the resourcefulness of character, the dignity, wisdom and great-hearted understanding, to mother a flock of assorted youngsters in such a way as to give each and all "good standing" in the eyes of their contemporaries and the community at large, you would not be so completely at a loss to know what to do, apropos of the present proposition. You would recognize the nuances and complexities of the task confronting you, but you would also feel serenely competent to deal effectively,—on behalf of the children,—with any difficulties that neighborhood gossips might promote.

Since you are already worriedly on the defensive, at the mere thought of taking Sally into your home, my advice to you is to relinquish the proposition, as beyond our ability to manage satisfactorily. Incidentally, if Sally's mother is a resident of the District of Columbia, she may enlist the counsel and services of the Children's Protective Association, 1907 S Street Northwest (telephone Dupont 7373), in finding the proper environment in which to board the younster. M. H.

Rather Than Play Fair, Husband Took His Life

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I know that you always endeavor to keep marriages together, when possible—because, after all, what is better than a happy marriage? However, I feel you are too optimistic with regard to the problem of "E. V. E.," discussed in your column of August 9. My husband and I, too, agreed before marriage that we would share expenses and housework 50-50. But after marriage it was a different story—as in the case of "E. V. E." He insisted I keep my pledge to share expenses, but when it came to helping with the housework, he had every excuse, including (as a last retort) "It's a woman's job to do the housework."

When our child was born we were forced to hire a maid and she did the housework. I thought this would end our domestic difficulties, but then he turned miserly. He even objected when I spent my own money to clothe myself and the baby. When I disobeyed him, he took to beating me and called me "spoiled." Now, I feel that any woman who works to help support her family cannot be very "spoiled." Finally, having grown tired of my husband's constant sulkiness, disputes and blows, I told him I was going to leave him. He took it as a joke, saying there were plenty of girls who would want him, because he was so good looking, smart, etc. I told him to find them, packed my bags and left.

When he realized I had meant what I said, he cried on my doorstep every day, asking me to come back. He begged my friends to use their influence, and promised me he would never be brutal or selfish again. I believed him and returned, only to find he had no intention of changing his ways. Everything went as it had before. I grew afraid of him and left a same promises he had broken before, as I felt life was too short to be so misspent. Again he begged me to return, making the same promises he had brken before.

When he finally realized I was not coming back, he committed suicide,—as a result of having let his mind dwell on nothing but his "loss." What went on in his mind I shall never know, as I could never talk reasonably with him on any point. At first, I reproached myself,—wishing I had never left him. But later, seeing things in better perspective, I realized that he might have killed either me or our child if I had remained with him.

Now, I am not saying that "E. V. E.'s" husband will go to equal extremes; but I am convinced from what she says that he is emotionally immature and concomitantly selfish and unreasonable. He must grow up to an acceptance of his responsibilities and work with her, if their problem of domestic discord is to be permanently solved. My advice to all girls is: "Be careful in choosing a husband. Be sure the man you marry is emotionally mature." T. S.

Mother Should Teach Girl Correct Posture

By Ida Jean Kain

TODAY'S mothers might possibly be to blame for tomorrow's wallflowers. If all of you modern mothers could teach your 6-year-old daughters to sit gracefully, walk beautifully and to do a few of the inescapable calisthenics for beauty, how could there be any wallflowers?

Lovely Edna Phillips, solo harpist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, is so sincerely convinced of these precepts for beauty that she is spending part of her leisure in teaching Joan, her precocious young daughter, some of the fundamentals.

"At that age," observes the harpist, "children are not only at their most malleable stage but they also have a certain amount of steam, which must be worked off. They might as well do it in a constructive way."

She Learns to Walk

So she is teaching young Joan to walk with one foot directly ahead of the other, and to keep her hips under and her head up. If young Joan turns out to be short in the legs, she will know how to camouflage it by sitting forward in her chair, back straight but at ease. And if she is long in the limbs, she will sit well back, with the small of the back pressed against the chairback.

In the meantime, she is doing the posture exercises Edna Phillips didn't become interested in until after she became a career woman.

"One of the best," says her mother, "is to stretch against a wall. You just stand a little distance from the wall, both hands stretched against the wall. Then you push your hands up as high as you can get them and at the same time lean against the wall until your chest touches it."

Another good posture exercise is to sit on the floor with a wand grasped in each hand, near the ends. The trick is to keep the arms stretched overhead, in line with the shoulders, as you bend forward and try to touch wand to toes in front.

Another Way

Still another is to stand erect with wand held high overhead, feet parellel and slightly separated, and bend over and touch wand to floor in front of your feet.

Those exercises are good mainly because they give you something definite to do. But here is an exercise that doesn't seem like much work, but which is very effective: Lie back on the floor and flex both knees and chest. Then slowly slide the legs down on the floor until both knees are straight, and squeeze buttocks together, hard. Relax, then repeat.

All those calisthenics are good, but Edna Phillips believes no woman can be charming unless she also learns to relax. For that she recommends gardening—"it takes away the neuroses. You cannot possibly garden and harbor any ill will or petty annoyance—and it's good exercise, too."

So, after you've taught your daughter how to exercise, you might teach her how to relax. Then she will stand a chance of being a real knockout.

Lucille Fairbanks here maintains good posture, while doing calisthenics to improve bust contours

Scraps Made Quilts

Two layers of cloth with a padding between, when joined by intricate stitches arranged in a pattern, makes a quilt. Originally quilts were made of scraps of varied pieces of cloth sewed together at random or in geometric design, then padded and lined, after which the whole thing was stitched in a quilted pattern. Now quilting is often done on two plain pieces of fabric with a padding between.

Doing what he likes to do and getting paid for it—the illustrator's life seems ideal if you're one who enjoys "dabbling" in art.

Many a "dabbler" has developed a real talent with proper training. A home course in illustration and advertising art will get you off to a right start.

One of the first things you learn it not to begin drawing the figure in detail. Diagrams show how to analyze the body into simple geometric forms, then start drawing with the aid of guide lines.

First comes a vertical line (A) to help you find the direction of the pose, then two lines to place head and feet (B). Next—the oval of the head, the column of the neck, the line of the shoulders (C).

From shoulders to waist (D) draw oblong form of torso, then widening lines to hips (E), converging lines to knees (F), curve of leg to ankle (G). Details such as features come later.

Clothing your figures and grouping them in real illustrations may also be learned in simple steps.

Our 40-page booklet, "A simple Course in Illustration and Advertising Art," explains in detail how to draw the human figure. Gives lessons in light and shade, perspective, composition; drawing dogs and horses. Has 237 illustrations and diagrams.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "A Simple Course in Illustration and Advertising Art," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 160 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Chapmans Give 'Farewell' Party for the Tugwells

Many of the Official Set Turn Out For Affair at the Kennedy-Warren In Honor of Puerto Rico's New Governor

By Patricia Grady

It's a rare occasion when a man has a chance to practice in public life what he has preached in private life, but Rexford Guy Tugwell is going to get the chance to do just that. As an economist-college professor, Mr. Tugwell formed certain ideas which, as a New Deal Undersecretary of Agriculture, he called on in suggesting a plan for the economic reconstruction of Puerto Rico in 1935. Now, in 1941, he will have the opportunity to administer the program which he helped to formulate, for he will be leaving in a few days to take over his new post as Governor of Puerto Rico.

Mrs. Tugwell

Or rather, he will first assume his duties as chancellor of the University of Puerto, a position to which he was elected by the board of trustees about a month ago. Following this election, he was nominated by the President as Governor of that tropical territory. Because of this, he is known as "the first elected Governor of Puerto Rico," and he will have to obtain leave from the University to serve as Governor after the expected ratification of his appointment today.

Mrs. Tugwell is planning in her mind's eye where she'll place her bric-a-brac and furniture in the historic Governor's Palace into which she will be moving. The Palace, "La Fortaleza," was built by the Spanish rulers of Puerto Rico some three-and-a-half centuries ago. Mrs. Tugwell will take herself, her 2-year-old son, and her household goods, which are now in storage in Washington, to the Central American territory on an Army transport. "The Army won't let us tell when the transport will sail," answered the handsome Mr. Tugwell in response to a "when" query.

Affair Had to Be Held Ahead of Schedule

Yesterday afternoon, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman entertained at a farewell cocktail party for the Tugwells at the Kennedy-Warren. An impromptu affair, the party originally had been scheduled for next week, but had to be moved up when the honor guest received orders to report to his desk in San Juan this week.

Guy J. Swope, who recently resigned as Governor of Puerto Rico, gave Mrs. Tugwell pointers on living in the little country's capital. She set off her lace-trimmed navy marquisette dress with a matching broad-brimmed hat, swathed in veiling. Meanwhile her husband chatted with Mrs. John J. Dempsey, wife of the Undersecretary of the Interior, whose chic natural straw hat, trimmed with gay flowers, bobbed up and down to accent her remarks. Senator Theodore Green, of Rhode Island, was in earnest conversation with Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold and his son, Thurman, jr., who is awaiting news of an applied-for naval commission. Miss Ruby Black greeted Marvin McIntyre, the President's secretary, as he entered the room and Luis Munoz-Marin, president of the Puerto Rico Senate, seemed to know everyone at the party.

Leon Henderson Among the Guests

Leon Henderson, OPACS chief, commiserated with Mrs. Lawrence Duggan, wife of the political adviser to the Secretary of State. "You're looking pale." "It's the high cost of living," quipped back Mrs. Duggan. Mrs. Thurman Arnold, coming in late, crossed the room to chat with Mrs. Drew Pearson, who was sitting on a sofa in the corner. The hostess, whose red belt picked up one of the many colors in her gay print, introduced the Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ebert K. Burlew to her guests.

Among others noted at the affair were Mrs. Ludwell Denny, wearing a black hat with her aqua dress; Mrs. John O'Rourke, hatless; John J. Dempsey, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mr. and Mrs. Barnet Nover, Jose Pedien, former Commissioner of Education of Puerto Rico; Laurence Duggan, Miss Molly Flynn, topping her aqua dress with a yellow bandeau; Everett Wilson, reminiscing about his experiences in Puerto Rico; Charles Taussig, Mrs. Higginson Rogers and several dozen others.

Mrs. Burgess Will Leave for Charleston Today

Mrs. J. A. Burgess, who has been in Washington for the past week to visit her husband, Lieut. Burgess, on active duty with the Navy Department here, will leave today to return to their home in Charleston, S. C., where their garden is one of the show places of the countryside.

A number of parties in their honor have filled the calendar of the Burgesses for the past few days, a highlight among them being the buffet garden party given on Monday evening at the home of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Edwin Lee White, of Meadow Lane, Chevy Chase. Searchlights from an upper balcony floodlighted the garden and glistened on the lily pond. After the buffet supper Col. White presented a motion picture program of color films he had made of all parts of the globe, from Alaska to the deep South.

Among the guests were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritt W. Ireland, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Col. and Mrs. Bolivar Lloyd, Col. George Unmacht, Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Allen, Col. and Mrs. John A. Smith, Col. and Mrs. Arthur J. Perry, Capt. and Mrs. Charles F. Roberts and Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. James B. Guthrie.

Georges-Picots Honor Visitors From France

The Counselor of the French Embassy and Mme. Giullaume Georges-Picot entertained informally at luncheon yesterday in the colonial room of the Wardman Park Hotel in honor of M. and Mme. Etienne Denis, of France.

M. and Mme. Denis are visiting in Washington en route to Indo-China with their three children. At the luncheon were Commander Pierre Benech, former Naval Attache of the Washington Embassy; Robert Lacour-Gayet, who is the newly appointed French financial attache; Mlle. Mireille Bertrand-Vigne, Baron James Baeyens, First Secretary of the French Embassy; Etienne des Roziers, of the embassy staff, and the three Denis children.

Farewell Dinner For Patricia Hill

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Bradford entertained at dinner last night in honor of Miss Patricia Hill, who will leave today with her mother, Mrs. Uline Hill, for Detroit, where the latter's marriage to Dr. Jean Paul Pratt will take place August 20.

Miss Peter Norris gave a small luncheon for Miss Hill yesterday and today Miss Aschah Dorsey will entertain at a similar party for her. The other guests will include Mrs. Randall Hagner, jr., Mrs. Lowell Bradford, Mrs. James O'Grady, Mrs. Oliver Hammonds, Miss Edythe Corbin, Miss Dolly Corbin, Miss Marilynn Himes and Miss Patsy Kelsey.

Madame Simovich Is Due to Arrive In Capital Shortly

Another distinguished refugee is due to arrive in Washington shortly. She is Mme. Dushan Simovich, wife of the Prime Minister of Yugoslavia, and she will come here the end of the week to stay with the Yugoslav Envoy and Mme. Fotich.

The visitor arrived in New York yesterday from Europe and was met by Minister Fotitch. Her husband is with the Yugoslav government in London.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Weber, of Texarkana, Tex., and their son, Bruce, will return to their home the end of this week after a visit here.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

Mrs. Robert Randolph Turner has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughmter, Elizabeth Randolph, to Daniel Townsend Cox, on Thursday, August 28, at 4 o'clock at Grace Episcopal Church, The Plains, Virginia. This wedding will be an important social event of the summer season in the "hunt country," and numerous entertainments are being planned for the bride and bridegroom-elect before the date of their marriage.

Miss Turner's father was the late Rbert Randolph Turner, of Montrose, in Fauquier County, and her Turner ancestors built and lived at Kinlock, in this county, for generations. Mr. Cox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hargrave Cox, of Lawrence, Long Island. He has made his home in Virginia for a number of years and is interested in hunting and horses. Mr. Cox is the manager of "Montana Hall," breeding establishment, in Clarke County. Miss Turner, since childhood, has been one of Virginia's most accomplished young horsewomen and is a member of Orange County Hunt, although she hunts with all neighborhood packs in this vicinity.

There will be a reception immediately after the ceremony at Montrose, the home of the bride, to which intimate friends and near relations have been asked. Miss Turner will have as matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Hill Beverley Wellford, and as maid of honor her cousin, Miss Polly Knox, of the Plains and Washington. The bridesmaids are to be Mrs. Robert Randolph Turner, jr., of Richmond, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Frances Buckler Cox, of Lawrence, L. I., sister of Mr. Cox; Miss Laura Stone Walton, of Lexington, Ky.; Miss Edith Buckler, of Baltimore; Miss Mae Francis Lewis, of The Plains, and Mrs. George Hart, of Columbia, S. C., who before her recent marriage was Miss Georgia Herbert, of Columbia and Fauquier County, Va.

Mr. Cox will have as best man E. Carter Foster, of the Plains, and the ushers are to be Hill Beverley Wellford, of Sabine Hall, on the Rappahannock River, Va.; William Griffith, Front Royal; Alex MacKay Smith, of Boyce; Ernest Jonklass, of Babylon, L. I.; Henry Seaton, of Brookline, Mass., and Alfred Lawrence, of Lawrence, L. I. Robert Randolph Turner, jr., of Richmond, will give his sister in marriage. The Rev. Howard Harper, rector of the church, will perform the ceremony, and Tony Jonklass, nephew of Mr. Cox, will assist in the church chancel.

ANNOUNCEMENTS have been received from Mrs. Edwin Samuel Rucker of the marriage of her daughter, Hylton, to Thomas Glascock Slater, on Friday, August 8, in Washington. Young Mr. and Mrs. Slater, who are on a wedding trip, will come to Virginia upon their return to visit his mother, Mrs. George R. Slater, at Rose Hill, near Upperville. They will make their home in Washington.

Another announcement of much interest in this part of Virginia is from Mrs. Aubrey Pearre, telling of the marriage of her daughter, Anna Josephine Sifford, to Schuyler Pardee, jr., on Friday, July 25, at Holy Trinity Cathedral, Havana, Cuba. The bride, who is from Baltimore, Md., has spent much time here with her cousins, the Misses Lyon, of Black Oak Ridge, Purcellville.

• • • •

NUMBERS OF people from the "hunt country" motored to Washington on Sunday to attend the party given by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rixey-Smith, at their apartment at 4801 Connecticut Avenue. Guests were asked at "6 o'clock and after," and found a gay party in the club room, where a delicious buffet supper was served at small tables arranged along the walls of the room.

Invitations Out For Wedding Of Miss Alfaro

It's a rare event in the Washington dog-days to find an engraved invitation in the mail, but Capitalites have received this week one from the former Minister of Panama, Ricardo Alfaro, and Mme. Alfaro, to the wedding of their daughter, Yolande, to Ensign Henry Cabell Maddux, jr., U. S. N. The ceremony will take place on Friday, August 29, at 4:30 at St. Anne's Church. A reception at the Alfaro residence, 4311 Forty-third Street, will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Victor Alfaro, sister-in-law of the prospective bride, will serve as matron of honor and Miss Patricia Prochnik, daughter of the former Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik, will be a bridesmaid. The other attendants will be the Misses Margaret Gordon, Billie Byrd West, Aileen Harris and Nancy Lawrence. Dr. James Twyman, of Charlottesville, Va., will be best man for Ensign Maddux, who has not yet completed his list of ushers.

As the bridegroom-elect is now on active service with the Navy, his future bride says she will "follow him around as best I can" after their marriage. He is the son of Dr. Maddux, of Virginia, and of Mrs. Katherine Olivia Maddux. The engagement of the couple was announced last March.

Miss Alfaro is a graduate of Holton Arms School and made her debut here at a tea yaear ago. She is a sister of Mrs. Frank Weller, the former Miss Amelita Alfaro. The latter's brilliant debut ball at the Pan-American Union, which took place when her father was minister here, was one of the outstanding parties of the season.

'Tour' Exhibit Is Opened At Pan American Union

By Lucia Giddens

An exhibition which opened this week at the Pan American Union was designed to invite hundreds of women's clubs on "imaginary tours" of the 21 republics of Latin America.

Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, only Washingtonian to go on the actual "Good Neighbor Tour" of the General Federation of Women's Clubs last year, yesterday were among the first persons to inspect the pictorial exhibition.

With 2500 clubs in the United States having based their programs last year on an imaginary tour, Pan American officials have now expanded and enriched the study material in the expectation that a larger number of clubs will adopt this theme for the coming year.

The exhibition, which will continue to September 10, shows scrapbooks on life in the United States which clubs have made up to send to Latin-American countries, as well as scrapbooks on the other Americas, which the Pan American Union will keep.

In one case are shown a sample of the ten volumes of mimeographed material which comprise a complete course of study for clubs entering the imaginary tour.

One of the most impressive items in the exhibition is "Three Centuries of American Painting," prepared by the Evening Group of the Women's Club of Leonia, N. J. On white placards, small reproductions of paintings by 90 American artists are mounted, with a few paragraphs of descriptive material in both English and Spanish. This collection will be sent to a South American University.

The idea of the imaginary tours was worked out by the Pan American Union in cooperation with the department of international relations of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Frederic Beggs, of Wykoff, N. J., who has served as chairman of the department for the past three years, energetically promoted the imaginary tours as the major project of the department.

265 Clubs Sign For the New Course

Already 265 clubs have signed up for the new expanded study course to start this fall. Although only three clubs in the District of Columiab took the imaginary tours last season, seven already have registered for the next course in the coming year.

The study material, which is being issued through the office of the counselor of the Pan American Union, Dr. William Manger, ranges from information on public welfare and social security in Latin America to a colorful compilation on fiestas, music and dances—with menus and recipes included, if clubwomen wish to sample the actual flavor of a Latin-American meal.

Miss Lucy Farnsworth is chief of the club section of the Pan American Union. Paul W. Murphy, chief of special events, took part in the arrangement of the exhibition.

An Actual Tour Climaxed the Series

The series of imaginary tours, in which clubs participated last year, was climaxxed by the actual tour on which 23 clubwomen representing 18 States, embarked in May, 1940, to eight countries. Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, who was then president of the federation, led the group, which included Mrs. Wiley, at that time the federation's chairman of Indian welfare.

The theme for the study program was outlined by Mrs. Beggs in her recent report, in which she said that its main emphases were on "seeking to determine the kind of permanent world society which will secure for future generations the moral and spiritual values which we treasure in our American way of life . . . and seeking to understand all the implications of continental solidarity and to contribute by our understanding to its realization."

Ukrainian Picnic Set

The American-Ukrainian Society of Washington will hold its annual picnic for members and their friends at Koday's Picnic Grounds, 12 Marlboro Pike, off Benning Road, next Sunday. An American-Ukrainian orchestra will play for dancers.

Pan American Union Exhibit Opens

Underwood & Underwood

Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, a leader in women's club work in Washington, yesterday inspected the exhibition which opened this week at the Union, with emphasis on the "imaginary Latin-American tours" which numerous clubs are adopting for their study courses this year

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

The seven New York boys and girls from the Church of All Nations, who visited Washington last week under the wing of the Council of Church Women, were determined that their trip should set a precedent.

So, just before leaving, they organized a Church of All Nations Washington Club with themselves and their hostesses as charter members. Back in New York, they expect to work out plans whereby 12 boys and girls—first generation Americans whose parents came from various other countries—will be chosen each year to make a Washington pilgrimage. The trip will be in recognition of some contribution which the boys and girls have made to the church and the community life that centers there.

One of the evenings that the group was here, Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the council, and Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary, took them on a picnic to Hains Point. They were almost incredulous at the idea of eating outdoors—for they came from a congested area just off the Bowery.

Never having been on a picnic before, they enjoyed it so much that they hinted heavily at duplicating the outing the next evening, and their hostesses quickly made plans to give them their wish.

CAMPERS RETURN—Mrs. Vergil D. Reed, chairman of the membership committee of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, and her husband, who is assistant director Bureau of the Census, have returned from a camping trip in the West.

They camped near Crater Lake, in Yellowstone Park and Glacier National Park. In addition to the vivid verbal accounts of the outing, Mrs. Reed brought back a collection of Indian jewelry.

HABITUAL CAMPERS—Mrs. Charles L. Custiss, jr., press representative for the District of Columbia Council of Girl Scouts, and her three small daughters returned this week from McKay's Beach, Md., on the lower Potomac, only to make plans for a quick return.

The girls—two of them are enthusiastic Scouts and the other is too young to qualify—insisted on having more outdoor life for the remainder of the summer, so they are leaving again this week. Beverly Ann, 10, is busily working for her Scout bird badge, and learned to identify several more birds on the stay at the beach. Carol, is working for her swimming badge—another reason for the repeat visit.

First Report Is Given In Glass Jar Drive

First report on the glass-jar-collecting campaign for the WPA school lunch canning project were made yesterday, with 500 jars having been offered by donors who telephoned the information desk set up by Parent-Teacher officials.

No count has yet been made of the jars taken by contributors to the 29 public schools which are serving as depositories. In addition, several downtown stores have telephoned that they had donations to make.

Contributors who wish to have their jars collected should telephone the P.-T. A information desk, Republic 0934 or 0935, it was stressed yesterday by Mrs. Edward R. Seal, a member of the campaign committee.

Club Federation Seeking New Place to Meet

The advisory council of the District Federation of Women's Clubs tomorrow will discuss the question of a meeting place for the federation in the coming season.

It was to have met in the studio of the District branch, National League of American Pen Women, in the Grafton Hotel, which has now been leased to a British commission.

The advisory council, which is composed of federation officers, past presidents and chairmen of departments, will meet at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, chairman of the department of legislation.

Mrs. Arthur Charles Watkins, president of the federation, will present appointments of chairmen of nursing and nutrition committees, to be approved by the council.

Women's City Club Will Discuss 'Lace'

The Women's City Club's Thursday night program this week will center around the theme of "Lace." Members have been asked to bring prized pieces and give facts about them.

After the exhibition two prizes will be given in a quiz on lace. Miss Ann Singleton will be hostess for the evening.

Jobs for All in U. S. Seen by '44

Forecasting that full employment will be attained by 1944, the National Resources Planning Board warned last night that the United States can win the war and still "lose everything we are arming to defend, if, in the transition to peace, we slip back to a low national income with its inevitable unemployment, suffering chaos and loss of freedom."

In a pamphlet entitled "After Defense—What?" the board asserted that from 23 million to 26 million workers must be transferred from the war industries to peace-time occupations when the war is over. The transition must be accomplished without unemployment in order to avoid a serious slump, it said.

Five Objectives Offered

The board offered five preliminary objectives for study and asked the cooperation of the Nation in focusing attention on post-defense activities that must be planned now to retain the war-time prosperity which the country is enjoying:

(1) The country must plan for full employment and a war-prosperity income of 100 billion dollars, forecast for 1944, rather than let it slip back to 80 billion dollars, or 70 billion dollars, or 60 billion dollars.

(2) The record national income should be attained without requiring work from youths who should be in school, the aged, and women who choose to make their contribution in the home; and without asking anyone to work regularly in mines, factories, transportation or offices more than 40 hours a week, or 50 weeks a year, or at a sacrifice of wage standards.

Promise of American Life

(3) A return to free enterprise; decentralization of post-defense emergency activities as far as possible.

4. "We must plan to enable every human being within our boundaries to realize progressively the promise of American life in food, shelter, clothing, medical care, education, work, home life, opportunity to advance, adventure and the basis freedoms," it is stated.

5. "Upbuilding America" should be the keynote of the postdefense program to be attained through construction projects and increase in the so-called service activities such as medicine, skill and productivity.

The Resources Board apparently based its calculations on the theory that the war will not be ended before 1944.

Experience of Germany

Discussing the absorption of the unemployed, the board reviews the experience of Germany from 1933 to the outbreak of the war in 1939, which are known as the years of preparation for German conquest. It says that in no year since 1933, despite the fact that Germany was marshalling every ounce of its strength for war, did its war industries absorb more than 1,800,000 annually.

"For the United States, with a population twice as great as that of Germany, this would mean 3,600,000 workers," per year, it was stated. The peak of absorption may reach 4,000,000 workers, and on this basis the country may not attain full employment before 1944.

Under a system of full employment, it was estimated, the national income may reach 105 billion or 110 billion dollars.

Man Arraigned As Mattress 'Bank' Thief

The man accused of stealing the life savings from Mrs. Rose Fones, 73, of 416 Third Street Northwest, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of grand larceny and ordered held for the grand jury.

Bail for the accused man, Shields C. Graham, 25, was set at $5000. Graham, who lived in the same house with Mrs. Fones, left Washington the day of the robbery, police said, and was later arrested in Bristol, Tenn. The missing sum, $1167 was taken from under Mrs. Fone's bed mattress. It is still missing.

Collection of a birthday fund for Mrs. Fones, who'll be 74 on August 22, yesterday rose to $369.86 with receipt by The Post of a check for $100 from the High's Ice Cream Plant and gifts from eight other donors as follows: Three anonymous, totaling $8; L. B. P., $1; Mary B. Oliver, $2; W. P. K., $1; Miss Margaret L. Wills, $1; Fort Belvoir, $1.

RuhlandWarns Children Must Be Vaccinated

Parents of Washington youngsters who will enter school September 22 yesterday were urged by Health Officer George C. Ruhland to have them examined by family physicians by the end of this month and avoid the last minute rush.

Every child, Dr. Ruhland warned, must be vaccinated against smallpox and he suggested immunization to diphtheria. He explained that the smallpox vaccination is compulsory under District laws.

"Diphtheria immunization," he added, "is not mandatory, but advisable. Such treatment has saved the lives of at least 30 children here every year."

Many children, said Dr. Ruhland, have been retarded in school because of physical defects which have gone unattended. He recommended both eye and teeth checkups.

Families that cannot afford private physicians may take their children to the Health Department Clinic at 16 D Street Northwest at 10 a. m. Saturdays. They may also apply at the Health Security Administration, 1823 L Street Northwest.

Libby to Speak

"Can We Prevent More Icelands?" will be the subject of a talk by Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, tonight at 8:30 at a meeting of the America First Committee. The meeting will take place in the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida Avenue Northwest.

Good Housekeeping

When Good Housekeeping Magazine sent a questionnaire out to 10,000 college girls . . . in 44 country-wide colleges . . . it wasn't just imitating the Gallup Poll for fun! It was helping The Hecht Co. to discover the pet loves and hates of America's college women. It was paving the way to the selection of a college wardrobe here at The Hecht Co. that would be the answer to a sorority sister's dream. The Good Housekeeping Magazine Poll taught our College Shop a good many things. We know that Tailored Things get a rating of Summa Cum Laude. That fuss and feathers flunk out. That you want a wardrobe that's sane . . . and simple . . . yet with plenty of class. That you don't want to mortgage the family homestead to get it. Well . . . here it is . . . the College Wardrobe 10,000 college girls asked for. They can't be wrong!

Wheeler Due to Get Economic Board Post

Leslie A. Wheeler, director of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, will be appointed to a key administrative position with the new Economic Defense Board, it was reported yesterday at the Agriculture Department. The board hasn't had an organization meeting, but one will be held this week. Meantime, Winfield Riefler has been setting up the organization on paper. Riefler will return to his Princeton teaching post in the fall. Wheeler is a Government "career man." He is an economist and a statistician with administrative ability. He is working on a plan of international control of wheat and he has been attempting to bring about better relations with South Americans by helping them work out their agricultural problems.

Arthur S. Flemming, who is successfully holding down two tough jobs, one as Civil Service commissioner and the other as chief of OPM's Labor Supply Division, has appointed three assistants at OPM to spend their time in the field recruiting defense workers. They are Emery Olson, dean of the School of Government at the University of Southern California; James E. Rossell, manager of the New York Civil Service office, and Eric Nicol, former Budget Bureau examiner.

The bill that would give Leon Henderson authority to fix prices carries a Civil Service exemption for specialists and experts. Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee probably will fight it . . . The House Civil Service Committee yesterday closed its hearings on the bill that would liberalize retirements and extend the system to cover all Federal employes. Leo's H. Fisher, administrator of the system, estimated that it would cost 19 million dollars to liberalize and extend it. The committee failed to take action on the bill.

PWA's personnel division has now been consolidated with Federal Works' personnel office. Edgar Puryear, who hired and then had to fire more than 11,000 employes for PWA, has been appointed special assistant to Federal Works Administrator John Carmody . . . Civil Service Commission is in such dire need of economists that it has sent men to each of its 13 districts to round them up . . . Firemen for the District are needed and the commission will hold a test to recruit them. Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 31 and they must live in the District or the metropolitan area. The jobs pay $1900 to start.

Young men who want to learn a trade, here's your chance: The commission has announced a test for apprentices at the Washington Navy Yard. Seventeen different trades have openings for apprentices. Applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 22. The jobs pay $1.30 a day at the start. The deadline for applications is August 27.

U. F. W. A. Blast Near

The factional fight within the United Federal Workers local at the Labor Department is about to break into the open with a bang. The actual explosion is expected to take place tonight, at a meeting of the local, when the right-wing faction, known as the Committee for Union Democracy, will attack the union's leadership for its "mishandling" of the Helen Miller case. Mrs. Miller was fired from the department on charges of communism.

A committee spokesman said that the union had agreed—after committee demands—to fight the Miller case as a denial of civil rights and not as a "union busting" case; moreover, that the union and its members were not to discuss publicly the merits of the Miller case. This agreement, the spokesman said, was broken the same night it was made. The committee then had published leaflets telling its side of the Miller case.

The committee charges that "Helen Miller learned of this on the night of August 5 and Nelson Boris, chairman of the committee, was kept on the phone most of the night. Eleanor Nelson, Henry Rhine (U. F. W. A. paid officials) and Helen Miller called him, pleading with him to stop the release of the leaflet." Its release was stopped, and as the committee explains it, "the present leaders of Local 12 are evidently afraid for the union members to know the truth."

Where There's a Will . . .

Buffalo, Aug. 12.—When James F. McIntyre, Jr., of Niagara Falls, tried to enlist in the Marine Corps here he was told he was four pounds overweight. He weighed 194 pounds.

He returned a few days later, weighing 189 pounds. "I ate nothing but a glass of milk once in a while. Got no sleep and exercised until I was exhausted."

It Wasn't the Heat!

The Montgomery County (Md.) Commissioners yesterday voted emergency action on purchase of three snow plows from Hunter Brothers of Silver Spring, Md., at a price of $430 each. The action was taken, it was explained, because defense needs might make purchase of the plows later an impossibility.

Airport Jurisdiction Study Begins

McCarran Predicts 'Some Surprising Things' Will Be Brought to Light

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada, chairman of the District Committee, yesterday began an investigation of steps necessary to settle the long-standing dispute over whether the new National Airport lies in the jurisdiction of Virginia or the District.

Following a conference with officials of the airport and the four major airlines using the field, McCarran directed his assistant, R. F. Camalier, to study old land grants and other basic law involving the years-old Virginia-District boundary dispute.

McCarran said he wanted to find out if the airport is not, in fact, within the District, and intimated that the answer would be "yes" by expressing the hope that "some surprising things" will be discovered.

Poses Revenue Problem

During the conference it was pointed out that the airport lies on land dredged up from the Potomac River bottom and that the supposed boundary passes through the big air terminal building.

On determination of the boundary hinges settlement of the argument between District and Virginia authorities over collection of gasoline and other taxes, revenues from concessionaires and the question of whether the airport restaurant is to be permitted to sell liquor. The Virginia law prohibits sale of alcoholic beverages by the drink.

Va. Consent May Not Be Needed

Camalier expressed the opinion that if the airport is found to be an essential Government operation it may not be necessary to obtain the consent of Virginia to District control of the field.

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, is sponsor of a bill to put the airport in the District. If passed by Congress, the measure, however, would have to be ratified by the Virginia State Legislature.

McCarran said he wanted the study of the controversy "pushed to the limit" and cited it as "just another example" of what can happen when operations of the Federal Government are moved beyond District limits.

Busmen Have A Holiday At Glen Echo

The midway was packed, the coaster-dip was jammed, and the merry-go-round was thronged as thousands of persons, mostly children, crammed every nook and cranny of Glen Echo in the eighth annual outing yesterday of the employes and families of the Capital Transit Co.

Everybody had fun but it was mostly the children's day. There were jugglers, acrobats, sticky apples, popcorn, a parade by a clown band and all the rest for the kiddies. For the older girls and boys there was dancing, and plenty of it; almost enough to satisfy any jitterbug, with Paul Kain's orchestra hitting the groove in the Spanish Garden ballroom.

And for all there were fistfuls of free tickets. By 4:45 p. m. yesterday 7000 persons had ridden the merry-go-round alone. The whip had attracted 4800 and the coasterdip 9040.

The outing which is sponsored by the Capital Transit Employes Relief Association, was really a busman's holiday and a streetcar motorman's as well. The grown-ups disported themselves in all sorts of contests. The women pushed peanuts with little paddles and the men raced with cups of water.

Balloon blowing contest, first, Frances Anderson; second, Robert Hinley, and third, Margaret Dexter.

Marble race—First, Florence Anderson; second, M. F. Crawford.

Sidewise race—First, Fred Marlow; second, Burton Marlow.

Water-bearers' race for men—First, St. F. Gallagher; second, John Marlow.

Police War On Smoky Cars Ordered

Commissioners Accede to Ickes' 3d Plea; Save-Gas Booth Opens Today

District Commissioners yesterday ordered police to clear the streets of smoky autos in another gasoline savings move, and prepared to open a gas conservation information station today at Post Square.

Following receipt of a third request from Petroleum Coordinator Ickes, the Commissioners directed police to take action against motorists whose autos emit excessive smoke.

Drivers of smoky vehicles will be given a special ticket and summoned to appear at a District testing station within two days. Failure to appear will bring a warrant for arrest.

Ten Days' Grace

On being tested and condemned for excessive smoke, the auto will be given a red sticker, and the defect will have to be remedied in ten days, else the auto tags will be revoked.

The action against machines which leave a trail of oil or smoke in their wake is authorized by District traffic regulations, which state:

No person shall own or operate a motor vehicle which emits from the exhaust or muffler thereof any prolonged, dense or offensive quantity of smoke, gases or disagreeable odors.

The gas conservation booth, which will be set up between that of the District Defense Council and Treasury House, will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies at 10:30 a. m. today. WINX will broadcast the dedication.

Staff of Debutantes

A volunteer staff of debutantes, including Miss Louise McNutt, 20-year-old daughter of Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, will offer curb service information "save gas" auto stickers.

Constructed by local WPA labor, the booth will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p. m. A special parking area in front of the District Building will be provided for motorists who seek information.

At 12:30 p. m. today, A. D. Willard, a member of the conservation committee's speakers' bureau, will address a luncheon meeting of the Zonta Club at the Y. W. C. A.

D. C. Man Can't Get Bond Interest 68 Years Overdue

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 12 (AP).—Sixty-eight years after the due date, John J. Healy, of Washington, D. C., applied for payment of a $40 interest coupon on a Florida bond issued in 1870. But he won't collect.

Healy's application was sent to the State treasurer, who replied that the $1000 bond, on which the $40 interest was due July 1, 1873, was part of an issue authorized in 1870 for constructing the Jacksonville, Pensacola & Mobile Railroad. The whole issue was declared unconstitutional by the Florida Supreme Court many years ago, however. Healy listed his Washington address as 1825 K Street Northwest.

Fire Snarls Traffic

A blaze in a waste-paper room in the basement of the Farm Credit Administration Building, 1300 E Street Northwest, yesterday at 6 p. m. drew 15 pieces of fire-fighting apparatus.

The fire, which was discovered and reported by one of the building guards, was quickly extinguished, but not before traffic in the area surrounding Post Square had been tied up for 15 minutes.

Peggy Moran Gets 43 Million—Gives It Back

Actress Tours City Before Appearance At Treasury House

A. W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, handed 43 million dollars to Peggy Moran, motion picture star, yesterday—and then she handed it back.

Miss Moran's few seconds of wealth were only part of a day's activities on behalf of Treasury House, adjacent to Post Square. Yesterday was "Peggy Moran Day" at the Treasury stand, and after the movie star toured the city with Legion and city officials, she was brought to the Treasury House, and made an honorary majorette by the Alexandria American Legion Post 24.

She encouraged the public to purchase defense savings stamps by autographing albums last night.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced last night that defense savings stamps will soon be sold in retail stores throughout the country. He said that representatives of more than a million stores had pledged participation in the program.

Blind Man Robbed

The meanest thief in town was at work again yesterday. The victim, Welford Brown, a blind man from White Marsh, Va., was riding on a streetcar on H Street Northwest, when his black leather suitcase disappeared with $9 in cash, and some clothing.

Nature Joins Kolisch Quartet To Make Concert a Delight

C. C. Cappel and the National Capital Parks Service present the Kolisch String Quartet (Rudolph Kolisch, Leon Temerson, Kurt Frederick and Stefan Auber) in Meridian Hill Park on Tuesday night. Program: Quartet in A major, Op. 18, No. 5 (Beethoven), Quartet in F major (Ravel), Quartet in D minor (Schubert).

All things worked together last evening to make the eleventh Starlight chamber music concert in Meridian Hill Park justify its name. Cirrus clouds that had streaked the sky at sunset were blown away and points of stellar light glittered in the dark expanse of space. A cool breeze, almost too brisk at times, refreshed the auditors who had gathered for the penultimate program of a series which has more than fulfilled the hopes of the sponsoring committee and proved the foresight of C. C. Cappel by turning an innovation into an institution.

BROWN

The musicans on this occasion were the adept and eloquent members of the Kolisch String Quartet. With the exception of Rudolph Kolisch, however, the organization was quite other than the one that made its American debut at the Library of Congress six years ago.

The program was one which on the one hand delighted those who like to hear familiar music and on the other provided little material for critical commentary. It consisted of Beethoven's A major quartet from Opus 18, the Ravel quartet and Schubert's D minor quartet, known as "Death and the Maiden." What it illustrated pointedly was the contrast between the personalities of the composers.

Beethoven was just emerging from the influence of Mozart and Haydn in his first six quartets, and the music shows little of the ruggedness and power that his character was to develop. In Ravel's quartet one is aware of the ironic aloofness with which he regarded the phenomenal world and of the scepticism which invariably sapped his creative imagination. In the Schubert quartet one hears the plaintive utterance of a gentle spirit wholly engrossed in romantic dreamings and bewildered by hard realities.

Gallup Poll

Separate Airforce Plan Favored

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 12.—The controversy over the question whether the United States should have a separate air force has come to a head in several bills now before Congress, one of them sponsored by Senator Pat McCarran.

Military experts disagree among themselves about the advisability of a separate airforce organized independently of the Army or Navy. The contentions of Maj. Al Williams and other aviation experts who favor the plan are disputed by Army and Navy officials. In this controversy, public opinion is not important on technical grounds, for probably no one person in the country is qualified to pass final judgment on the techical merits of the question. But public opinion is important to the extent that a separate airforce would probably call for the establishment of a new cabinet department and for added appropriations to support this department.

Opinion Vacillates

The Institute's survey of public entiment on the issue indicates that, to date, the arguments put forward by those who advocate a separate airforce have apparently been more convincing to the public than the arguments against a separate airforce.

Sentiment on such an issue is, of course, bound to be dynamic, not static, and changes are to be expected as the discussion continues. At the present time, the public's attitude is shown in the results of the following question put to a scientifically selected cross-section of the population:

"At present the airforce is a part of both the Army and Navy, and not a separate branch of our armed forces. Do you think the air force should be made a separate branch of the armed forces?"

Yes	42%
No	33
No Opinion	25

If the vote of those without opinion be eliminated, sentiment is 55 per cent in favor, 45 per cent opposed, among those with opinions.

How Who's Who Voted

The public's attitude toward this issue corresponds closely with the attitude of persons listed in "Who's Who in America"—catalog of successful leaders in every branch of endeavor. A recent Institute poll among "Who's Who" showed the following sentiment on the establishment of a separate airforce:

Vote of Persons in Who's Who
Favor Separate Airforce	49%
Opposed	24

Public Faith in Airpower

Today's controversy over a separate air arm calls to mind an earlier controversy over airpower in which the public's judgment proved valuable.

The Nation's voters are obviously not military experts, yet as early as November, 1935—nearly six years ago—84 per cent were in favor of strengthening the airpower of the United States.

By the time the European war broke out in September, 1939, 91 per cent of American voters were for a stronger airforce.

The public's early judgment of the value of airpower was thoroughly vindicated when, through command of the air, the Hitler blitzkreig was able to achieve miracles in the fighting of 1940 and early 1941.

Lady Duff Cooper Describes Playing Wartime Maid to Cow

Once 'Most Beautiful' Actress Says She Found Farming Fun

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 12.—Lady Dianna Duff Cooper is headed toward Singapore, happy in the knowledge that when war comes a fair and titled lady can slop a pig and milk a cow and make a mighty fine cheese.

The former Lady Diana Manners, once hailed as England's most beautiful actress, attested to these talents yesterday while pausing here en route to Singapore with her husband, Alfred Duff Cooper, former minister of information, who was assigned to a new mission in the Far East.

All this summer, she said in an interview, she has been up bright and early at her cottage on Bognor Beach for a day of down to earth farming.

A friend came down to the country to teach her the tricks of the trade, and then, unhampered by her fragile loveliness, she tok up the task of playing wartime maid to a cow, 2 goats, 6 pigs, 30 hens and 2 beehives.

Her cow she named "Princess"—"such a lovely cow. I simply adore her. And sh egives so much good milk."

Part of the milk was used by evacuees who lived at the cottage with her—two mothers and six children.

Every day, she said, she made a cheese, sort of a cheddar, for winter consumption and found that her ability improved with experience.

During the afternoon she drove the rounds of the countryside to collect garbage for her pigs because "England has always depended on concentrated foods for livestock and now that that is heavily rationed, we go out and pick up scraps for them."

"Wartime in England isn't as terrible as it sounds. One gets used to everything and then there's the feeling of working close together. I never believed farming could be so much fun.

"But now—it's off to Singapore.'

U. S. Is in the War 'Up to the Neck,' Henry Allen Says

Amersham, Bucks, England, Aug. 12 (AP).—Henry J. Allen, former Governor of Kansas, told an audience here today that the United States "is in this war up to the neck and cannot get out of it."

Allen spaded the first soil for construction of a nursery school for child evacuees of bombed cities.

"If you could see America today you would be satisfied with the progress we are making," he said. "We are making the progress we dreamed of and have become, in Mr. Churchill's phrase, 'the arsenal of democracy.'

"We are in the war with you and those who ask, 'when are you going into the war?' Do not realize that we are in it up to the neck."

Four Aces Beaten In Bridge Tourney

German Protest Against Blacklist Rejected by Haiti

Port au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 12 (AP).—Haiti disclosed today it had rejected a German protest against the United States blacklist of Latin American firms trading with the Axis.

Walter Kaempfe, German charge d'affaires, had said in a note that the blacklist had stricken German commerce and encroached on the sovereignty of Haiti.

Haitian Foreign Minister Charles Fombrun replied that "the government of the United States has acted, under the circumstances, fully within its rights" and asserted that Haiti was the sole judge of its sovereignty. Fombrun's note ended with a statement that "any interference of the German government in what the Haitian government considers as an absolute right of free determination of the Republic of Haiti" would "not remain without influence on Haitian decisions at the time of the resumption of Haitian-German commercial relations" after the war.

U. S. British Envoys Warn Japanese

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Aug. 12.—The American-British stand on the Far Eastern crisis as expressed in recent statements by Secretary of State Hull and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was formally conveyed to the Japanese government by both United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie in recent interviews with Foreign Minister Admiral Tijiro Toyoda, it was understood in political circles here today.

As the result of these steps as well as direct discussions by Hull and Japan's Ambassador in Washington, Admiral Nomura, the Japanese government has been officially informed that any action that would threaten the independence of Thailand would be a matter of immediate concern to Britain and the United States and that the United States and Britain were prepared to meet any step Japan make take, move for move.

Inasmuch as Eden has warned that any threat to Thailand's independence threatens the security of Singapore on which hinges the whole position of both Britain and the United States in the Far East, there is little doubt any more in Japanese minds today what the next step would be.

Hitherto the American stand, as it had been notified to the Japanese government, had been that the United States was committed to its own defense program and aid to Britain and that in such a double program it could not permit the stoppage of essential raw materials to the United States or the closing of Britain's backdoor, represented as its Far Eastern communication lines, which would nullify any aid poured into Britain through the front door.

But the line at which America's defense program for aid to Britain would be affected by a Japanese advance remained indefinite, though Japan knew that her advance into French Indo-China would not have any more serious consequences than it did, even though this came as a surprise.

Now with the lines drawn and with British-American resolution being emphasized by Japanese press dispatches from the United States and Britain, the issue has been substantially clarified. But the ultimate Japanese reaction to the Anglo-American stand remains to be seen.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

SEPTEMBER WILL SIZZLE. With at least two, maybe three, topflight new night clubs due to open in September, the month promises to be a thriller. Add on the leading spots closed for the summer, including the Carlton's Cosmos Room, the Troika, Paul Young's Romany Room and the Wardman Park Metronome Room—and the prospect looks dizzy!

The new places include the Balalaika, "theater-restaurant" at Connecticut Avenue and M Street (it's to have a real stage), Herbie Sachs fresh Washington edition of Del Rio on Fifteenth Street in the former Republican headquartrs, and prhaps a verra swank spot on Connecticut Avenue. This last is now tied up in lease trouble and there's no telling what'll happen.

Tonight's star event will be the selection of "Miss Virginia" on the S. S. Mount Vernon, recently the scene of the "Miss Washington" finals. The judges' committee will include representatives of Washington and Virginia newspapers.

At Burt's Trans-Lux was George Wheeler, N. B. C. executive, proudly celebrating the advent of a bonny baby son, who's bound to become a radio announcer because, says his papa, he has the voice and delivery right now!

MAGIC NAME. The Neptune Room's amateur contest last fall was won by Leslie Hare and now Dick Leslie is the winner of the "Impersonators' Nights." The winners have no kinship whatever, but there seems to be magic in that Leslie name . . . Dick Leslie is riding high, wide and pretty this week at Neptune, the Capitol Theater and on WINX, three engagements of which any entertainer can be proud.

The new airport dining room shows the last word in harmonized fittings. Tablecloths, china, napkins and even match covers all bear the same insignia and are in a planned color harmony.

THE TRIPPERS. Ted Alexander of Dick Koons' Mayflower Lounge band, leaves today to visit his family in California. It will be the first reunion in five years, also his parents' first glimpse of Ted's pretty wife and 1-year-old Teddy, jr. . . . When Glen Echo closes some time after Labor Day, singer Adele Van will go to the Paramount Studios in New York for a screen test. Band Leader Paul Kain is promising himself two weeks of complete rest in the Pocono Hills.

CUTE GIRLS AND FROCKS. Carmela Lazari, Hi Hat's soprano canary, is looking midsummeriah in a red silk jersey coat-blouse with white shirt and a big necklace of tiny white beads . . . "Glamor pajamas" is the name for the kind worn by Lotus' dancing chorus. They're of black chiffon embroidered with jet spangles . . . Violinist Jane Marlow of Restaurant "823" has gone completely tropical in a print frock in a design of big, splashy red flowers. With it she wears a red jacket with lapels of the print . . . At the opposite extreme is Dancer Labrunne, of the Casino Royal, whose formal of pale gray chiffon and lace looks like a floating cloud.

PHIL OF THE PLYMOUTH. Phil Woods, mixologist of the Plymouth, has a history twice as long as your arm. After serving in the A. E. F. in World War I, he fell in love with France, became a Paris taxi-driver. And the stories he can tell! He ought to put them in a book.

SPORTS DEPARTMENT. A golf feud is on between pianist Bob Brewer and saxist Rubin, of Bert Bernath's Pall Mall Room orchestra. Even with Marty getting a handicap, he hasn't been able to down Bob so far. But this, remember, is Brewer's version of the story. . . . Maestro Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room, is beginning to think his personality has a peculiar attraction for hardheads (the fish, we mean). On two recent excursions his party landed 226 and 90 of these unwary denizens of the Chesapeaks. . . . Valentina, of the Madrillon, went fishing lately, caught one baby eel, one adult crap. . . . "We two," of the Anchor Room, have been polishing up their fishing equipment and asking where the fish are running. The first thing for them to do is to put those tarpon rods away and start singing "Small Fry"—if they're no luckier than most local anglers.

Washington's foreign colony is especially enthusiastic about the Mayfair's new Senators who are singing the popular songs of various nations in no less than six different tongues—and with perfect accents.

MONDAY MUSICAL TOURS. Rodd Raffell's Nightingale orchestra is always seen at five or six spots around town on Monday nights when the 'Gale closes to catch its breath for another big week. But these Monday tours can't really be called "night off." They're part of the Raffell scheme of keeping abreast if everything that's doing in a musical way.

REAL FARMHOUSE DINNERS are the rule at Mason Tom O'Donnell's Farmhouse out Marlboro way. They're immense,—both in quality and quantity. Among the toothsome items,—real Virginia ham, Southern style fried chicken, hot corn bread and fluffy and steaming biscuits and rolls and vegetables grown right on the farm.

RIVER BEND PERSONALITIES. Drummer Cliff Hofen, of George Stein's Riber Bend Orchestra, went to Louisiana State University, also served a trick with the Marine Corps. He looks like Paul Kelly of the movies . . . Saxist Joe Moser is the tallest musician in town, standing a good 6 feet 4 inches. He was formerly with Charlie Spivak's Band . . . All of the River Bend Orchestra are still trying to beat Maestro George at golf—just trying.

SIR HARRINGTONS., tutelary spirit of the Harrington Tavern, is one of our favorite legendary figures. But, come to think of it, Sir Harrington isn't legendary because the hospitality and fine beverages he stands for, are always present in the tavern.

Looking for a house to buy? Or have you one to sell? Either way, the real estate columns of The Post's classified section are a real boon. Buyers profit by the advantageous prices put on so many of the homes advertised here. Sellers profit by the quick response and low advertising rate of all Post want-ads: 20c a line, with an even lower rate for repeated and contract insertions. Turn to this tested sales medium—to find a home or to sell one.

Styles in Architecture

NEW ORLEANS

Many authentic original houses built by early Spanish and French colonists still stand in the old French quarter of New Orleans. These houses are famous for their "embroidered" balconies of delicately wrought iron. The French called them galleries; the Spanish, miradors. Modified examples of this Creole style, such as the one shown here, are being built in Washington.

HAY FEVER and ASTHMA
Science has not yet found a preparation which will give relief to all hay fever and asthma sufferers. This is understandable when one realizes that both of these conditions can be caused by many things, such as pollens from flowers, weeds, perfumes, animal hairs, improper diet, etc. However, science has discovered that many cases of hay fever and asthma get amazing relief from the administration of a certain vitamin-fed element. Allo-tan, a rich source of this important element, gives relief to thousands of sufferers year in and year out. Allo-tan is put up in inexpensive, easy-to-take tablets.

30% Payments As Installment Curb Weighed

Increases of 30 per cent in the down payments and installment payments that the average man will have to make to buy a new car or household appliance, are being considered by the Federal Reserve Board, new czar of the long-term payment business, it was learned last night.

In addition the board, ordered Monday by President Roosevelt to control installment credit as a means of curbing inflation, is being officially urged to:

Prescribe especially stiff terms for installment buyers of oil burners, to help relieve the Atlantic Coast oil shortage.

Shorten Contracts

Restrict the length of all installment contracts on durable consumers goods to 18 or 20 months, in order to dampen demand for automobiles, washing machines, refrigerators, oil burners, automatic furnaces and other goods that are made of the same materials as defense weapons.

Charge license fees to firms in the installment selling and loan business, ranging from fees of $1 for firms with less than $5000 in installment accounts outstanding to $15 and up for firms with $150,000 and more in credits outstanding.

Enforce its orders by invalidating sales contracts that do not comply with board regulations, and also by using publicity against offenders as well as the threat of fines of $10,000 and ten-year jail terms for convicted violators.

Launch a publicity campaign to discourage purchase of new household equipment and automobiles, and to represent the use of old goods as a demonstration of patriotism.

Prepared by Nugent

These recommendations were drawn up by Rolf Nugent, consultant on installment credit problems to the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

Leon Henderson, OPACS Administrator, told the House Banking and Currency Committee last week that his indorsement of installment credit control was based on a memorandum prepared by Nugent, which outlines in full the program announced Monday by the Reserve Board. Nugent, an official of the Russell Sage Foundation in New York, wrote his memorandum in May, 1941.

Henderson, newly appointed to be a member of a committee to consult with the Reserve Board in control of easy payment credits, has laid Nugent's ideas before Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

It is understood that the Reserve Board is giving the utmost attention to Nugent's recommendations. He was in Washington yesterday conferring with Federal Reserve officials.

U. A. W. Stages Parade Before Curtiss Plant

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 12.—One thousand U. A. W.-C. I. O. delegates abandoned for two hours the business of their sixth national convention today to appeal to Curtiss-Wright airplane workers to "join with them to raise the wage level of the aircraft industry."

Before convening in a night closed session, the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers staged orderly and peaceful mass demonstrations at the company's two plants. They exhorted the workers to dislodge The Aircraft, an independent union of Curtiss employes.

The convention last week set as one of its main objectives the organization of aviation workers.

Earlier today Leo Kriegbaum, president of The Aircraft, warned the U. A. W.-C. I. O. "to stay within their proper bounds."

"I know the temper of a lot of our members," he said, "who may very much resent the attempted invasion of The Aircraft's domain by the United Automobile Workers, and if the U. A. W. sends some of its Red agitators and Communists out there somebody is likely to start swinging."

The delegates paraded in front of the factories, bearing American flags, banners and placards. Sound trucks carried their appeal. They thrust leaflets and membership blanks into automobiles as the workers entered and left the plant during the afternoon shift.

Kriegbaum, whose independent union claims a membership of 9000 among the 15,000 Curtiss employes, mingled with the U. A. W.-C. I. O. representatives, who attempted to persuade him to join their union.

Among officials making appeals in the sound trucks were Richard T. Frankensteen, C. I. O. aviation director; U. A. W.-C. I. O. President R. J. Thomas and Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes.

OPM Speeds Aid to Small Manufacturing

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

William E. Lewis, president of Owen-Illinois Glass Co., will head the reorganized defense contract service division of the Office of Production Management, it was learned yesterday, in a sweeping move to encourage subcontracting of defense production as a means of alleviating unemployment resulting from priorities.

William S. Knudsen, associate director of OPM, will make the announcement today. Knudsen will make a speech in New York discussing the efforts of OPM to prevent the collapse of small manufacturing firms, due to the scarcity of raw materials and operation of priorities.

The defense contracts service is now headed by Robert Mehornay, of Kansas City. Whether Mr. Mehornay will stay with OPM could not be learned. Defense contracts are under the supervision of John D. Biggers, production director of OPM.

The Defense Contract Service recently has undertaken conferences with small manufacturers to push the subcontracting of defense articles.

Many of the small companies which use such strategic raw materials as copper, aluminum, magnesium, tin and other metals are beginning to feel the pinch by the operation of priorities. Some face the prospect of closing for lack of raw materials because they are not engaged in producing defense articles.

Elimination of these firms, which are engaged primarily in producing consumer goods, will lead to much unemployment. Last Friday, Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, asserted before the Senate Finance Committee that operation of priorities in the next six months was a greater threat to this country than Hitler.

A resolution providing for creation of a five-man committee to investigate utilization of small business in the national defense effort was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas.

Manufacturers' Sales Tax Urged Instead of Lower Base

By Turner Catledge

Copyright by New York Times

Adoption of a general manufacturers' sales tax as a substitute for the list of special excises in present law and the pending tax bill, and as a means for adding several hundred million dollars to the yield of the latter, was urged repeatedly before the Senate Finance Committee as it continued hearings yesterday on the $3,236,000,000 measure.

Despite these recommendations, and the feeling expressed by Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Senate majority leader, that Congress might have to come to it sooner or later, Senator George, of Georgia, chairman, said the majority sentiment of the committee appeared to be against a sales tax, even if levied on manufacturers alone. Even Senator Barkley indicated that he did not believe it necessary at this time.

Senator George said the one thing that seemed definite now as to revision of the tax bill was that the Senate would broaden the income tax base by reducing exemptions of single persons from $800 to $750 and married persons from $2000 to $1500.

Urged as Substitute

Witnesses who favored a manufacturers' sales tax before the committee did not propose it so much as a move within itself as in the nature of a substitute for other provisions of the present law or the pending bill.

Hugh Satterlee, chairman of the New York County Lawyers Association Taxation Committee, said a general sales tax would obviate the necessity of broadening the base of the income levy and would also remove inequities existing in the present system of excises on selected commodities.

"We may have to come to a general sales tax," Barkley interrupted. "I am not closing the door to it, but it seems to me we shouldn't do it until we have to."

Satterlee appeared primarily to submit a brief in opposition to a proposal, rejected by the House, for mandatory filing of joint income tax returns by husbands and wives.

Under questioning of Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, and others, Jay Iglauer, of Cleveland, chairman of the Taxation Committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, placed his organization on record as favoring a general manufacturers' sales levy as a substitute for the special excises imposed by present law and enlarged by the pending bill.

Taxes Protested

Iglauer protested particularly the proposed retailers excises on jewelry, furs and toilet preparations provided in the House measure.

George F. Parton, of New York, president of the New York State Safe Deposit Association, protested as "not equitable or fair" the increase of from 11 to 20 per cent in the tax on safe deposit box rentals as set out in the pending bill; John W. Hart, of Kendallville, Inc., president of the Commercial Refrigerator Manufacturers Association, asked for elimination of the proposed 10 per cent manufacturers' excise on commercial refrigerators, beverage coolers, ice cream cabinets, water coolers, etc., and J. A. MacDonald, of New York, representing the conrtolled companies of the American District Telegraph Co., requested that the House tax of 5 per cent on wire services not be assessed against central systems operated for the prevention of fire burglary and sabotage.

Representative Dow W. Harter (Democrat), of Ohio, protested the increased tax on tires and tubes of from 2¼ cents per pound to 5 cents and from 4 cents per pound to 9 cents, respectively.

"Tires are not luxuries and should not be taxed at luxury rates," Harter argued."

ALL NIGHT LONG... You're Welcome

Remember that late drive home in a blinding rain, with the gas gauge creeping toward "empty"? Remember how one service station after another was blacked-out, closed? Remember worrying about the long, wet walk home?

* * *

But that needn't happen to you this summer. Once more Texaco Dealers have pioneered! They now offer you all-night-service on every main highway in America throughout the summer touring season.

No matter how late the hour or how bad the night... a Texaco Dealer is ready to supply you with either of those two famous Texaco Gasolines, Fire-Chief or SKY CHIEF. He will give your motor needed protection with Insulated Havoline, or Texaco Motor Oil. He will clean that rain-blurred windshield, offer you the shelter and convenience of his Registered Rest Room, send you safely on your way. Yes! Day or night... You're Welcome !!

This advertisement is appearing in:
Saturday Eve. Post, August 9th; Collier's, August 16th; Liberty, August 23rd; Life, August 25th; Newsweek, August 18th; Time, August 18th

THE advertisement reproduced above is now appearing in leading national magazines in color. It was delivered to these magazines some time ago so that you could read it today.

Developments in the gasoline shortage situation along the Eastern Seaboard have now made it necessary to modify its message. We were unable to make changes in the advertisement itself.

In behalf of National Defense, Texaco Dealers in the shortage area are cooperating with Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes' request that all gasoline stations remain closed from 7 o'clock in the evening until 7 o'clock in the morning.

Because they are cooperating fully with this Government Program they are not rendering All Night Service as stated in the advertisement.

Texaco Dealers rendering All Night Service in other parts of the country will, of course, continue to render this service.

We pledge our full cooperation, and ask yours, in supporting the Government's program to conserve the gasoline supply.

Screen Starlet Has Ride On the Merry-Go-Round

Peggy Moran Puts in a Day Seeing Capital; Jesse L. Lasky Signs On at Warner Bros.; Items of News and Gossip About the Theater

IT HAS HAPPENED AGAIN. In fact, it almost always does. Which is to say that that delectable young person known to the gelatins as Peggy Moran yesterday saw more of the National Capital in 12 hours than most of its permanent residents get around to in three times that many years. And she thinks it is quite a town; hopes to come back some time and make sure that the Lincoln Memorial doesn't stand where the Capitol is and that the Supreme Court Building is not the White House. Those dizzy tours are a little confusing.

PEGGY MORAN

But when Miss Moran arrived at her press cocktail party in the Variety Club yesterday afternoon at the theoretical hour of 3—looking as if she had just left the beautician's, as she probably had—she knew all about money. Her last previous points of call had been the United States Treasury and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. "Even if I never get hold of any of it, at least I know how it is made."

Arriving from Boston yesterday at 8 a. m., Peggy was on a merry-go-round far into last night, what with recurrent appearances at Treasury House, facing Post Square, broadcasts and all those other time-tabled engagements. During the three weeks she has been away from Hollywood, prior to Washington, her "vacation" has been a similar whirl of cyclonic and kaleidoscopic days, just like yesterday. Today she is spending in Philadelphia, then a British War Relief broadcast from New York and then by plane back to Hollywood, a full three weeks ahead of schedule. This hasty return to the studio grind is partly a new picture and to a greater degree her mother's ill health on the Coast.

It deserves to be recorded at once that the cameras do not do Peggy justice, youthful, vivacious and beautiful as they make her appear. She is on the brunette side, with finely chiseled features, delightful speaking voice and blessed with high animation. Her conversation is glib and intelligent and she views her screen career as something more than a schoolgirl lark. Otherwise she probably would not have appeared in 25 pictures in the last two years. The one she likes as well as any is that best of all the "Western" burlesques, "The Trail of the Vigilantes," in which she played with Franchot Tone, Andy Devine, Broderick Crawford, Mischa Auer, et al. That one started out to be an entirely serious blood-and-thunder melodrama, until everybody concerned discovered that it was pretty corny, as serious drama, but elegant material for a goofy comedy. So they tore up the original script and started over again—Heaven be praised.

The next picture in which you will see this ambitious young Iowa Californian—she was born in Clinton, but has lived in Los Angeles since she was 5—probably will be Universal's "Keep Them Flying." Having discovered that the girl has what it takes, Universal has no present intention to permit her talents to languish. Having been greatly encouraged by him on the lot, Peggy agrees with this department that Charles Laughton is one of the grandest characters in Hollywood. And getting right down to brass tacks, she's not so bad herself.

An Embarrassment of Riches

RKO-Keith's Theater, with Assistant Manager Sol Sorkin as mouthpiece, is apologetic to both the public and the drama desks for having yanked Ginger Roger's "Tom, Dick and Harry," after having previously announced a third week for that fantastic comedy, and romping in Abbott and Costello in "Hold That Ghost," on Friday. Under the circumstances, they needn't be. It seems the reason for the whole thing is that there are so many ace features backed up on the Keith shelf that they simply have to begin to move. Seven of the first water, as the saying goes, are screaming for playing time, including a popular-priced showing of Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane," penciled in for Labor Day. More of this later, when, as and if Mr. Sorkin makes good his threat to put the whole unprecedented business in typewriting.

Signs on Dotted Line

Jesse L. Lasky, a recent visitor in Washington, according to his own statement made to the Warner Brothers recent sales convention in Chicago, has affiliated himself exclusively with Warner Brothers as outlet for his future productions. Since the sensational reception accorded "Sergeant York," now nearing the end of its run as a "road show" at both the Earle and Ambassador theaters, Mr. Lasky reports offers from practically all of the major producing companies on the West Coast, but the Warner handling of "York" copped his sig. His next for the studio will be "The Adventures of Mark Twain."

And-Then-the-Rains-Came Note

So what?

The Films, at Long Last, Get A Nod From Noted Producer

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Aug. 12.—There is a movie coming up concerning a couple of insane sisters, a particularly sordid number, an embezzler, an illicit love affair and about everything else upon which the Hays office frowns.

It is "Ladies in Retirement," and it has been done so neatly that the Hays censors have recommended it as an example of how to handle unpleasant subjects inoffensively in the movies. It also is the reason for Gilbert Miller, the celebrated stage producer, renouncing a 25-year hate for Hollywood. It's his show, and wonder of wonders, he likes it.

The portly Miller has sold for fabulous sums the movie rights to such stage hits of his as "Petrified Forests," Journey's End," and "Tovarich." The resultant pictures mostly made Miller boil.

"One I remember made a good movie," Miller said. "Only it wasn't anything like the play I sold. I tried to buy the stage rights to the picture they made, because it was an eminently new story, but they wouldn't sell. Thought maybe it might turn out embarrassingly."

So Miller stayed with the Henry Miller Theater in New York, went to London every year to try out new plays and new actors, and laughed a mighty laugh when anybody suggested he try his hand at Hollywood. He'd sell the movie makers his plays when he was through with them and for fabulous sums, but he'd be doggoned if he'd waste his time in the film business. That, at least, is how he felt until he met Lester Cowan.

Miller had turned down offers from almost every big studio in Hollywood, but young Cowan, now producing pictures at Columbia, talked him into turning over "Ladies in Retirement" to the movies free. Miller did receive a coproducership and an interest in the film. First time he ever did that.

"But I wouldn't have anything to do with the actual making of it," he said, "now that I've seen it, I'm glad I didn't. It's a good job."

The whole picture was made on one set, with performers Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward and others following the original lines almost exactly. Miller never has seen that happen to one of his plays before.

"Journey's End," the story of what happened in a dugout during the first world war, cost Miller $15,000 to produce and it netted $700,000. Even the movies don't do that well.

Miller said his best money-maker was "Queen Victoria." It has grossed better than $2,000,000 on the stage. He believed one of the best plays he ever produced was "The Late Christopher Bean."

"They made a movie of that one, too," he said, "but the picture wasn't like the play."

Some Womanpower in It, Too!

New Film Foursome Includes Three Dramas and One Comedy

"MANPOWER." Marlene Dietrich, Edward G. Robinson and George Raft have the pivotal roles in this screen drama of linemen and their danger-fraught lives opening Friday at the Earle, which returns at that time to its normal price scale following the run of "Sergeant York." Alan Hale, Frank McHugh and Eve Arden head the supporting cast. Stan Kavanaugh, the silent juggler, headlines the stage revue, which features the Lathrop Brothers and Virginia Lee, the Honey Family, the Roxyettes and Julio Cesar Berrizbeitia, Venezuelan hiker, turned tenor.

Capitol

RKO-Keith's

"HOLD THAT GHOST." Abbott and Costello are implicated in a weird hotel in which secret panels and unexpected bodies are the order of the day. In their latest comedy the popular duo is supported by the Andrew Sisters, Ted Lewis and his orchestra, Richard Carlson, Joan Davis, Mischa Auer, Russell Hicks and Marc Lawrence. Also on the Keith screen will be a new "March of Time" release, "Peace—by Adolf Hitler." Opens Friday.

Metropolitan

"BAD MEN OF MISSOURI." The Younger Brothers, who became outlaws after the murder of their father and sought to right wrongs the law did not correct, are the heroes of this new feature starring Dennis Morgan, Jane Wyman, Wayne Morris and Arthur Kennedy. Opens Friday morning.

Palace

"CHARLEY'S AUNT." Jack Benny continues for a second week as the Oxford student forced to impersonate a wealthy lady from Brazil to further the course of true love for two classmates. James Ellison, Kay Francis, Edmund Gwenn, Laird Cregar and Richard Hayden are featured.

Columbia

"BLOSSOMS IN THE DUST." Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon return in this Technicolor biography of the Texas woman, Mrs. Edna Gladney, who has devoted her life to aiding foundlings. Samuel S. Hinds, Felix Bressart and Kathleen Howard head the support. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS." The James Hilton character of the English schoolmaster, brought so strikingly to life by Robert Donat, continues into a second week in its farewell engagement. Greer Garson and Terry Kilburn are featured.

Trans-Lux

"MAN, THE ENIGMA." Picturing the triumph of the democratic order and the destruction of totalitarian philosophy, as illustrated in the animal kingdom, this is the central short subject for the new week at the newsreel theater. Jan Struther is the guest expert for "Information Please" and "The Alley Cat" is the cartoon. Opens Friday morning.

Open Air

"THE WESTERNER," with Gary Cooper and Walter Brennan in the leading roles, will share the giant screen at the drive-in auto theater on the Richmond Highway with "Star Dust" for a three-night run, commencing tomorrow evening. "Foreign Correspondent" and "On the Avenue" are the current attractions.

Glen Echo

THE AMUSEMENT PARK, having passed its seasonal halfway point, checks up its books to discover that the 1941 year is one of the most successful in its history. The two cafes prove increasingly popular addenda to the fifty-odd amusements and Paul Kain's orchestra a melodic nightcap in the ballroom.

Wilson Line

"MISS VIRGINIA" CONTEST is the week's big event on the S. S. Mount Vernon's schedule, planned for tonight's moonlight cruise sailing from the Seventh Street wharves at 8:30. The Mount Vernon also offers daylight cruises at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., to Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall, and Sunset Cruises to Marshall Hall at 5:30 every afternoon except Mondays and Tuesdays.

Potomac Line

SHEP FIELDS and his orchestra will vend the dance tunes for this weekend's moonlight cruises of the S. S. Potomac, sailing Saturday evening at 8:45 and 12:30 midnight. The steamer also offers nightly moonlight cruises and Sunday and Wednesday all-day trips to Colonial Beach, sailing at 9 a. m.

Seaside

CHESAPEAKE BEACH on the Maryland bay shore promises space for picnic and play, with a salt water swimming pool, a mile boardwalk and pier. There's also dancing Sunday afternoons and nightly except Mondays.

Cross Roads

"THE OLD SOAK." Arch McDonald returns Tuesday evening as Clem Hawley in the Virginia barn theater's revival of the comedy in which the baseball broadcaster scored a resounding hit two seasons ago.

HEDDA HOPPER

Considers Main Idea

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 12. With M-G-M readying another "Barnacle Bill" picture for her, it's plain that Hollywood is bent on making another Marie Dressler out of Marjorie Main. I think it's a mistake. Marjorie's too great an actress in her own right to have to follow in anybody's footsteps.

MARJORIE MAIN

Of course, I wouldn't want to see her give up her raucous characterizations entirely. The screen would lose by that, too. But please, studio and public, remember "Dead End," and don't forget that Marjorie's got more than the ability to swat Wally Beery over the head with a boot.

So happy to hear Constance Collier has a hit in Ivor Novello's play, "Comedienne," now titled "Curtain Going Up." Curtain will go up for it on Broadway this fall. Reason for the change of title is that Laurette Taylor's late husband, Hartley Manners, wrote a play called "Comedienne" years ago, and Laurette asked them not to use the name. So Moss Hart suggested that they use "Curtain Going Up," which was title of a play that he and George Kaufman had registered but never got around to writing.

Ironically enough, Hartley Manners wrote a play for Constance Collier, years before he met Laurette Taylor, which was titled "Peg O' My Heart" and never produced. One day he called Constance and asked if he might have the title back. She gave it to him, and it was the biggest hit Laurette and Hartley ever had.

Well, well, after all of the advance publicity on "Flight Patrol," those whimsical Warners have gone and changed the title to "International Squadron." It was the last picture in which James Stephenson worked and is said to have been the finest performance of his career . . . Now word comes that Steve Fisher's story "I Wake Up Screaming," which Twentieth Century's been making under the title of "Hot Spot," is being changed back to its original name on the earnest petition of the author. If this sort of thing keeps up much longer, I'll be the one who'll wake up screaming!

Wendy Barrie's been taking rhumba lessons from Charles Baren, who heads the new Arthur Murray studio at the Town House, and he and Wendy have created a snazzy new dance called "The Wendy Walk" . . . In "Four Jacks and a Queen," Ray Bolger does a dance two blocks long, with the camera trucking along beside him to catch the foot work. That's REALLY walking.

It's certainly a wonderful change that's come over Joan Bennett since she hit the Twentieth Century lot. First she floored us all in "Man Hunt" with that Cockney street urchin. Next, in "Wild Geese Calling" she gives us a rugged, out-door gal, and now, in "Confirm or Deny" she'll play an English woman, a straight dramatic part with plenty of meat in it.

Queenie Leonard, English character actress who did such a wonderful job coaching Joan in the cockney dialect, is again coaching her for English diction. Due to Joan's efforts, you'll also see Miss Leonard in the cast.

Now that the Santa Barbara Fiesta is on, lots of our people are running up for it. Brenda Frazier and her husband, John Kelly, are throwing a grand party at the Coral Casino, in the Biltmore . . . Well, fireman save my child! Charles Boyer, a handsome fire-fighter in "Appointment for Love," has already learned to skin into his uniform at the clang of the gong, like a professional. Wonder if he's mastered that ZOOP down the brass pole. Gosh, the men have all the fun!

Nils Asther now is in New York to confer with Helen Hayes on playing opposite her in the Maxwell Anderson play "Candle in the Wind" . . . John Garfield, who before his picture career was associated with the Group Theater in New York, is at last realizing his early ambition for stage directing. He's taking time off from picture work to direct the Duke Ellington Revue, "Jump for Joy," in a series of new sketches and musical numbers which will be added from time to time to keep the show topical.

When someone asked Vera Vague whether her bulldog was a male or female, she snapped, "If it were a she it would be a cow-dog, stupid!"

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE NATS WILL MISS LEWIS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 12.—A pretty good ball player will be taking his leave of the big leagues on Sunday evening. That's when Buddy Lewis will hop into his car and head for a North Carolina Army camp, barring a last-minute deferment. The draft has caught up with him and his little world of base hits, railway trains, red caps and swank hotels meets up with a 30-month hiatus.

POVICH

Buddy Lewis, John Kelly Lewis, to give him his full handle, has done very well for a boy who came out from behind a counter in a textile office in his native Gastonia, N. C. For most of his six years in the majors he has averaged around $12,000 a season for his services. There was nothing shy about the fellow when he talked contract with Clark Griffith. He wrangled some of the Washington club's better salaries out of the Nats' owner. To do it, he had to be a better than fair ball player. He must have been.

Washington first saw him when he was a boy of 18, beardless and looking for all the world like a refugee from some prep school rather than a fellow in the big leagues. Even then he was tall and erect and a handsome lad despite his flangelike ears. He was Washington's greatest "ladies' day" favorite since Walter Johnson. The ladies applauded just a bit louder when Buddy came to bat. Younger hearts were a-flutter. The bolder gals, in some cases, piled into his car to await their hero after the ball game. He asked the front office never to give out his home address.

He's No Shy Lad, Like Travis

Because he roomed with shy, timid Cecil Travis the impression was for years that Lewis was of the same mold. But he isn't. Lately he has taken to smoking cigarettes and squiring young ladies about town while Travis steadfastly maintains his detachment from heart interest. Buddy, of late, has been inquiring discreetly about cocktails. Some day, he thinks, he might want to know about what to order.

The sad part about Lewis' call to the Army is that at this time he was reaching something of a peak in his big league career. To the everlasting amazement of his critics, including Manager Bucky Harris, the fellow has developed into a very good outfielder, indeed. Honest. The story about his outfielding experiences is not new. They shoved him out there because it was presumed that he could do the club less harm in the outfield than at third base, where he was no star. He butched many an outfield fly and would have been out of there except for the fact that for most of his six years he has been one of the two best hitters on the Washington club. They couldn't bench his bat, so they left him in the outfield.

But hanged if he hasn't learned how to play the outfield this season. The transformation from a lumbering, uncertain fly hawk to a smooth, sure-fingered performer has taken place almost magically within the last six weeks. He goes and gets balls with all of the finesse of an outfielder to the manner born and he has adjusted his infield arm to the long throw with such completeness that he has more assists than any other Washington outfielder. They don't run bases on Buddy. His infield experience has been no drawback in fielding ground balls, either.

Tip-Off on Rookie Lewis Was Paradoxical

The Washington club got a funny sort of tip-off on Lewis when he came up from Chattanooga touted as a good-looking third baseman who probably wouldn't hit big league pitching very well, but would be an asset defensively. No club ever got a more inaccurate bum steer. Lewis was almost a complete bust as a third baseman, but he quickly demonstrated that he could pound that ball. He had speed, and during one season he beat out more bunts than any man in the league.

All of a sudden Lewis stopped bunting. The Nats discovered that Lewis was wasting his time bunting. He was the only guy on the club who showed a lot of power. They were willing to overlook his deficiencies at third base. So were other big league managers, who twice named him as the third baseman on the American League's All-Star game. In the 1938 All-Star game at Cincinnati he hit the longest ball of the afternoon only to be robbed of an extra-base hit by a superlative catch by Duck Medwick in the center-field corner.

Clark Griffith could have sold Lewis to the Detroit Tigers for $100,000 last summer. The Tigers wanted him as a third baseman. The Cleveland Indians would pay the same figure for him this season as an outfielder. When Lewis will get out of the Army and back into baseball is not for your agent to say, but he can take his leave of the big leagues knowing he put in a pretty fair six-year stretch.

Ted Has Things Well Under Control

Whatever became of the Joe DiMaggio-Ted Williams battle for the batting percentage title? Last time we looked, Ted was 50 points ahead of Giuseppe, and showing no inclination to come back down to where Joe is currently treading water. Cecil Travis, a quiet young employe of Clark Griffith, may split the Williams-DiMaggio ticket. Cecil was offered a bonus by Griffith a couple of years ago, if he would learn to pull the ball. He tried for a while, then went back to slapping slices into left center (he's a left-hander) and is doing okay, though he is not an outstanding producer of runs. Joe Engel found Travis in Kid Eberfield's baseball school in Atlanta and bought him for Griffith for $200.

A bee stung Attention on the knee, so he's probably out of the Travers. That leaves Whirlaway to battle with the likes of Robert Morris, Swing and Sway, Greville, Lord Kitchener, Yankee Chance and perhaps Sky Raider—the hitherto ne'er-do-well son of Man O' War and Top Flight . . . It took considerable persuasion on the part of Lou Nova's manager and pals to get him to shear off the luxuriant beard he grew in Maine . . . Speaking of Soose, he's going to buy a boys' camp and run it, before he quits fighting, and make that his life's work . . . There's a stirring battle brewing for second place in the American League, among the Indians, Red Sox and White Sox, but our favorite contest is still the heroic struggle for last place—a spot seized recently by the Browns from the Senators by dint of some downright brilliant ineptitude.

A Dodger Spokesman Is Heard

John McDonald, secretary of the Brooklyn Dodgers, writes, "It is interesting to conjecture just why so many persons state that the Cards are a better hitting team than the Dodgers. I have before me the official records and, of this date, they show that the Dodgers lead the Cardinals in total bases, doubles, triples and home runs. Also, they show that three of the four leaders in total bases are Brooklyn players.

"At the end of last week we had made 1501 total bases on 1001 hits, while Southworth's club has 1471 total bases on 1504 hits. The Dodgers led in doubles, 192 to 180; in triples, 44 to 42, and in homers, 73 to 51. The Cards' lone superiority is in team percentage—.280 to our .277. But where is the clear-cut power superiority that so many seem to have discovered?'

Bobo K.O.'s Savold in 2d Round

Pittsburgh, Aug. 12 (AP).—Harry Bobo, sensational Pittsburgh Negro slugger, knocked out Lee Savold, of Des Moines, Iowa, tonight in the second round of their scheduled ten-round bout. The winner weighed 205 to 185 for Savold.

Bobo chopped down his opponent with a devastating two-handed attack. In the first round the Negro, who won a disputed decision over Savold here last May, drove his opponent to the ropes in a neutral corner. Then before Lee could get his bearings, he was hooked and chopped unmercifully until a left to the jaw and a right to the same spot floored him. The bell ending the round rang at the count of four.

Bobo took up his assault in the second round until Savold crumpled to the floor and was counted out a minute and 41 seconds after the round started. He was still flat on his face when the referee tolled ten.

Sammy Ancott, 136, of Washington, Pa., the N. B. A. lightweight champion, beat Jimmy Tygh, 136, of Philadelphia, by a technical knockout in the third of their scheduled ten-round nontitle bout.

Mike Raffa, 126, of Newell, W. Va., now a corporal in the Army at Fort Knox, Ky., and Harry Jeffra, 125, of Baltimore, former bantam and featherweight champion, fought an official draw, although the crowd favored Raffa.

Red Birds Rally In Eighth Frame To Win and Take A Narrow Margin

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 12.—St. Louis' Cardinals bumped off the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 7, today in a see-saw battle and took over first place in the National League from Brooklyn which lost two to the Giants.

The winning runs came in the eighth on Frank Crespi's fourth hit of the game which sent Martin Marion and Walker Cooper home.

Mize Hits 11th Homer

Chicago outhit the Cards, 16 to 15, but Johnny Mize got in the longest blow—his eleventh homer in the third which accounted for three runs.

That blow broke a 2-to-2 tie which had existed since the first inning.

Max Lanier, whose left-handed curves usually are effective against the Cubs, left the game in the sixth after his mound rival—Vern Olsen—drove in the tying run. The Cards batted Olsen out in the seventh as they pulled ahead.

Clyde Shoun pitched one-third of an inning and got credit for the victory. Bill Lee hurled two-thirds of an inning and was charged with the defeat. Each team used four hurlers.

Cards Carry Hopes on Road

Hubbell, Melton Stop Brooklyn; Ott Hits 2 Homers To Aid Twin Rout

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 12.—The unsuspecting Brooklyn Dodgers were knocked reeling out of the National League lead today as their cross-town rivals, the New York Giants, swept a thrilling doubleheader, 8 to 5 and 2 to 0, before 39,145 fans.

The crowd exceeded by approximately 5,000 the seating capacity of Ebbets Field and overflowed to every possible point in the park, blocking aisleways, clinging from steel girders and sitting on laps. The gates were opened at 11 a. m. to admit many hundreds of fans who had collected early. One man fell off a 20-foot wall in the outfield.

This big turnout and the Dodgers themselves had confidently expected Brooklyn to bag its ninth straight victory over the Giants.

Old-Timers Shine

Instead, a couple of old codgers named Mel Ott and Carl Hubbell combined to win the first game, and Cliff Melton, another Giant veteran, pitched three-hit ball for the second game shutout.

Ott his his twentieth and twenty-first homeruns of the season, each with two mates aboard, in the first game. Every Giant except Hubbell hit safely, and Whitlow Wyatt, one-time ace of the Brooklyn pitching staff, was routed with only one out in the first inning.

Wyatt, seeking his sixteenth victory, walked Dick Bartell to open the game. Johnny Rucker beat out a single and Ott homered. Then Babe Young doubled, went to third as Hank Danning grounded out, and scored on a single by Joe Moore. Wyatt departed for the showers and a succession of four other hurlers followed him.

Renovation Is Scheduled For Red Sox

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 12.—The Boston Red Sox will undergo a house cleaning before the dawn of the next baseball season.

This information was disclosed today by Thomas Austin Yawkey, the sporty young millionaire who owns the team.

You'd think the guy would be downhearted, disgusted and dreadfully tired of, even dreaming about pennants now. He bought the Red Sox in 1933, and by this time has dumped nearly $4,000,000 of his enormous coal, copper and lumber inheritance into the club coffers. He had hopes of winning the American League championship from the outset of the venture, but the best the Sox did for him was finish second; so, strangely enough, Tom Yawkey continues to think in terms of baseball titles and how to win them.

Yawkey was giving us his ideas about the current campaign, then, as the subject changed to the Boston entry, he arose from the easy chair in his hotel room to emphasize what he was going to say. He said:

"We've got certain weak spots, and we know it.

"But the club will be strengthened by next year. We're already planning our moves . . . Manager Joe Cronin and I.

"There are a few new players we need—and we'll get them!"

Tigers Beat Bob Feller, 2-0, Then Lose, 4-1

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 12.—A six-game losing streak of the Cleveland Indians came to an end today, but it was Al Milnar, not Rapid Robert Feller, who turned the trick.

Milnar turned back the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 1, in the nightcap of a bargain bill, scattering five hits, after Feller, still seeking victory No. 21, and his teammates were whitewashed by Big Al Benton, just up from the relief ranks, in the opener, 2 to 0.

Benton yielded four hits and on several occasions was in trouble, but each time bore down.

Shortstop Frank Croucher scored Detroit's first run in the fifth, opening with a single, taking second on a sacrifice, and crossing the plate on Charley Gehringer's single and then drove in the second run in the sixth with a single.

Feller whiffed seven to run his strikeouts for the season to 206.

Milnar started the Tribe to victory in the second game with a single in the sixth, the first hit off starting pitcher Johnny Gorsica.

Clarence Campbell flied out, but Ken Keltner drew a walk and the bases were filled when Bruce Campbell dropped Larry Rosenthal's fly. Heath then singled Milnar and Kelt-

Leonard Lengthens Streak, A's Bow, 9-3

Flutterball Artist Rings Up Seventh in Row As Lewis Leads Attack With Two Homers

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—Make it seven in a row for Dutch Leonard. The big Belgian and his fluttery knuckle ball did a six-hit job on the Philadelphia Athletics this afternoon and put an end to the torment the Nats have been suffering in Shibe Park this season. Today, after six straight defeats here, the Nats won a 9-3 game.

Buddy Lewis, too, had quite a lot to do with Washington's first victory of the year in Shibe Park. To be specific, Leonard held the A's in his grip while Lewis belted the daylights out of 'em. To be more specific, Lewis walloped two home runs in his first two times at bat, ushering five runs home with his circuit wallops, Nos. 6 and 7 of the season.

All down the line, in fact, the Nats had power today. They belted young Lester McCrabb out of the box in less than two innings, and before it was all over they had unloaded 17 hits against McCrabb and Bill Beckman. Jake Early, Roger Cramer and Cecil Travis swatted three-baggers during the proceedings. George Archie and Early each contributed three hits.

Pay-off Blows

But Lewis' blows were the pay-offs. He whistled one of McCrabb's pitches far over the right-field fence in the first inning after Roger Cramer had doubled to left with one out, and after the A's tied the score at 2-2, Lewis put on the crusher in the second inning.

That second inning produced five large Washington runs and a 7-2 lead for Leonard. Jake Early drove in the first with a triple into the

3 Players Fined By Harridge for Fighting on Field

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 12.—President Will Harridge of the American League today fined a trio of players involved in a disturbance during the first game of yesterday's Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns double-header.

Joe Kuhel, White Sox first baseman and Pitcher Elden Auker, of the Browns were fined $100 each, while Alan Strange, St. Louis utility infielder drew a $50 fine.

The trouble started after Auker had hit Kuhel on the shoulder with a pitched ball. Before Kuhel reached first base he was met by Auker and firsts started to fly. Within a few seconds the battle had been joined by the players on both teams, the umpires, police and ushers.

Strange had started to land a haymaker on Kuhel from behind when Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox, slammed Strange to the ground and pinned him.

Lewis Asks Army for 2d Deferment

By a Staff Correspondent

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 12.—Buddy Lewis today appealed for a second deferment from Army service and is clinging to the hope that he will be permitted to finish the season with the Nats.

Lewis who has been called for induction on August 19 when his 60-day extension will expire, communicated this morning with his Gastonia (N. C.) Draft Board and asked for an additional 45-day deferment.

"I don't know what action they'll take," said the Nats' outfielder. "But I told them that it would be the last deferrment that I would ask. It they deny my appeal, I won't be bitter, either. I told them I appreciated the consideration they've already shown me."

Dependency Plea

Lewis is basing his appeal on dependents. His parents are virtually dependent on his baseball income, and he receives only $40 a month in rental from a filling station he owns. Only 5 acres of his 14-acre North Carolina farm are cultivated.

If his appeal is denied, Lewis will play his last game for the Nats on Sunday in Washington against the Red Sox.

Meanwhile the Washington club is not relying on a second deferment for the .312-hitting outfielder who clouted two home runs today. The Nats are prepared to call in Outfielder Roberto Ortiz from their Charlotte, N. C., farm in the Piedmont League.

When Ortiz is called up, the Nats will send Outfielder Johnny Welaj to the Charlotte club to replace the big Cuban, who last week was third among the league's hitting with a .310 batting average. Welaj, who has been in a season-long batting slump, will be sent out on option. The Charlotte team is in the midst of a fight to figure in the Piedmont League playoffs.

Haight Goes West—With The Redskins

Haight goes West! Yes, Walter Haight is going to be California-bound tomorrow, providing the B. & O. Railroad can get up enough steam to pull him out of Union Station.

HAIGHT

Haight goes West with the Washington Redskins, who are scheduled to leave the Capital at 5:45 p. m., headed for their training site at San Diego.

Haight is supposed to work, too. The Sports Department isn't exactly sure whether Haight is going to cover the Redskins or the Redskins are going to cover Haight. It seems rather strange, too, that with a gas shortage threatened in the East, we should be shipping a tank of it to California.

However, Haight has been ordered to send it back to Washington Post readers in the form of those "Dear Boss" letters that made such a hit last winter from Florida and other points. If you read "Haight Goes South" and "Pieces of Haight" you are familiar with the homey, breezy style of the rotund fellow who signs himself "Pounds." We will be waiting for that first letter. Shoot the chat to us, Fat.

Joe Louis Plans to Join Army If Nova Wins, Jacobs Says

Instructor's Post Is Aim Of Champion

Bomber Will Seek Furlough Later to Attempt to Regain Crown From Nova

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 12.—Joe Louis will join the Army if he loses his heavyweight title to Lou Nova on September 19, Promoter Mike Jacobs revealed today.

If a new champion is crowned that night at Yankee Stadium, Bomber Joe will be in uniform soon afterward, in recruiting work or as a boxing instructor, Jacobs said.

Louis would take a chance on obtaining a furlough to permit an attempt to recapture the title from Nova next June. Contracts for the September battle provide for a return bout in June, should Nova win.

It was quite evident from Jacobs' remarks that the Detroit Negro has no thought of retiring—win or lose. His draft deferment, because of dependents, permits him to continue in the ring.

Louis to Rest If He Wins

Accordingly, if Louis retains the diadem against Nova, he will rest until January and then defend against Abe Simon or Buddy Baer who tangle in a "battle of giants" at the Garden September 5. The January brawl probably would open another fight-a-month campaign, with Southpaw Mello Bettina probably being the opponent at Los Angeles in February.

Nova, who has been roughing it in the Maine woods, will arrive tomorrow night and take a workout Thursday at the Pioneer Gym, officially opening the campaign of ballyhoo.

Jacobs hopes that this campaign will sell a million dollars worth of tickets. The tickets range in price from $3.50 to $30. Only once before has Jacobs had a higher top. That was the $40 asked for choice ringsides at the first Louis-Schmelling bout, which drew a disappointing gate. The highest price ever charged for a heavyweight title bout in the United States was $60, assessed by Tex Rickard for the Jeffries-Johnson fiasco at Reno, Nev., in 1910.

Boys All Set With Their Drums

Nova's manager, Ray Carlen, announced today that the challenger will train at Dr. Joseph Bier's Camp, Pompton Lakes, N. J., where he will begin activities on Monday. Louis will do a few days of preliminary work at Stevensville, Mich., and arrive in New York about August 22 to begin training at Greenwood Lake, N. Y.

Walter St. Denis, veteran Ballyhoo artist, will handle the wordslinging at the Louis camp, and Rotund Jack Miley, magazine writer, will ride herd on the Nova press-agentry.

It will be difficult to get any early "official" betting odds on this bout because Eddie Borden, Broadway price-maker, joined the Canadian army at Montreal yesterday. It may be some time before any fight bookie will have the courage to let his name be used as Borden's successor because Promoter Jacobs is an active and deadly enemy of all fight-betting men.

Buddy Baer started training today at the Long Branch, N. J., Casino for his 15-round contenders' bout with Abe Simon. Big Abe will open camp at Pompton Lakes Friday.

'Smother That Fumble' Is Cry in This Workout by Rams

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Parker Hall (left) and Johnny Drake, Cleveland Ram backfield stars, yesterday took their first football workout of the season in an 84-degree heat at Berea, Ohio. Drake was All-National League fullback last year and Hall was voted the most valuable player of the league. This season they will be two of the highest paid men in pro football left-field corner after Archie had walked. Jimmy Bloodworth got Early home with a double into the left-field corner, and with two out, Cramer beat out an infield hit. That's when Lewis banged his second homer. It wasn't really much of a belt. It was, in fact, just a lazy fly that dropped just inside the left-field foul line but when Bob Johnson overrun the ball, Lewis scampered all the way around the bases to score behind Bloodworth and Cramer.

Leonard made that 7-5 lead stand up very nicely. After the first inning, he pitched four-hit ball and the only other run he yielded was Sam Chapman's sixteenth homer of the season. Chapman, with a first inning double that drove in both of the A's runs in that session, collected three of the six hits Leonard allowed.

Chapman Scores Two

It appeared that the A's were in for a big inning at the start when McCoy drew a walk, Johnson doubled to right and Chapman scored 'em both with his double to left. Seibert drew a walk, and two were on with only one out, but Frankie Hayes, attempting to duck a pitch, bounced a ball in Leonard's direction, and the big pitcher grabbed it up to start a double play.

The Nats were belting Beckman around rather freely after he relieved McCrabb in the second inning, but they didn't score again until the eighth, when George Case singled with two out. Roger Cramer, who used to be in the employ of the A's, lined a triple to the center-field fence and Leonard's lead was upped to 7-3.

In the ninth Cecil Travis, who hadn't hit a triple as yet, hit one. It was a long drive against the center-field wall, and he romped home with the Nats' ninth run while Vernon was grounding out to Seibert.

Leonard was a very good pitcher after the first inning. From the second to the eighth, the only hits he yielded were Chapman's fourth-inning single and the same guy's sixth-inning homer. Leonard's seventh straight came sort of easy to the big fellow. And tonight the Nats are only 3½ games out of sixth place.

Johnsen, Dole In Tennis Final

The championship of the first District of Columbia Veteran Tennis Tournament will be decided at Edgemoor Club today when Strand Johnsen, eldest of a noted family of netmen, meets Commander R. N. Dole. The match between the top-seeded Dole and the unranked Johnsen is scheduled for 5 p. m.

Also in the day's program will be the presentation of prizes to winners in the recently concluded District of Columbia men's championships. Barney Welsh, of Rockville, as usual, will be the biggest collector of silverware. Welsh won the singles and paired with Hugh Lynch to take the doubles. Others to receive prizes will be Don Leavens, the singles runner-up, and Dick Bennion and Bob Underwood, who were finalists in the doubles.

Nats Face Yanks Today in 2 Games

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—The Nats tonight took their two-game winning streak and their fifth-place ambitions to New York where tomorrow they will meet the Yankees in a doubleheader.

Manager Bucky Harris will send Sid Hudson to the mound in the first game and Ken Chase in the second. The Yankees will pitch Lefty Gomez and Righthander Ernie Bonham. Washington has won only one game in Yankee Stadium this season.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Chesapeake Bay fishing has been very dull over the weekend from all reports. There are, however, plenty of fish to be caught—small ones—with light tackle. If one must have his fishing, why not try using a light bass rod, with number 24 six-cord cotton thread, (Clark's). Double this thread for a trace about 6 feet long, in order to help in boating a fish. This in turn to have two unsnelled hooks, rigged in the regular way with a small dipsey bass casting sinker. . . .

JACK BELL

Black bass fishing on the Potomac above Great Falls was very good over the weekend. The fresh water boys are all having good sport . . . especially the fellow fishing with artificial lures and streamer flies.

The best reports to come to us are from the section of river from Swann's on the Maryland side and Villa Equador on the Virginia side up to Back-water riffles. Anglers fishing there should return to the waters all bass under 12 inches, although the legal size is 10 inches. An angler will catch plenty over that size for his own use. The best hours are from 8 to 11 a. m., and again from 3:30 p. m. to sundown. Boats can be hired at $1 per day, and canoes for $2 per day. Our preference is a canoe, if you can handle it in the fast water.

George Lewellwyn and Jack Nelson fished there and caught 25 small-mouth bass, returning to the waters all but eight of the best fish, which averaged 1½ pounds.

For those who care for still fishing, big catfish can be caught at the same place. One big one was caught late last week weighing 13½ pounds. Many are caught weighing 2 to 5 pounds. Catfish taken from those waters are excellent eating and furnish plenty of action in the fast water.

Next Sunday the Arlington-Fairfax Chapter, Izaak Walton League, will hold its third annual picnic on Goose Creek, near Leesburg, Va., starting at 1 o'clock.

"They are inviting all, Waltonians or not, to be there. Here is a chance to square yourself with your family for that last stag fishing trip. They are inviting you and the family. There will be plenty to eat, and plenty to do—trap shooting, bait and fly casting, soft ball, and all the trimmings. Cost, one buck per person.

The place: Upper Goose Creek dam above Goose Creek Tavern. To get there, Leesburg Pike to Tavern—then 400 yards beyond Tavern to left turn off, marked by sign. Follow signs.

In spite of the hot weather more bass fishermen than ever before have been seen on the streams and ponds of eastern Virginia this season.

State game wardens in eastern counties, especially those from the Back Bay section, have reported, a record-breaking number of bass fishermen during the past month. Excellent catches of bass, crappie and perch have also been reported.

Captains at Ocean City, Md., are reporting schools of blue-fish as they get past the old blue fishing grounds. They believe that if anglers set out for them they would come back to port with a nice catch. Some boats out for marlin have landed as many as 25 blues, several four to five pounders. The most recent was a 5¼-pounder caught by Mr. F. K. Green, of Philadelphia. It is thought to be the largest in several years. This is the best report of blues in several years. Maybe we will see some in the bay this year.

The white marlin are sometimes called a mystery fish, and this year they are doing their best to live up to it. One captain who raised three this past weekend reported that they were striking at tuna plugs, a thing he had never heard of before. Every condition is right for a big marlin catch; water, bait, and temperature, and some are seen every day, but they are hard to hook and land.

The International Game Fish Association reports that a few new records have been approved, including a new women's all-tackle record for mako shark. This is held by Mrs. Henry Ford, for a 647 pounder taken on 39-thread line, off Cat Bay, Bahama Islands, April 8, 1941. The first 15-thread record for mako shark has been made by Dr. D. G. Maitland, who took a 236 pounder, while fishing off Broken Bay, New South Wales.

Ed Merkle, of D. C., Fourth in Printers' Golf With 156

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (AP).—Russell Allen, of Kansas City, took the lead in the Union Printcraft International Golf Tournament today, posting a three-over-par 74 for a 36-hole total of 150.

He is three strokes ahead of the nearest rival—Defending Champion Eddie Rack, McKeesport Pa.—who added a second round 80 to his opening 73.

Third is Earl Rose, St. Louis, with 154, and two men are tied for fourth with 156—Ed Merkle, Washington, and Hal Todd, Columbus, Ohio.

Among other low scorers in the tournament, played at Norwood Hills over a 72-hole medal route, are:

Joe Sommers, Detroit, 158; Brack Stevens, Oklahoma City, and M. Willis, Van Buren, Ark., 162; W. S. Cook, Toledo, Ohio, 163; L. Lang, Cincinnati, 164; John Kent, Boston, and Claude Schell, Reading, Pa., 167; D. Kettler, Cincinnati, and C. Inman, Detroit, 168, and L. Johnson, Topeka, Kans., 169.

Phils Nose Out Braves, 2-1, In 13 Innings

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 12.—Tommy Livingston's thirteenth-inning double with Merrill May on base gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 triumph today and a sweep of their two-game series with the Boston Braves.

Consistent Jim Tobin, who went the route for the Braves, held the Phils at bay, except for a somewhat tainted fourth-inning rally, until the unlucky thirteenth, which May opened with a single. Bob Bragan sacrificed him along and then Livingston, who had relieved Ben Warren behind the plate in the eleventh, dented the left field wall with a booming double to send May home with what proved to be the winning marker.

88 Ends Louis' Participation in His Own Golf Meet

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 12.—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis apparently can't put the magic into his golf clubs that he can into his fists.

A better-than-average golfer, Louis bounced right out of his own tournament, the Joe Louis Open, with a 44, 44—88, in today's first round over the Rackham course.

He received some consolation, however, when his personal instructor, Clyde Martin, took the lead with a 37, 35—72, one over par, two strokes ahead of Calvin Searles, of Atlanta, Ga.

Three other pros, Howard Wheeler, three-time National Negro Open Champion from San Diego, Calif.; Pat Goodwin, Washington, D. C., and Joe Roach, New York City, were tied at 75.

De Roy Smith, 19-year-old Norfolk, Va., florist, paced the amateurs with a 37, 38—75, to lead Lincoln Tondee, Chicago, and Jerry Hood, Detroit, by a single stroke.

Eighteen holes will be played tomorrow and 36 on Thursday.

Two Ministers Hook A Huge Blue Marlin

West Palm Beach, Fla., Aug. 12 (AP).—Two Cincinnati ministers, the Revs. Albert Schreck and Ben Yunker, were fishing for sailfish in the ocean off here yesterday. Each had a line out when a 426-pound blue marlin took both hooks.

The clerical fishermen played the big marlin for more than an hour before landing him. The fish was believed to be the largest marlin ever caught in this area.

Red Sox Held By Chandler, Yanks Win, 4-0

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 12.—The New York Yankees set off a four-run cannon cracker under a beautiful pitching duel between Spud Chandler and Dick Newsome in the eighth inning today and beat the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 0.

Chandler, 32-year-old Georgia right-hander, held the Red Sockers to six hits and the only one that was for more than one base was a double by Lou Finney in the second inning. Finney reached third with two out and he and Frank Pytlak also hit successive singles in the seventh to get him to third again with two out, but these puny gestures were the only threats by Boston.

It was Chandler's fifth victory against four defeats.

Newsome Checks Yanks

Newsome, 31-year-old rookie from San Diego and leading pitcher of the Red Sox with 13 wins, matched this performance for seven innings and allowed just seven hits altogether.

For the first six stanzas he never let a Yankee get past first base. In the seventh Charley Keller walked, went to second on an infield out and tried to score on a single by Phil Rizzuto but was thrown out at the plate by Ted Williams.

Finally the Yankees broke loose in the eighth with four hits. Joe Gordon opened with a single and went to second a moment later when Finney let a throw from Newsome get away. Red Rolfe beat out a bunt and Tom Henrich walked to load the bases. Joe DiMaggio, who was held hitless for the third game in a row, lifted a long fly to right for a run. Keller walked to fill the bases again, Bill Dickey doubled for tw omore tallies and Rizzuto brought home another with a fly. An intentional walk and a single by Chandler loaded the bases still another time before Gordon fouled out.

Steinborn to Meet Grobmier Here On Wrestling Card

Milo Steinborn, a veteran who is regarded by many as one of the strongest wrestlers in the game, has been matched against Fred Grobmier, the Des Moines scissors king, in one of the 30-minute bouts on tonight's show at Turner's Arena.

After being booked for the bout, Steinborn asked Promoter Joe Turner to bring on the winner of the feature bout between Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, and Ernie Dusek, the wild Nebraskan.

Steinborn also is after a rematch with Pat Fraley, the Pacific Coast ace, who will oppose the Green Hornet, masked wrestler, in a special scrap on the Thursday show.

Sharing the spotlight with the Dusek-Cox match will be the battle between feminine grapplers—Elvira Snodgrass, the Smokie Mountain hillbilly, and Mae Young, Oklahoma City cowgirl. Elvira's hubby, Elmer, will take on Angelo Leone, in a 30-minute gruntfest.

Browns Waste 6-Run Lead, Tie With Chisox in 14 Innings, 6-6

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns played a 14-inning, 6-to-6 tie today, the game being called on account of darkness after 3 hours and 30 minutes of play. Neither team scored after the sixth inning.

The Browns grabbed a 6-to-0 lead off Chicago's Bill Dietrich with three-run clusters in the second and fifth innings. Then, after being held to one hit for four frames, the Sox ganged on Bob Harris for four runs in the fifth and drove him out with the tying pair in the sixth.

Chicago's Pete Appleton and St. Louis' Bob Muncrief, both entering the game in the eighth inning, staged a pitching duel after Jack Hallett and Jack Kramer had replaced the starting hurlers on each side. The Sox made 12 hits and the Browns 9.

Second Half Title Is Won By Lansburgh's

Overcoming what nearly proved to be a disastrous first inning when Pepco scored four runs, Lansburgh's plucky softball ten came back to defeat Pepco, 6-5, and then scored a decisive 8-3 victory over U. S. Aggies to win the second half championship of the National Night League at Washington Softball Stadium last night.

The double-victory earns Lansburgh the right to meet Greenbelt for the league title and a place in the city championship playoff. The two clubs will meet in the first of a three-game series tonight at 9:15.

Yellow Cab overwhelmed Carr Brothers and Boswell, 11-1, in the first of a three-game series to decide Prince Georges League honors. "Bump" Simonds not only held Carr Brothers to three hits but connected for a homer with the bases filled. Buck Cooke duplicated Simonds' feat and Charley Franks added another with the sacks empty. The two clubs will clash in the same game tonight at 8.

Cameo Beats Reliance, 6-1, to Stay in Post League Race

Printz Hurls Storemen To Victory

Reliance Fielding, However, Big Help To Victors; Blows Are Well Scattered

After one of the dizziest bits of skidding possible, Cameo Furniture nine got back in the torrid Washington Post-Industrial League second-half race yesterday, beating Reliance Insurance by a 6-1 count on the South Ellipse.

Thus the furniture club, which had second-half honors almost clinched two weeks ago before losing three straight games, still has a chance to nose out Little Tavern, the leader. Cameo's won-lost record stands at 9-5, while the top club boasts an 8-4 mark.

Cameo's triumph yesterday was due to a combination of Ottie Printz' pitching and Reliance's fielding. Cameo hitting had little or nothing to do with it. The victors amassed seven hits, but four were of the doubtful variety. Reliance, with Bill Robertson slugging a pair of triples in four trips to the plate, and Len Sokol kicking in with three singles, had a total of eight safeties off Printz, but they were well scattered.

In today's contest Reliance faces Little Tavern in one of the latter's three remaining games on the Ellipse. Cameo plays its last regularly scheduled game tomorrow, facing Reliance again.

Remember 'Boots' Poffenberger?

If you don't, he was known throughout the major leagues as baseball's "Bad Boy." He's with the Bona Allen semipro team of Buford, Ga., and is currently pitching and entertaining the fans in the tournament at Denver. Boots, who claims he has turned over a new leaf, says he wasn't such a bad boy while in the majors—only broke a few of their rules. He is shown here having some innocent fun with the fans at Denver

Mike Joseph Wins Thriller At W. Lanham

Though the field was the weakest in many weeks, due to numerous crack-ups during the past few days, last night's eighth weekly midget racing program at West Lanham Speedway was one of the most exciting, featured by Mike Joseph's victory in the main event. An estimated 5500 were on hand.

Joseph, a Philadelphia veteran driving a V-8-powered machine, flashed home first in the 30-lap headliner after Ernie Gesell, the prerace favorite and early leader, was forced out with motor trouble on the eighth lap. At the time Gesell broke down, Len Duncan was slightly ahead of Joseph in a thrilling duel for second position. Gesell, who was driving an Arnold Krause car, usually piloted by Lyle Dickey, in place of his own, which was smashed up Monday night at Yellow Jacket, Pa., was 100 yards ahead of the field when he was forced to withdraw.

Duncan took over the lead at that juncture and retained it until the twenty-second lap, when Duncan's motor seemed to miss a few times and Joseph took advantage of his rival's temporary trouble to build up a comfortable lead.

Takes Second

Duncan continued to lose ground gradually and barely managed to place second, just ahead of Jimmy Forte and Henry Steiger, respectively. Oddly, Forte was driving the old No. 9 car that Steiger used to drive, while Steiger was breaking in a brand-new cream-colored No. 23, quite the flashiest looking car ever to appear at West Lanham.

The victory was Joseph's first feature triumph at Lanham since the opening night. His time was 7:29.26.

Rivaling the feature event in interest were a pair of blanket finishes. First of them came in the second semifinal when Forte barely beat out Duncan and Joseph. Then in the next event, the semifeature which is for drivers who failed to qualify for the feature during the three qualifying heats, Steiger nosed out Andy Furci and Frank Beebe. Beebe led until the ninth lap when he was overtaken by Steiger. On the tenth at the last turn Beebe also was overhauled by Furci who daringly went to the top of the steep bank to slam his car across the finish line a few feet in front of Beebe.

Joe Sheppard, a consistent campaigner at West Lanham, turned in the best performance by any District driver all season, when he won the second qualifying heat. It was the first time a local driver ever won any race at West Lanham.

Naval Airmen Beat FBI, 9-3; Gain Tourney

Taking a final kick at its most annoying competitor, Naval Air Station diamonders yesterday joined two other D. C. nines in the lineup for the local National Amateur Baseball Federation elimination tourney starting Monday.

The Airmen hung a 9-3 beating on F. B. I., sealing the U. S. Government League championship. Other sure contenders in the meet which will decide Washington's entry in the nation-wide Federation tournament in Youngstown, Ohio, are St. Elizabeth's, of the Federal Commercial League, and Center Market, of the Departmental League.

For three innings yesterday the teams, which had waged a stalemate in their last encounter, played on even terms. Then Naval Air erupted with five runs, settling the issue conclusively. Shortstop Anthony was the big gun of the inning, waiting until the bases were loaded and then dumping a four-bagger over the rightfielder's head.

By way of adding weight to the Airmen's argument, First Baseman Dunn duplicated the feat in the sixth inning with nobody on base. Taylor and Meyers combined in a six-hit mound effort for the winners while the Airmen were pounding Bright and DeBettencourt for 11 hits.

Top Saratoga Bid Made by H. S. Phipps

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 12. One of the largest consignments of yearlings of the 1941 auctions went under the hammer and produced some lively bidding tonight, although the average price paid for the lot was a bit under the season's average.

Fifty-five colts and fillies, consigned by more than a dozen breeders, were sold for $89,150 for an average of $1621 per head. In seven nights of selling, 389 yearlings have brought $741,100, averaging $1917.

Star of tonight's sale was a brown colt by Sweeping Light—Port Hole from the Military Stock Farm consignment. This well-bred youngster, out of a Man o' War mare, went to H. C. Phipps for $5200.

Mrs. Barclay K. Douglas' Mill River Stable got a sleek-looking bay colt by Flares—Thela, a half-brother to High Breeze, for $5100. High Breeze won three of five races as a juvenile last year. The third highest price was $4700, which Elmer D. Shaffer paid for a brown colt by Reaping Reward—Primrose. Both these two youngsters were consigned by the Greenwich Stud.

Garrison Takes Close Decision

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Jimmy Garrison, 141½, of Hollywood, Calif., won a close eight-round decision over Norman Rubio, 141, before 5000 fans at the Queensboro Arena tonight. Two officials voted for Garrison and one called it a draw.

The bout produced furious slugging from start to finish. In the first round Garrison spun Rubio around with a right to the jaw. In the second both fighters had received cuts over their eyes. In the third Garrison landed another right that hurt Rubio and in the sixth the Albany scrapper was bleeding from both eyes.

Teddy Wint, 197¾, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., scored a technical knockout over Julio Ortenzio, 201, of New York, in 2:09 of the first round of the semifinal eight rounder.

Post Grid School to Scout Best Prospects for Coaches

Boss Sam Fox To Report 'Finds;' O'Leary Volunteers

An excellent incentive to attend The Washington Post's Football School at Eastern High Stadium was given scholastic grid candidates yesterday as plans for the affair neared completion.

Sam Fox, Ohio State end and former Central High star, who will be in charge of the venture, revealed that every high school coach he had questioned was strongly in favor of the school which starts Monday.

"Each coach I talked to immediately asked for a written report on the most likely youngster I see during classes," Fox said. "Thus the boys who 'put out' and show ability during the two-week session with report to their various high school coaches with a good report preceding them. Those who really want to get somewhere could take a big step forward that way."

The solitary qualification for joining The Post school is that each boy be 14 years of age or over. Filling out the accompanying form entitles one to free instruction each evening, 4 to 6 o'clock, for two weeks. No equipment except shorts and tennis shoes is needed.

In a voluntary effort to aid Fox, whose wing play at Ohio State qualifies him to coach that position more than any other, and Les (Babe) Ehrlich, the former Tech High center who will instruct pivotmen and guards, a third young coach offered his services yesterday.

He was Jim O'Leary, Devitt Prep mentor, who formerly handled the National Training School eleven. O'Leary proffered his daily aid as backfield assistant, listing three years as quarterback of the Texas Tech team, as well as his scholastic coaching, as experience.

2 Upsets Mark Women's Net At Manchester

By International News Service

Manchester-By-the-Sea, Mass., Aug. 12.—A pair of upsets today featured the seventeenth annual Essex County Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, furnished the surprise of the day when she came from behind to topple Valerie Scott, of England, 6—2, 4—6, 7—5, in a third round match.

Miss Scott, top-seeded foreign star and runner-up to Alice Marble last year for the Essex crown, appeared on the way to the quarter-finals as she led Miss Osborne 5-3 in the final set. The English girl, who had coasted through the first two rounds on a bye and a default, propelled what appeared to be a placement shot on set-point on the nnth game.

The California girl said "Nice shot," shook hands with Miss Scott and started to walk off the court. Referee Sumner Codman called the girls back after ruing the shot "out."

The decision proved costly for the English girl as she lost the next four games in a row and double-faulted on her serve to lose set-point in the twelfth game.

Doris Hart, of Miami, Fla., 16-year-old junior high school girl and youngest player in the tournament, staged the other third-round upset by drubbing sixth-seeded Hope Knowles, Philadelphia, 6—0, 6—2.

Top-seeded Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, and Helen Jacobs, of Greenville, Del., the 1936 Essex titleholder, play their third-round matches tomorrow.

Sabin Defeated in Straight Sets By Coast Player in 3d Round

Earl Cochell Beats One of Favorites at Newport; Other Top Stars Win Handily

By the Associated Press

Newport, R. I., Aug. 12.—Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Oreg., who knocked top-seeded Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, out of the Eastern grass court championships at Rye, N. Y., last week, was ousted from the third singles round of the twenty-fifth annual Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament today.

Sabin, who succumbed to Earl Cochell, of Los Angeles, by a surprising 4—6, 3—6, was joined on the sidelines by Edward Alloo, of Berkeley, Calif., another upset victim, who had eliminated the veteran Gene Mako in yesterday's first-day play. Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif., defeated Alloo, 9—7, 6—3.

Meanwhile McNeill, Frank Parker, of Altadena, Calif., and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., continued to move steadily along and achieved the quarter-final bracket with a minimum of trouble.

McNeill-Parker Win

The top-seeded team of McNeill and Parker advanced easily in the opening round of doubles play. The McNeill-Parker tandem swept through Orme Wilson, jr., Cambridge, Mass., and Dick Henry, of Gladwyne, Pa., 6—1, 6—1, to serve notice on the rest of the doubles field that they were ready for all comers.

Highlight of the afternoon's doubles play, however, was the upset defeat of the recent National Junior finalists, Vic Seixas, of Philadelphia, and Bill Vogt, of Drexel Hill, Pa., at the hands of Gil Hunt, of Providence, and William Clothier 2d, of Philadelphia.

D. C. Player Advances

The young pair took the first set, 6—3, but Hunt and Clothier rallied so fiercely that they pasted them with a love set in the next group of games and then went on to take the third set handily, 6—3.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant and Russell Bobbitt, his fellow Atlantan, likewise seemed doomed when Bob Jerdasha, of Woodcliffe, N. J., and Gerald Crowther, of Los Angeles, took the first set of their match, 6—4. Grant steadied thereafter and with consistent aid from Bobbitt, the pair swept through the next sets, 6—3 and 6—1.

David Johnsen, of Washington, teamed with Edward Moyland, of Trenton, N. J., to defeat Charles Mattman, of Forest Hills, N. Y., and Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif., in a first-round doubles match, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4.

W. Maryland Tennis Champ In Third Round

By the Associated Press

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 12. Clearing skies permitted play to be resumed late this afternoon in the Western Maryland Tennis Tournament at Mountain Lake Parke after a heavy rand had halted matches this morning.

Arlo Klinetob, of Peckville, Pa., the defending men's singles champion, quickly disposed of his second opponent today with the loss of only one game .He defeated Dan Silvering, of Hershey, Pa., 6—0, 6—1.

Charles Freer, of Washington, defeated Al McCabe, of Huntington, W. Va., in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2, and then downed Laurel Whipkey, of Oakland, 6—1, 6—1. Jack Southworth, of Pittsburgh, defeated Bond Weber, of Oakland, 6—1, 6—4.

Only 11 players entered the women's singles, topped by Joy Hartman, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who won the title in 1938 and 1939, but was beaten out last year by Mrs. Martha Andraide, of Florida, who is not competing this year.

Dolly Harris, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Frances Bassett and Hazel Bishop, both of Washington, are the other seeded players in the women's singles matches, which will get under way tomorrow.

Nineteen teams have been entered in the men's doubles, where play also begins tomorrow.

Gold Cup Boat Race Is Slated For Red Bank

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 12 (AP).—The National Sweepstakes and Gold Cup race, two of the greatest events in the speedboat world, will be run off on the same card for the first time at the annual two-day regatta this weekend on the North Shrewsbury River.

The tournament committee expects a crowd of 50,000 spectators to view the 33 races on the Saturday-Sunday program. Officials are counting on 300 starters and 150 separate boats, ranging from tiny doodlebugs to the giant Gold Cup specialties.

Race Chairman Fred Brown today said that at least four and possibly seven or eight Gold Cuppers would start in the first heat at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. The other two 30-mile heats will be held the same afternoon.

Four Sure Starts

The four sure to race are Hotsy Totsy IV, built since last summer for Sidney Allen, the Long Islander who won the cup last August at Northport; My Sin, owned and driven by Salmon G. Simmons, jr., Greenwich, Conn., the 1939 winner; Gray Goose, triple-engined and triple-screw specialty owned by George Cannon, New Rochelle, N. Y., and driven by Hugh Cingras, Rock Ledge, Fla., and Why Worry, built this summer for "Wild Bill" Cantrell, Louisville, Ky., to replace a Why Worry destroyed by fire several months ago.

Other possible entries are Mercury, a 725-class boat owned by Morton J. Cooper, Louisville, and Gar Wood, jr.'s Tinker Toy, powered with the motor Allen took out of Hotsy Totsy III.

Three 15-Mile Heats

The three 15-mile heats of the National Sweepstakes will be run off Sunday. About 12 entries are scheduled, including Gold Cup boats still in running order and a field of 225s.

Other feature races include the 135 national championship, to be raced in two 5-mile heats Sunday, and a two-heat event for 91s Saturday.

Rudolph, Va. Ave. Playgrounds Win

Rudolph and Virginia Avenue Playgrounds softball teams reached the semifinals of the junior Community Center and Playgrounds Department yesterday with well earned victories. The first downed Oyster, 12 to 0, and the second romped over Hayes, 22 to 7.

In the senior division, Georgetown, with Hemp pitching both games, defeated Rudolph by 10 to 2 and Lafayette by 7 to 4. Columbia whipped Langdon, 8 to 7; Sherwood downed Congress Heights, 11 to 5, and Park View won a forfeit from Palisades.

Today's schedule finds Rudolph facing Montrose and Langley tangling with Virginia Avenue in the junior section. Games involving Georgetown and Park View and Columbia and Sherwood will take place in the senior circuit.

D. C. Soldiers Do All Right at Fort Bliss

Fort Bliss, Tex., Aug. 12.—Battery B of the 260th Artillery, composed of District of Columbia soldiers, still boasts of its 37-6 triumph over the combined Headquarters Battery in a field meet here Saturday. The D. C. boys won easily in push ball, the heel-and-toe walk, the walking race, and the tug-o-war.

DARING DESTRUCTION TEST in Fearful Death Valley

Gives New oil a Plain Record for Long-Lasting Protection

Why 5-Quart fill—none added—lasted 13,398 miles... Certified

When you're wringing wet these days, just think of Death Valley. It holds the official U.S. record of 134° hot. Wild animals there rarely come out in the heat of day. You'll admit that's a hotspot for testing any motor oil. And that's exactly where 6 representative oils got a fair trial for their lives—to give you up-to-date certified mileage figures.

NEW CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL gave more than Twice the mileage averaged by all others tested

This Death Valley mileage record is today making sales records for Conoco N*th* oil—popular-priced. And here's how this oil was proved for you in advance—by a daring Destruction Test:

6 identical new stock coupes were broken in alike. Test officials had checked engines, part by part, insuring uniformity. The Referee bought 5 big-name oils at retail. The other oil was the same new Conoco N*th* that you can buy today.

The Referee put one strict 5-quart fill in each engine; locked it up tight. Never a drop could be added.

All cars ran 57 miles an hour—in the same Death Valley desert—on the same sizzling days. Drivers switched around to even up human factors. Impartial observers eyed every move—every mile.

The finish came only as one brand of oil after another quit work entirely, causing final engine destruction. And Conoco N*th* oil far outlasted all others; outlasted the runner-up by 5,683 miles; outlasted another by all of 8,268 miles. Conoco N*th* outlasted the average of the 5 others tested by 7,057 miles . . . Certified.

Man-Made new Economy aid in Conoco Nth

In this patented oil there's an extra lifegiver. Man-made. It's full name is Thialkene inhibitor—an inhibitor being something that does the job of keeping a thing in check. Now your engine's normal explosions can't help causing foul leftovers. These must be properly kept in check to keep them from making your oil "fester," get weak and pass out. But you know how Conoco N*th* oil "beat the rap" in Death Valley. It stood up better . . . by as much as 161%. Of course you're not in the business of test-driving, doing all the most furious things. You just want to run every fill right up to as many miles as qualified authorities say is safe for your car. And without trying to "stretch it out," you still ought to save plenty on Conoco N*th*. For you can figure by the record that Conoco N*th* can take you a whale of a way between quarts. Change today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE!

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco synthetic . . . man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. By magnet-like action, OIL-PLATING is bonded to inner engine parts. Then it can't all drain down—not even overnight—not while you use Conoco N*th*. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance! . . . and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco N*th* oil.

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

Scocca, Washington Jockey, Rides Double at Cumberland

Brings Home Leonardtown, Eltonhead

Hot Man, Favorite In Feature, Beaten By Former; Butcher Boy Also Defeated

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 12.—Washington was again in the spotlight today when Jockey Danny Scocca was aboard two winners out of the first six races. Included in Scocca's double was Leonardtown, winner of the Philip J. Arendes Purse. Scocca sent the Mrs. Elmer Heubeck, jr., representative to the front approaching the first turn and was never headed to reach the wire eight lengths in advance of her nearest rival. The favored Hot Man, racing in the colors of M. B. Goss, got up in time to take the place from Clay Hill.

Earlier in the afternoon Scocca had been aboard F. Brown's Eltonhead when that veteran sprinter raced 6½ furlongs in 1:26 3/5 to beat Butcher Boy and Engle's Charm.

Leonardtown Pays $12.40

Leonardtown, which had previously run one of the best races seen here when she covered a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:50 3/5, was slightly overlooked by the crowd of 10,000 and she returned the good price of $12.40 while covering the distance today in 1:55 2/5 over a very heavy track.

In the opening quarter it appeared that Clay Hill would take over the job of pace-making but Scocca had the advantage of the rail and sent Leonardtown right to the van. Hot Man at this stage was taken up sharply and forced to the outside, where he raced throughout the race. Scocca was just sitting still through the final quarter and the daughter of Solace was still widening her lead.

In the opening event, Chris Wood, jr.'s, Lithograph, a 2-year-old daughter of Stimulus, proved her liking for the heavy going when she took the lead at the break and was never headed throughout the course of about 5 furlongs. Lithograph reached the wire a good three lengths before the consistent White Sea. Misidentity was up in time for the show.

The winner's time was 1:00 2-5 in touring the course and returned a $6.40 mutuel in the role of favorite. Jockey Wayne Weber was aboard the filly and put up a faultless ride.

The ladies seemed to be having their day when Miss Hildur, a 5-year-old mare, pulled the same trick and led throughout the 6½ furlongs of the second to score by three lengths over Man at Arms. The latter, always closest to the winner's pace, just lasted to take the place from Maesak.

Those fans buying the combination of 7 and 1 received $122.90 for their daily double investments when Lithograph and Miss Hildur reported on the front end.

Cumberland Race Chart

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITHOGRAPH, $6.40, $3.80, $3.30; WHITE SEA, $3.80, $2.70; MISIDENTITY, $5.50.

LITHOGRAPH was sent to the front early, raced very wide entering the stretch, but again drew clear under pressure. WHITE SEA was closest to the winner from the start, but was not good enough. MISIDENTITY was shuffled back soon after the start and closed willingly when free. SIONBOARD weakened.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:36. Off at 2:37. Winner, G. Sommers' blk. m. (5), by Hildur—Thistle Telse. Trained by W. O. Siegert. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:20.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS HILDUR, $19.30, $9.30, $5.30; MAN AT ARMS, $5.00, $3.50; MAESAK, $3.10.

MISS HILDUR took command at once, was taken out in the better going and was never threatened. MAN AT ARMS chased the winner throughout and was all out to save the place. MAESAK was within striking distance throughout, but would not respond when placed to pressure. GOANTELL was off very slowly and was kept in the heavy going.

Daily Double, LITHOGRAPH and MISS HILDUR, Paid $122.90

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $500; claiming. Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:07½. Winner, I. Beavers' b. g. (6), by Sun Charmer—Widow's Walk. Trained by D. Chamblin. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 3:31⅘ (18 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANCHORS DOWN, $52.10, $16.00, $7.40; RISING SUN, $4.60, $3.70; SPEED DEMON, $5.60.

ANCHORS DOWN, fencing faultlessly, took command at the start and held sway throughout. RISING SUN, never far off the pace, made a bid after a mile, but was not good enough. SPEED DEMON showed good speed on the flat, but made several bad landings. HAREM HONEY was never a serious factor.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:40. Winner, F. Brown's ch. g. (5), by Flag Day—Batty H. Trained by J. Camac. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:26⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELTONHEAD, $11.80, $5.00, $3.80; BUTCHER BOY, $3.90, $3.00; ENGLES CHARM, $5.10.

ELTONHEAD came around BUTCHER BOY to take over the lead, came out slightly for better going and was ridden out to the end. BUTCHER BOY was displaced by the winner after a quarter, held on willingly, but could not reach the winner. ENGLES CHARM moved into contention after a quarter, but faltered thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:14. Off at 4:16½. Winner, H. W. Pearson's br. g. (6), by Blazes—Hiawaya. Trained by C. W. Byers. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:57⅘.

PINKUMS	(West)	111	8	8	8	8	8	8	45.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIBLAZE, $8.50, $3.20, $2.50; OWALLER, $3.00, $2.50; RIPPLING ON, $2.80.

HIBLAZE disposed of OWALLER in the opening quarter, drew out to a comfortable lead and was ridden out to the end. OWALLER had the disadvantage of racing on the rail and could not match the speed of the winner. RIPPLING ON is another that was forced to race in the deep going. LAST BET ran an even race.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:51½. Winner, Mrs. E. Heubeck, jr.'s lt. ch. f. (5), by Solace—Laurel. Trained by E. Heubeck, jr. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:55⅘.

†Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEONARDTOWN, $12.40, $4.80, $3.40; HOT MAN, $3.70, $3.00; CLAY HILL, $3.80.

LEONARDTOWN took command approaching the first turn, was well in hand while setting the pace and won as her rider pleased. HOT MAN was forced to race on the outside and closed willingly. CLAY HILL was used up chasing the winner in the early stages. PALKIN saved ground while being hard ridden and was not good enough. WAR CHAT bled and was pulled up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:26. Off at 5:26½. Winner, J. B. Royston's ch. f. (3), by Time Maker—Ida Wise. Trained by O. Chamblin. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:58⅘.

WINE WRACK	(Meyer)	112	4	6	7½	7²	8	8	65.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IDA TIME, $8.70, $4.30, $3.00; STOCKTON, $4.50, $3.10; SOLO DASH, $2.90.

IDA TIME assumed the lead at the first turn, appeared beaten when headed by STOCKTON, but came again under a hustling ride. STOCKTON saved ground to take command after three-quarters, but had nothing left when the winner made her last challenge. SOLO DASH was carried wide by the winner at the turns, for which Scocca claimed a foul. The foul was not allowed.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:09. Off at 6:10. Winner, J. Bosley, jr.'s br. m. (9), by Claptrap—Nettle. Trained by J. Bosley, jr. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:54⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PEPPERY, $7.80, $4.30, $3.30; TIME SCOUT, $3.50, $3.00; CHILLY EBBIE, 5.30.

PEPPERY moved closest to the leader after a half, came to the outside, opened a daylight lead, but was all out to win. TIME SCOUT held away until headed by the winner in the closing quarter and was coming again at the end. CHILLY EBBIE raced between horses for a half and came well at the end. COTILLION was forced to take up sharply leaving the gate and closed willingly.

Selections at Cumberland

Dear Al:

At last I have some news in this paragraph. The boss has decided that I'm about to break down, so he's going to turn me out in the field to freshen up. While I'm away, Clocker Mike and his friend, Palmer Haegerty, are going to look out for you. But I'm not going to let you down entirely. Don't tell the boss, but I'm going to sneak in on some race tracks and I'll be writing to Clocker Mike so he can pass the stuff along to you. I'm going to miss Eddie Brennan, the racing secretary; Donald Hay, the mutuel manager; Danny Scocca, the up and coming jockey; Greg Johnson, and the other fellows in the press box and everybody. Then it's going to be hard to tear away from Clymene, Glitter Girl, Royal Business and other horses who have seen so much of me that they either nod or shake their heads to let me know whether or not they are trying. It is going to be novel, if not a relief, to wake up in the morning and not have to figure where I can borrow daily double money for the day. It was getting so that "if I know you, I owe you." But I won't be gone forever, although there are some readers who gladly would second the motion. I hope to return chuck full of ideas and winners. In the meanwhile, Clocker Mike is going to be at the track every day, getting you the angles. He has promised to mix up winning favorites with those long-shot specialties of his. He has been itching for this chance to bat for me and has warned me that when I return, my selections are going to be set up in that little type. I say more power to him. In fact, if he is going good, I probably will start following him myself. Well, I'm going to sign off. Don't look for me on the rail—at least, for awhile.

BILL.

First race—LITTLE SUZANNE was an impressive winner here and appears capable of making it two in a row. TIN CAN has had a rest and should furnish the contention. CHIEF TEDDY has often been close.

Second race—PETIT FOURS had poor racing luck in that last effort and with better breaks this may be the right one. JOE D. is dropping down the class ladder and figures close. CHAINWICK is an honest sort.

Third race—BALKANESE appears to have too much class for these and I am going to string along. THOA has always been partial to this strip and raced well in handicaps here last year. HONEY MAID has a world of early foot.

Fourth race—MARANDAN raced wide at every turn in that last winning effort and still had something left at the end. Should have little trouble with these. COUNORA is in best form, but must have a fast track. PANDORAMINT showed a return to good form in that last effort.

Fifth race—After showing in front for a mile, KENNER tired slightly in the stretch and wound up third in that last race. With that race under his belt he should turn back a field of this caliber. ROYAL WANTON should be dangerous, but appeared to have staled off slightly. JAMES PAL for the show.

Sixth race—HEZDREL was dead short in that last start and I think this might be the longshot of the day. TROSTAR has all good races and should take no less than the place. PRAETOR for the short end.

Seventh race—I'm throwing out that last race of WORTHOWNING and taking her to beat this field. She ran up on horses' heels in the stretch run and was taken up sharply. IVORY TIP and YANKEE LAD should take the other money positions.

Eighth race—ALMAC seems capable of leading the entire distance in this field and taking down the main award. BYNUMS RUN is better than that last race would indicate. SPEED SHIP is a threat.

Best bet—MARANDAN.

CLOCKER MIKE (Washington Post)
1—Se Fast, Mathora, Chief Teddy.
2—Chainwick, Mieroplay, Marsie Wrack.
3—Whatsitit, Thoa, Balkanese.
4—Ballet B., Panderamint, Marandan.
5—Saranite, Kenner, Way Out.
6—Praetor, Trostar, Uprising.
7—Ivory Tip, Yankee Lad, Blox.
8—Duchess Del, Curves, Almac.
Best bet—Praetor.

Norfolk Loses Tech-Cadet Grid Classic This Fall

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Norfolk definitely will not be the scene of the 1941 V. P. I.-V. M. I. Thanksgiving football classic.

The last hope was killed yesterday when W. L. (Monk) Younger, director of athletics at V. P. I., telephoned A. H. Foreman, chairman of the Norfolk football committee, to notify him that his faculty members of the athletic council had voted against coming to Norfolk. Maj. Blandy Clarkson, V. M. I. athletic director, also told Foreman that too many problems prevented his school from favoring this city as the site of the contest.

Bill Cunningham's Column

The Secret of Yanks' Success

The Baseball Boswells, who travel with the Yanks, say one reason they're so terrific is that they're the nearest thing to a real team that professional ranks have seen in many a semester. They mean in the sense of pulling for each other, standing solidly together, praising the other fellow and minimizing their own contribution. Nobody's jealous of anybody. Nobody has a fat head. They all respect and admire their manager. They say it's the nearest thing to a college club in many, many years. Of course, that's easier when a team's out in front and staying there, but even so, it's unusual enough to rate an asterisk . . . This has been such a tough season on umpires that Bill Klem has climbed down from the press perches to put the mattress and blinders back on. He says he's happy to be back in harness.

Cunningham

Freddy Cochrane, who recently out-slapped the last of the Zivics to win the tattered remains of the world's welterweight title, has enlisted in the Navy, and the press releases feature the fact this he is "the first boxing champion in history to enlist in the armed forces of the United States." But hold your cheers just a minute. Some elucidation may be in order. It seems here isn't the clean-cut case of a gallant little fist fighter throwing his title on the shelf nine days after he won it, merely to offer himself as a gob for Uncle Sam to do with as he willed.

Must Watch Step

Gigged in the draft, it appears he was shown how he could duck the thankless and comparatively profitless chore of soldiering by climbing into the "physical education" part of the Navy, superintended by Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney. Here he will presumably teach boxing, and will be available, himself, for fights when Uncle Mike Jacobs wants him. If this is true, it's strictly a case of beating the rules and the young man deserves no cheers whatsoever.

There are plenty of capable former pugs above service age who can teach the Navy how to box, if there's a crying need for any such. Since when was the United States Navy turned over to the personal use of a boxing promoter? And any forthright young pugilist in a similar spot who cares anything about his future with a patriotic public might do well to look up the case of the young Jack Dempsey in the last war . . .

Mickey Alpert recalls the story about the time the Chinaman was playing third base for Hartford and the drunk was in the stands supervising his performance vocally. The Chinaman got a hit. He was a great hero. The drunk told him so in all the sharps and flats. The Chinaman made a great stop on a ground ball and started a double play. The drunk told the world what a great player the Chinaman was. This went on and on until, finally, the score was tied, the bases were full, and a ball was hit to the Chinaman which he muffed completely and then threw into the dugout over the first baseman's head, while everybody in the ball park scored.

With great dignity, the drunk arose, walked down as close to third base as he could, calmly took off his shirt, rolled it into a ball and threw it out at the Chinaman's feet with the cold, cutting command, "Here, get that back by Friday!" . . .

Draft vs Football

The Cards have been in first place 18 times this season, the Dodgers six times, and the Giants once. . . . The Cards have a pitcher named Nahem, and they've nick-named his "What's His." . . . Dartmouth loses two big freshman linemen because they've enlisted in the Air Corps; arvard loses her best back in harley Sprayer, who not only headed for the Army but got married on the way, and now. Brown football hopes take considerable of a wallop in the news that Bill Crocker, the Bruin varsity center, is a victim of stomach ulcers and may not be able to participate. . . .

Both the Tigers and the Red Sox, die-hard holdouts versus night baseball, are reported to have gotten estimates upon lighting their premises. This doesn't mean, however, that either has capitulated. If the Government starts curtailing electrical usage, all night ball may go.

Kenner Stakes To War Relic, Paying $2.30

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Samuel D. Riddle's War Relic, shortest-priced favorite to race on a New York track in many a moon, easily defeated two inferior rivals in the 1 3-16 miles of the Kenner Stakes here this afternoon. The son of Man o' War, whose immortal daddy won the race 21 years ago, paid $2.30 for $2 as he breezed home on top by three lengths in 1:58 2-5.

W. E. Boeing's Welcome Pass, a maiden shipped here from the West Coast, was second in the small field of 3-year-olds. Six lengths farther back came J. B. Partridge's Quakertown, claimed out of his last race from G. D. Widener for $5,000. Swing and Sway, the only other overnight entrant, which had been expected to provide chief contention for War Relic, was kept in the Greentree barn, so that there was straight betting only on the event. The victor's share of the purse was $3,225. He carried 120 pounds, conceding 8 pounds to Welcome Pass and 7 to Quakertown. A crowd of 9,356 was on hand for the sport.

Week's Output Of Crude Oil Sets Record

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 12.—The American Petroleum Institute reported today the Nation's daily average crude oil production for the week ended August 9 was 3,911,950 barrels, an all-time high record, compared with 3,475,300 barrels in the comparable week a year ago. The previous record was a daily average of 3,909,400 barrels for the week ended August 5, 1939.

Small increases in most oil States and a large increase in Texas output caused the record, 216,700 barrels above the daily average of the previous week, figures showed.

Aviation Fuel at Peak

At the same time stocks of aviation gasoline rose to 7,772,000 barrels on August 9, highest total on record. The A. P. I. reported both production and stocks in storage have been increasing steadily since the European war began. In October, 1939, refineries made 961,000 barrels of the high-octane fuel and stocks totaled 2,926,000 barrels. Production for the first five months of 1941 totaled 7,456,000 barrels, indicating a monthly output of about 600,000 barrels greater than when the war started.

During the week ended August 9, refineries operated at 89.3 per cent of capacity, the Institute said, indicating a crude run to stills of 3,835,000 barrels daily compared with 89.5 per cent and 3,845,000 barrels the week before and an average of 3,506,000 barrels in the comparable week a year earlier.

Supplies Are Lower

Finished and unfinished gasoline stocks totaled 86,022,000 barrels at the end of the week, compared with 86,779,000 barrels a week earlier and 87,661,000 a year before.

Estimated U. S. gasoline production was 12,542,000 barrels against 13,204,000 barrels the previous week.

Imports of crude and refined oils totaled 1,497,000 barrels, a daily average of 213,857 barrels, against 2,108,000 barrels and an average of 310,143 barrels daily the week before. Daily average receipts in bond, as reported by the U. S. Bureau of Mines, partly for reexport and partly as ships' supplies, were 52,900 barrels in the six months ended May 31, 1941.

Earnings Reports

United Air Lines Transport Corporation reported for the quarter ended June 30 net profit of $451,956 after taxes, equal to 30 cents a share. This compared with a net loss of $1,014,272 in the March quarter and revised net profit of $628,552 or 42 cents a share in the 1940 June quarter. For the six months ended June 30 there was an indicated net loss of $562,316 compared with net profit of $389,701 or 26 cents a share in the first half last year.

Great Northern Paper Co. and wholly-owned subsidiaries reported net profit for the first six months of 1941 was $1,288,485, equal to $1.29 a share, compared with $1,426,155 or $1.43 a share in the first half of 1940.

Consolidated Oil Corporation and subsidiaries reported net income for th esix months ended June 30 of $3,471,941, equal to 25 cents a common share, compared with $2,080,027 or 15 cents a common share in the like period of 1940. The company reported a provision of $1,200,000 for Federal income and excess-profits taxes for the 1941 period compared with $175,000 provided for Federal taxes in the first half of 1940.

Revere Copper & Brass, Inc., and wholly owned subsidiaries reported net profit for the first half of 1941 of $2,363,884, or $2.86 a common share, compared with $1,287,895, or 95 cents a share, in the like 1940 period.

Keith - Albee - Orpheum Corporation and subsidiaries reported net profit for the 26 weeks ended July 5 was $213,440 compared with $427,062 in the 26 weeks ended June 29, 1940. The company said part of the figures were estimates. The net for the 1941 period indicated earnings of $3.33 a preferred share against $6.66 a preferred share in the 1940 period. Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation owns all common stock of K-A-O Corporation.

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana reported consolidated net earnings of $21,763,134 for the first six months of 1941, equivalent to 1.43 a share. Earnings for the corresponding period of 1940 were $20,497,232, equal to $1.34 a share.

Union Bag & Paper Corporation reported net profit for the quarter ended June 30 of $485,023, equal to 38 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $416,292 or 33 cents a share for the March quarter and $597,773 or 47 cents a share in the June quarter of 1940. Net for the 12 months ended June 30 was $1,904,502 or $1.50 a share against $1,847,872 or 1.46 a share in the preceding 12 months.

Associated Gas Gross Rises 6.7% in Year

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Trustees of the bankrupt Associated Gas & Electric Corporation reported yesterday that 1940 consolidated gross revenues were $642,900,000, an increase of 6.7 per cent over the $136,500,000 of the preceding year.

Available to A. G. E. Corporation, before its expenses, was $12,600,000 compared with $13,300,000 in 1930. Expenses last year were $405,498.

"The figure for the expenses of the trusteeship and A. G. E. Corporation in 1940 has very little significance," the report said. "The trustees were not appointed until March, and even at the end of the year, several additions remained to be made to complete their staff organization. The budget estimates for 1941 indicate an expected cost slightly in excess of $60,000 a month, over 70 per cent of which constitutes salaries, wages and allowances."

Visible Grain Supply

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago (in bushels): Wheat increased 2,353,000; corn decreased 1,567,000; oats increased 1,037,000; rye decreased 194,000 and barley increased 43,000.

Retirement Income Trusts Provide Employes With Incentive to Effect Various Economies

Reuben A. Lewis, jr., publisher of Finance, and former executive vice president of the Metropolitan Trust Co., Chicago, today acts as guest columnist for Merryle Stanley Rukeyser.

Spurred to action by the realization that tax-free dollars can be accumulated to provide financial security for offices and employes, a considerable number of American corporations—both large and small—have recently set up retirement income trusts.

While the main object of these so-called pension and profit-sharing trusts is to assure executives and employes of income when their productive years come to an end, these arrangements are introducing a new technique in the method by which business and industry rewards faithful workers.

It has been the policy of Congress and the Roosevelt Administration to encourage the establishment of trust arrangements that will assure independent incomes to individuals when they reach retirement age. The present Revenue Act permits an employer to charge up as a business expense the amount of money set aside for pension, retirement or profit-sharing trusts.

Moreover, the amount of money placed in trust for the ultimate benefit of the officers or employes is not taxed to the individual as current income. It is virtually a tax-free accumulation of dollars because there is no tax on the income until it is distributed—and in most cases this does not occur until the employe reaches the age of 60 or 65. At that time, it is presumed that the income will be in the lower brackets and taxable at a modest rate.

From the material standpoint, the higher-salaried officer or executive of a corporation is vastly better off. If the sum, which the corporation places aside in a pension or profit-sharing trust were paid as a raise in salary or a bonus, the Federal income tax collector would get a good part of the increase. However, where the money is turned over to a trustee for the ultimate benefit of these same individuals, they receive 100 per cent of it, as well as interest earned during the interval between the present and the time when they become eligible for retirement.

Most of these retirement income trusts are based upon the principle that the employe should contribute some part to the fund. In most cases, however, the corporation matches what the employe pays in, dollar for dollar. Thus, it rewards thrifty individuals by giving at least one dollar for every dollar they set aside to provide for security in old age. As a rule, a limit is placed upon the amount that any officer or employe can pay into the fund.

Because insurance companies are in a position to guarantee a certain definite monthly income for life at the retirement age, most of the large pension trusts have purchased individual annuities or retirement income insurance policies. However, in some cases, the corporations, believing that a better return can be obtained over a period of years by having a skilled and experienced bank or trust company invest the funds in seasoned, prime securities, have named these corporate fiduciaries to act as trustee and handle the investments.

Within recent months, Borg Warner, Walgreen, United Air Lines, United States Steel, International Harvester, Belding Manufacturing, Baldwin Rubber, Chicago Title & Trust Co., Automatic Canteen Co. of America and many other major corporations have adopted pension or profit sharing plans.

While the tax exemptions are particularly attractive in view of the rising trend of Federal taxes, other advantages far outweigh this consideration. The primary reason that these trusts are being set up is to reward employes and improve relations with the workers. Profit-sharing gives the employe an incentive to effect various economies in plant operation, increases individual efficiency and makes possible the automatic removal of superannuated employes through retirement.

Under the law, it is necessary to set up a trust to obtain these advantages. The Treasury is most vigilant in seeing that the trust arrangement is designed to provide financial independence for employes rather than afford a device for dodging taxes.

Shipyards List Orders for 945 Merchant Craft

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Aug. 12.—United States shipyards on August 1 had a total of 945 merchant vessels aggregating 5,883,570 gross tons under contract or construction, according to figures made public yesterday by the American Bureau of Shipping. Of these, 883 vessels totaling 5,405,970 gross tons are being built to bureau classification.

During July, orders were placed with a number of the yards for the construction of 83 vessels of only 34,990 gross tons. With the exception of a small cargo ship and a towboat, the orders were for oil-carrying and cargo barges.

Heading the latest shipbuilding returns is a fleet of 748 sea-going vessels aggregating 5,696,510 gross tons, including 60 freighters under construction for Great Britain. The big majority of the remainder are building for the Maritime Commission, and many are expected to be turned over to the British under the Lend-Lease Act.

According to the American Bureau's latest shipbuilding returns, construction contracts in existence on August 1 covered 582 cargo ships aggregating 4,117,240 gross tons, 140 tankers totaling 1,424,660 tons, 23 passenger-cargo ships of 205,200 tons and a number of miscellaneous craft.

The miscellaneous category includes 74 oil barges of 36,795 gross tons, 54 cargo barges of 23,020 tons, 29 tugs of 5515 tons, 5 towboats of 1235 tons, 2 ferryboats of 1680 tons, 2 survey vessels of 1480 tons, 17 hopper barges of 6375 tons, 1 1800-ton dredge and a 40-ton yacht.

Eight sea-going vessels aggregating 59,895 gross tons were completed during July, while six ships of 51,300 tons were launched, according to the bureau.

Copper Stocks Reach New Low At End of July

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 12.—The Copper Institute reported today the Nation's stocks of refined copper, a prime defense material, declined 23,780 tons in July to 74,384 tons at the end of the month, lowest point since the defense program began. At the end of June 98,164 tons were on hand.

Shipments to domestic consumers in July totaled 143,089 tons, close to the peak figure of 144,089 in May and well above the 115,097 tons shipped in June.

Domestic crude copper production for July totaled 82,870 tons compared with a revised June total of 82,558 tons. Of July output, 75,626 tons came from primary producers and 7,244 tons from custom smelters and secondary sources. This compared with revised June totals of 75,082 tons and 7,476 tons, respectively.

Imports of copper from South America through the Metals Reserve Corporation (a Federal agency) during July were estimated at 32,463 tons compared with 31,667 tons in June.

DuPont Offers Rayon Under OPACS Order

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 12 (AP).—E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. offered today 250,000 pounds of rayon yarn for August distribution to hosiery manufacturers in compliance with an August 4 order by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

The allocation, from the company's August stock and output, is subject to order by hosiery mills not later than August 18, the company said.

The yarns offered were said to comprise those designated by the hosiery manufacturers as satisfactory at present.

Canada Seeks to Spur Inflow of New Capital

Ottawa, Aug. 12 (Canadian Press). To give every possible encouragement to the inflow of new capital for investment in Canada, the Foreign Exchange Control Board today issued a statement clarifying its policy regarding investments by nonresidents, particularly residents of the United States. Basic principles underlying the board's policy is that the capital may be returned to the nonresident in the same form in which it was brought to Canada.

The Foreign Exchange Control Board said it is prepared to give sympathetic consideration to any proposals for new capital investment in Canada.

California S. O. Plans Two Issues Totaling 40 Million

By the Associated Press

Standard Oil Co. of California advised the Securities Commission yesterday of its intention to issue 15 million dollar serial notes, due 1946 to 1955, and 25 million dollars of 2¾ per cent debentures due in 1956.

A registration statement covering the proposed issues was filed in the SEC regional office at San Francisco. The interest rate on the serials notes will be filed in an amendment.

The company said that it intended to use 25 million dollars of the proceeds for the payment of unsecured installment notes and would add the balance of the proceeds to its general fund. Dillon, Read & Co., New York, was listed as the principal underwriter.

Week's Oil Output Rises Substantially

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 12 (AP).—Daily crude oil production in the United States increased 208,370 barrels to 3,899,240 for the week ended August 9, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Biggest increase was in Texas, up 207,000 to 1,439,500, with east Texas increasing 71,500 to 389,950. California production gained 11,950 to 650,450; Louisiana, 3410 to 322,315, and Illinois, 650 to 350,845.

Kansas declined 10,250 to 228,250; Oklahoma, 3775 to 413,475; Michigan, 970 to 41,900; Eastern fields, 300 to 112,000, and the Rocky Mountain area, 140 to 107,500.

U. S. Gold Imports Up Slightly in Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports rose to $7,739,600 in the week ended August 6. The Commerce Department said yesterday the figure was about 800 thousand dollars more than the preceding week.

Principal shipments included $2,741,180 from Canada, $2,158,999 from the Philippine Islands, and $1,995,042 from India.

Silver imports dropped almost in half to $705,929, including $236,421 from Mexico and $152,343 from Canada.

Gold exports were $1719, and silver exports were $7469.

Shares of Credit Firms Sink to 1941 Lows; General List Continues Quiet and Weak

New York, Aug. 12.—Foreign news and doubts and fears aroused by Washington steps to tighten the Nation's economic belt kept the stock market in a pessimistic mood today.

A few leaders mustered enough support to register fractional gains at the close, but the general leaning was toward lower values as Wall Streeters tried to appraise the probable effects of the proposed curbs on installment buying, the steel priority ruling and other Federal emergency measures adopted within the past few days.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite ended 0.1 of a point down. It was the seventh decline since July 28 and in this interval there has been no advance. Thus, from the standpoint of the bulls it has been one of the longest droughts in recent stock market history. Dealings totaled 427,000 shares against yesterday's 447,330. It was the quietest session since July 18.

Along with apprehension of adverse repercussions from more stringent Federal controls on business, speculative quarters still were inclined to pessimism over the Far Eastern situation and the intensification of the German drive in Russia. A little more unfavorable coloring was added by rumors the British might initiate a peace move, but these were derided by State Department officials.

Shares of various companies in the small-loan and merchandise financing fields were directly hit by the move to restrict time payment purchasing.

The recovery impulse was strongest in selected rails, which were benefitted by some encouraging first-half earnings reports, rubbers and specialties. Motors also made a fairly creditable showing at the end.

Yielding fractions to around 2 points were Household Finance, Beneficial Industrial Loan, Commercial Investment Trust and Commercial Credit. The first two reached 1941 lows.

Also on the soft side were Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Dupont and Air Reduction. Moderately ahead were U. S. Steel, Boeing, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central and Texas Corporation.

In the Curb, small improvement was shown by American Cyanamid and Glen Alden Coal. American Gas & Electric dipped. Transactions here were around 79,000 shares against 94,000 Monday.

Trends were far from decisive, however, as evidenced by the final standings in the Associated Press averages. The rails and utilities each lost .1 of a point, the industrials and low-yields each gained a similar amount and the 10 foreign bonds averaged .2 of a point higher largely as a result of late strength in a group of British Empire loans.

Continued strength in British flag loans placed several at new 1941 highs. Australia 5s were up 2 at 76, Brisbane 5s jumped up 7⅛ points to 66 and the 6s ended up 3¾ at 70¾. Japan 5½s and Sao Paulo stamped 7s were among the losers.

U. S. Governments leaned to the offside on the Stock Exchange in quiet trading. Prices recovered slightly in some cases over the counter but the majority of trades were at minor concessions.

Heavy Construction Shatters Records

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Contracts awarded for heavy engineering construction in July exceeded all previous records for the construction industry, Engineering News-Record said today.

The total was $958,683,000, an average of $191,733,000 for each of July's five weeks.

The average weekly volume was 30 per cent greater than the previous record high, which was established in June of this year, and was 120 per cent larger than July, 1940.

Federal construction, primarily for defense purposes, also reached a record high and was responsible for the huge rise in total construction volume.

Farm Staples Skid on Heavy Profit Taking

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures slumped yesterday under heavy profit-taking sales and liquidation attributed to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard's advice to farmers against asking too much for their crops.

Cotton values toppled $1.80 to $2.05 a bale in a decline greased by stop-loss orders. Light mill buying offered the only deterrent to the slip.

Profit taking was chiefly blamed for sugar futures declining. World contracts lost almost one-tenth cent a pound and domestic contracts about half that.

The decline carried wool tops .2 to .8 of a cent a pound lower, cocoa was off nearly one-tenth cent a pound and hides were down .05 to .10 cent a pound.

At Chicago, wheat lost ⅝ to 1⅛ cents a bushel in the face of favorable crop reports and a lack of storage space, corn moving ⅜ to ¾ cent a bushel downward.

The Associated Press index of 35 cash commodity prices declined for the fourth consecutive day, touching 90.11 per cent of the 1926 average compared with 90.38 per cent the day before.

Sugar Prices Above Ceiling

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—A Federal price ceiling clamped on raw sugar by Price Administrator Leon Henderson late today came a short time after three quick boosts in prices of this spot staple. It was quoted at 3.85 cents; Henderson set 3.5 cents as the limit.

Futures markets moved lower during the day on heavy profit-taking, world contracts losing 7½ to 9½ points on sales of 28,800 tons and domestic moving 2 to 6 points lower on sales of 10,650 tons.

World contract sugar, its prices in close relation to spot when duties, freight and other charges are figured in, closed; September, 1.75½ bid; December, 1.81 bid; March, 1.85½ bid; May, 1.87 bid; July, 1.88½ bid.

Domestic contract:

	High.	Low.	Close.
September	2.94	2.81	*2.82
January	2.87	2.85	*2.85
March	2.90	2.85	*2.85
May	2.92	2.87	*2.87
July	2.92	2.90	*2.90

*Bid.

Raw sellers were reported asking 3.85 cents a pound against 3.83 Monday, although some changed hands at 3.80 cents.

Refined prices were firm at 5.35 cents a pound, refined declining further business at the recent price of 5.20 cents and reporting considerable withdrawal of sugar previously contracted for at 5.05 cents.

N. Y. Central Net Leaps to $11,858,506

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 12.—New York Central Railroad operations reported today for the six months ended June 30 resulted in net income of $11,858,506, equal to $1.84 a share of capital stock against net loss of $576,136 in the first half last year. June net income was $2,871,385, against $804,943 for the same month last year.

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railway, a part of the New York Central system, had first-half net income of $2,853,732, equal to $3.30 a share, against $1,756,733, or $2.03 a share in the first half of last year.

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?

...take chances with cut-price insurance

Buying insurance of doubtful security in order to save premium cost is like an aviator buying a defective parachute because it's cheap. If he's going to need it at all, only the best is good enough. If he isn't going to need it, why bother to carry it at all?

Moral: Insist on insurance that you KNOW will be reliable . . . Let us tell you all about it.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 12 (F).—Cotton futures broke $1.90 to $2.06 a bale in the sharpest decline since July 30, active hedge selling and profit taking dropping prices through stop-loss orders that added momentum to the slump.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard's warning that farmers should not seek unreasonable prices for their products accelerated the selling movement. There was growing belief that price control legislation might be long delayed, and this, added to reports that weather conditions had improved, also disturbed the market.

A record cotton consumption estimate for July encouraged some traders but failed to stimulate outside support. The New York Cotton Exchange placed consumption at 940,000 bales, which would surpass the previous record of 920,142 bales in April of this year.

Bank Loans Climb 40 Million in Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of banks in 101 leading cities increased 40 million dollars to a total of $6,087,000,000 in the week ended August 6.

New York banks led with a 19 million dollar increase. These loans have been rising steadily since the defense program was started and in the 101 cities now are $1,641,000,000 more than a year ago.

Gregory to Retire; Veteran Telephone Aid

New York, Aug. 12 (F).—Richard H. Gregory, comptroller of the Western Electric Co. for more than 30 years and a director for over 20 years, will retire August 31 after 43 years of Bell Telephone System service. His successor will be S. Wallace Murkland, assistant comptroller. Stanley Bracken, an executive of Western Electric, was elected to the board of directors.

General Mills Cuts Number on Board

New York, Aug. 12 (F).—General Mills, Inc., announced that its stockholders at their annual meeting at Wilmington, Del., today approved an amendment to the by-laws reducing the number of directors from 17 to 13.

Walter R. Barry, of Minneapolis, a vice president, was elected a director to take the place of Thomas C. Thatcher, who resigned because of ill health.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 13 (F).—Political developments again appeared to be the dominating influence in the grain markets today and virtually all futures closed lower than yesterday's final levels.

The market opened around a cent lower on wheat, later recovered more than half the loss and then broke again to close at or within minor fractions of the day's lowest after an address by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard in which he indicated that the Administration was opposed to the suggestion that Government holdings of wheat and cotton be frozen until after the end of the war.

Wheat closed ¾ to 1¼ cents under yesterday's final prices. September, 1.09¾; December, 1.13¼@1.13⅜; corn was ⅝ to ¾ off. September, 77½; December, 80¾; oats unchanged to ¼ down; soybeans 1⅜ to 2 cents lower; rye, ⅝ to 1⅛ down and lard 17½ to 22½ cents a 100 pounds lower.

Tobacco Prices At Higher Level

South Carolina's nine markets averaged about 15 cents last season and North Carolina's, 16.14 cents. The Georgia-Florida markets, the first to open this season, averaged 23.06 cents last week.

Quality of offerings was better at many markets than had been expected. Offerings, for the most part were heavy. Turning of tags—a gesture indicating dissatisfaction with prices—was infrequent throughout the belt.

Tax Notes' Daily Sales Average $18,000,000

By the Associated Press

The Treasury reports sales of tax prepayment notes have been running more than 18 million dollars a day since sales began August 1.

In the first 8 days, sales totaled $146,124,700, on the basis of actual receipts at the Treasury. Sales are made through the Federal Reserve banks.

Cattle Production At 7-Year Record

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that the number of cattle on feed for market in the 11 Midwestern corn belt States August 1 was 17 per cent larger than a year ago and the largest since the 1934 drought year.

Increases were reported for all States, ranging from 5 per cent in Kansas to 35 per cent in South Dakota.

Stoker Stock Offered

New York, Aug. 12 (F).—Blyth & Co., Inc., headed a group of underwriters and offeered yesterday 44,890 common shares of the Standard Stoker Co., Inc., at $19.50 a share, for the account of stockholders rather than as new financing.

Speedy Trials Being Sought In Rape Cases

Trials within three weeks will be sought for two men indicted yesterday on charges of rape.

Death penalties will be sought in both cases, Acting District Attorney John W. Pihelly said, after the indictments were presented in the District Court before Justice James W. Morris.

The accused men are:

William I. Robinson, 34, who confessed that he attacked a 15-year-old schoolgirl in Rock Creek Park last Wednesday.

Bernard Lee Williams, 21, who was identified by a 17-year-old Negro girl as the man who crept up behind her on August 1 and beat her and her escort in the head with a brick. The bloody brickbat and a cap said to fit the prisoner were found on the scene.

"These men will be arraigned on Thursday," Pihelly said. "The Government will not accept a plea of guilty, even if they are disposed to make it, because in both cases the death penalty will be sought from the jury. We shall ask the court to appoint defense counsel, if the defendants have not obtained lawyers, to assure that their rights are protected and that a fair trial is had.

"This office will ask that the trials be set down for the first week in September, as soon as the criminal courts resume sessions. We shall do everything possible to dispose of preliminary matters in the intervening weeks, so that there will be no reason for delay."

Two other rape cases, one involving a girl whose soldier sweetheart was beaten with a rock and another involving an assault on a 7-year-old Negro girl, are already tentatively set for the first week in September.

The charges against those indicted were:

Rape—William Isaac Robinson, 34, Negro; Bernard Lee Williams, 21, Negro.

Assault with intent to rape—Charles H. Jordan, 18, Negro.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Bernard Lee Williams, 21, Negro; John Thornton, 38, Negro; Johnson Small, 37, Negro; Bennie Lindsey, 25, Negro.

Robbery—Frederick Burbrink, 19; Paul Ward, 22; Clifford L. Burk, 18; Charles E. King, 18; Joseph Jennett, 24, Negro.

Housebreaking and larceny—Elmer T. Blevins, 21 (nine indictments); James C. Moore, 21, Negro (eight indictments); Albert Jackson, 21, Negro; Eugene O. Rose, 26, Negro; Ulysses V. Delaney, 26.

Grand larceny—Daniel M. Underwood, 26.

Unauthorized use of an automobile—Randolph Strickland, 19; William E. Cooper, 22, Negro.

Robbery—William A. Johnson, 33.

Housebreaking—Bernard Johnson, 21, Negro.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Francis A. Brown, 28, Negro; Fannie Booker, 23, Negro.

Unauthorized use of automobile—Dolph Settles, 20, Negro.

July Output Of Planes Less, OPM Reveals

By James G. Simonds

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Production of military aircraft in American factories dropped to 1480 during July, a decrease of 16 from the June total of 1476, because of a lack of propellers and other smaller parts necessary to complete delivery of airplanes, the Office of Production Management revealed yesterday.

Although the number of planes actually completed showed a drop during July, it was said, the total is somewhat misleading since a number of planes were brought to the point during the month where they awaited only the addition of small parts, which can be installed quickly and easily as soon as they are available. Such planes will be credited to August production because only entirely finished aircraft are listed in the monthly totals.

Furthemore, the OPM lists a four-engined bomber and a light trainer plane as one unit each. The first is many times heavier than the second, and of far greater military importance. During recent months the proportion of heavier planes to lighter craft listed in the monthly production figures has increased, it was explained, so that the July figure actually represents a substantial advance in the total weight and striking power of military planes produced.

Meanwhile, other branches of the OPM took steps to give higher priority rating to materials needed for the production of light and medium tanks so that the tank program will not lag behind production of other military equipment, and to double the production of alloy steels and tubing needed to finish aircraft.

E. R. Stettinius, jr., director of priorities, issued two preference rating orders on behalf of three Government arsenals and 11 manufacturing companies which are engaged only in defense work. The orders assigned priority ratings of A-1-D to medium tank requirements and A-1-F to deliveries for light tank production.

"Issuance of the priority ratings was made necessary by a greatly stepped up production schedule which doubles previous estimates of tanks to be ready by the middle of 1942," OPM officials stated.

Dentist Asks Trial In Traffic Death

Dr. John P. Fitzgerald, 48-year-old dentist of Westgate, Md., demanded a jury trial and was released under $1000 bail yesterday when he was arraigned in Police Court under the Negligent Homicide Act.

The charge was ordered placed Monday by a coroner's jury which investigated the traffic death of Dr. Benjamin E. Talbott, 60, of 3512 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Dr. Talbott died at Emergency Hospital last Thursday, a few hours after he was knocked down by Dr. Fitzgerald's automobile at Massachusetts Avenue and Edmunds Street Northwest.

Miss McGeachy To Address Forum

Garden City, Long Island, Aug. 12.—Miss Craig McGeachy, of the British ministry of economic warfare in Washington, and Douglas Miller, former commercial attache at the United States Embassy in Berlin, will be the speakers tomorrow night at a public forum in the Adelphi College auditorium.

Their topic will be economic warfare as waged against the United States by the Axis powers. The forum is the first in a series sponsored by the Long Island defense center.

Mason Finds Lorton Food, Morale Fine

The District's major penal institution is "an amazing place," said Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday following his first visit to the Reformatory and Workhouse at Lorton, Va.

He and Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz were escorted on a two-hour inspection tour of the reservation, remaining for luncheon as guests of prison executives.

"And it was the best meal I ever ate," said Mason, remarking that inmates are fed on 16 cents a day.

He was particularly impressed with the fact that out of some 1500 prisoners, only 38 are actually confined to cells full time.

"The discipline and morale at both the reformatory and workhouse are excellent," Mason declared. "I didn't see any scowls or hear any complaints."

He was further impressed with the information that Lorton represents a four-and-a-half million dollar investment to the District and is self-sustaining except for heat and electric power.

The Commissioners visited the auto tag shop and learned that the steel used in each tag costs 2 cents with an additional 9-cent cost for stamping, painting and varnishing.

Commenting on the threatened shortage of pressed steel next year and the suggestion that current tags be repainted and used again, Mason said:

"I found it would cost 8 cents a tag just to remove the present paint. It would be silly to do that when it's cheaper to make a new tag."

Commissioner Kutz previously had visited the institution. He commented on the "fine construction" of the buildings, pointing out that most of it is done by prison labor.

Just before the trip, Mason received in his office members of the Lorton pistol team who showed him more than a score of trophies and medals won in recent matches.

Sabotage Found In Defense Plant

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rahway, N. J., Aug. 11.—Sabotage which wrecked a crane and locomotive and crippled the electric power plant of the strike-bound Amerian Brake Shoe & Foundry Co. here was discovered today by employes of the company, which has national defense contracts. Police immediately sent guard reinforcements to the plant, while agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation began an inquiry.

The sabateurs smashed dozens of windows, broke the gauges and controls of a Diesel locomotive, and threw sand in all the moving parts of the power plant generators. The factory has been tied up since July 28 by a strike of the International Molders and Foundry Workers Union, A. F. L.

Too Many Avoid Draft, Grant Thinks

Representative Grant (Democrat), Alabama, declared yesterday that many Federal agencies were "loaded down" with unneeded young lawyers who sought deferment from military service because of "indispensable Governmental work."

He made this assertion in a statement which was ordered published in the Congressional Record. He said:

"Unless some of the Governmental departments here in Washington change their views and actions it shall be my purpose to introduce a resolution calling upon each of them to submit to Congress a detailed statement as to each and every person who has applied for deferment and what action, if any, has been taken by the department or agency in recommending such deferment."

Grant said thousands of them would never be missed.

He also criticized a policy against reclassification of strikers in vital industries to make them eligible for the draft. He said it meant that a man, by reason of having once worked in such a plant, could "stay out on strike and remain exempt." He demanded "some definite restrictions as to deferments."

Meanwhile between 500 and 600 selectees, in addition to the previously announced quota of 572, are to be called into service here September 15, 16, 17 and 18, it was disclosed yesterday.

The men to take the oath in mid-September are replacements who will fill out shortages which occurred in previous requisitions when induction of men 28 years and over was ordered postponed.

Meanwhile, selection officers ordered more than 500 men to take physical examinations at Georgetown, Sibley, Garfield, Providence, Emergency and Freedmen's hospitals tomorrow night to form a reserve of candidates against future calls.

DuPuy Funeral To Be Held Friday

Funeral services for William Atherton DuPuy, 65, of 2707 Adams Mill Road Northwest, who died last Sunday in Fort Collins, Colo., will be held Friday at 3 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. DuPuy was a former newspaperman in Washington, as well as in New York, Philadelphia, Houston, Vicksburg and New Orleans. He served as a captan in the Army during the World War and was a member of the American Press Club Post of the American Legion.

Hotel Room Robbed

Theft of two pairs of pajamas, three pairs of socks, four handkerchiefs and a shirt valued at $35 was reported to police by Aker Zubeyr, 28, a secretary at the Turkish Embassy. The articles disappeared from his room at the Fairfax Hotel some time Sunday, he said.

Doctors Plan Sober Study of Drink Problem

A sober and coldly scientific approach to drink, with never a thought for the evil or glamour of it, is being planned by a group of doctors, scientists and other professional men headed by Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, it was learned yesterday.

For a beginning they are planning to conduct a survey, possibly with WPA help, to learn the extent of alcoholism in a single State. Later the survey may extend to other States.

The survey is being planned by the Research Council on Problems of Alcohol, organized several years ago, of which Dr. Overholser is executive board chairman. The council is not trying to make any propaganda, he said, but just to determine facts.

A Scientific Job

"About liquor," he said, "there has been a lot of feeling and not much thinking. The members of the council are not pro-liquor or pro-prohibition. They're planning to do a scientific job on what is probably the biggest single medical problem which is not now being attacked scientifically."

The council has completed one stage in its survey of alcoholism, he said. That was a study of the literature already available on the subject. This was conducted with the aid of a $25,000 Carnegie grant. Results are to be published in the council's quarterly journal.

One fact that came out of studying available literature is that no one knows how extensive alcoholism is, Dr. Overholser said.

"One problem about alcoholism is to find out just how big the problem is," he added. "Just the numbers of arrests for drunkenness, for drunken driving, and of hospital admissions where alcoholism is a factor, show that there must be an awful lot of alcoholism in this country."

Because of the completeness of its police court and hospital records, Dr. Overholser said Massachusetts might be chosen as the State for the survey. If WPA help were available, the survey could be started in a month, he said.

Wars Increase Tippling

While the proposed survey has its background in the council's earlier studies, Dr. Overholser explained that it would be timely because statistics show that during past wars drinking increased, and there is likelihood that it will increase again.

Whatever they learn, Dr. Overholser said, the council "has no axe to grind," nor any thought of saving whether there should be fewer or more saloons.

"We want to be in a position to say 'these are the facts about alcoholism, if anyone wants to use them go ahead,'" he concluded.

Navy Swords Beaten Into War Materials

For the first time since the days of John Paul Jones, the United States Navy suspended yesterday its requirement that its officers equip themselves with swords.

It announced that modification of its rules regarding the use of this distinctive piece of equipment for officers had been ordered "because of the urgent need for metals used in the manufacture of swords" and said the order would remain effective "until further notice."

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau. Tuesday, August 12, 1941—7:30 P. M.

Forecasts

For the District of Columbia—Fair; not quite so warm Wednesday; slightly cooler Wednesday night; Thursday partly cloudy; gentle northeast and east winds Wednesday becoming east or southeast Thursday.

For Maryland—Fair; not quite so warm Wednesday; cooler Wednesday night; Thursday partly cloudy, somewhat warmer in west portion.

For Virginia—Fair in north and partly cloudy in south; not so warm Wednesday; cooler Wednesday night; Thursday fair with continued moderate temperature.

Weather Conditions

The marked disturbance over the lower Lake region Monday night has advanced rapidly eastward beyond the New England States followed by fresh northerly winds bringing in relatively cool and much drier air over the Ohio Valley, the Middle and North Atlantic States. An extensive area of high pressure is moving east-southeastward over the Mississippi Valley, International Falls, 1022.4 millibars (30.19 inches). Warm humid air with considerable cloudiness continues over the Southern States where scattered showers and thunderstorms have occurred during the past 24 hours. However more general showers and thunderstorms have occurred from the Middle Atlantic States and South Carolina westward to Kansas and Oklahoma along the zone separating the warm humid air from the South and the cooler dry air from the North. Considerable cloudy weather continues over the Far Western States with numerous showers and thunderstorms in the Rocky Mountain region.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, July 25, 1941. A public hearing having been held on June 30, 1941, by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing certain street and alley areas in the District of Columbia, as hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that the same are not detrimental to the public interests nor to the interests of abutting property owners, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered that pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 18, 1932, the street and alley areas as shown in green on plats filed in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Maps 2523 and 2824, are hereby ordered CLOSED, same to take effect on and after AUGUST 28, 1941, the title to the land contained in said areas so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said maps; the said areas hereby ordered closed being described as follows: 1. Closing 6th Street between G and H Streets, S.W., and closing H Street between 7th and 9th Streets, S.W. 2. Closing E Street between Minnesota Avenue and 36th Street; closing 34th Street between Minnesota Avenue and E Street; closing Anacostia Road between Ely Place and E Street; and closing of alleys in Square 5441; all in the Southeast section of the District of Columbia." Any and all parties interested must file objections, if any, in writing, to said closings within thirty days after the date of this publication, as shown at the beginning thereof, otherwise said order shall become effective on August 28, 1941, and the street and alley areas as herein described, shall on and after said date become closed, in accordance with the provisions of said Act. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Grin and Bear It

It sort of makes one wish that one had decided to become a radio engineer when one hears about the latest little assignment of Guy Hutcheson.

Now, Guy is a 30-year-old guy who's been working as a special field engineer for the Columbia Broadcasting System since 1935, ever since he got back from a 21-month jaunt with Admiral Byrd to the South Pole.

He had the exciting job while in the Antarctic of being in charge—with John Dyer, later chief communications engineer for CBS—of the broadcasts put on from the bottom of the world and part of his work, too, was flying around in the airplanes as they made their exploratory trips over something new every day.

Of course, as CBS field engineer, he's had lots of trips around the country. But it was sissy stuff—mere jaunts of 3000 miles or less. His latest assignment is something he can get his teeth into. It's a 20,000-mile journey which will take him through every one of the 22 republics south of the Rio Grande.

His trick is to survey receptions and facilities of every station in Columbia's new Latin-American network (Cadena las Americas) and get acquainted with engineering conditions in each country concerned. At present there are 67 Latin-American stations in the group.

And to think that some people pay to travel!

Contract Bridge

Players who have mastered the technique of opening leads often substitute deception for convention and are well rewarded for their daring. When Howard Schenken, of the Four Aces, defended today's deal at a championship he opened the ace of hearts from a holding of ace, king, small, although the king is almost always played first. This strategy fooled declarer, who presented the adversaries with a gift trick and lost his contract.

When Schenken found himself on lead against South's game in spades, he decided that the normal opening of the heart king was unlikely to set the hand. North's no-trump call probably placed dummy with a heart honor; and with only three of the suit in his own hand, it didn't look as though East could ruff the third round. North's club bid also seemed to nullify West's two honors in the suit, so he could not reasonably expect to take two hearts and the trump queen.

With his own strength and the adversaries' spirited bidding indicating weakness in his partner's hand, Schenken decided to try to steal a trick by leading the ace of hearts instead of the king.

East liked hearts as well as any other suit and encouraged a continuation by playing the seven. The master seized upon this opportunity and he followed at once with the heart five. Declarer was tricked and played the nine from dummy. East won the jack and returned another heart to West's king. These three heart winners, plus the certain queen of spades, defeated South's four-spade contract one trick.

Declarer didn't go right up with dummy's queen on the second round of hearts because three hearts plus a possible loser in spades or clubs would defeat him. The lead of the ace seemed to place East with the king and South hoped North's nine would force that card, if West held the jack, thus establishing dummy's queen.

Solid Rock Maple . . . 3 Pieces

Typical of the sort of values you get in this semi-annual event. Solid Rock Maple, you'll notice . . . not just run-of-the-mill. Big pieces, too, in simple, Early American design. Each one hand-rubbed to enhance the deep, ruddy tone of the natural wood. Full-size bed, large four-drawer chest and either the kneehole vanity with mirror or dresser with mirror. Any way you assemble it, you'll have a charming Colonial bedroom, at far less than you ever thought you'd have to spend. Half-Yearly Sale Priced .....

SEE THE FOUR MAPLE-FURNISHED MODEL ROOMS

1. SEE: A cherry, maple living room, with plenty of deep-seated broad-armed chairs, a comfortable sofa and plenty of tables . . . all of the same glowing amber-tone maple . . . a room you can duplicate at very little cost.

2. SEE: An Early American bedroom with a document print on the walls to give it a truly Early American air. A room in which to wake up as chipper as a lark, no matter what the weather. Duplicate it in your own home or vary the color scheme.

3. SEE: Modern Maple one-room apartment, with an upholstered maple sofa bed that is easily converted into a double bed. Functional wall pieces that may be used in a variety of combinations to give a "living-room" look, while providing scads of drawer space. Fine for the bachelor girl or bonafide bachelor.

4. SEE: Colonial Bedroom with graceful four-poster bed. Decidedly feminine with its froths of white organdie and gay floral chintz.

AN ENTIRE SECTION OF OUR NEW BLOCK-LONG FURNITURE FLOOR IS DEVOTED TO MAPLE FURNITURE

We're firm believers in and admirers of maple furniture, especially for budget-minded bride-and-grooms. We like its lack of fol-de-rol, its adherence to good-taste whether in Early American or modern guise. It's solid wood . . . that's a virtue in itself. It isn't expensive. It's perennially satisfying, radiating as much charm today as when our forefathers gathered around a solid maple table to discuss the Bill of Rights.
